

I am constructing a small house with my son. There are small pieces to insert on a plastic platform and when the first room is done we find ourselves inside. It is actually filled with control panel but when we are about to operate it a giant robot outside gives us order to stop.

I am with my parents and their friends cooking in the kitchen. I then walk at the end of the room where there is a little boy. He actually wants a stake and bites my hand really hard. I then ask his mother to barbecue it but she tells me to go and wash it first that it is all dirty.

I am on a bus with some guys and need to go back to the hostel on top of the city. The bus is actually talking us to the center and I ask the driver where we can get the right bus. He said that we just missed the stop and tells me to wait for the final. From there we have to walk a whole mile.

My parents and I walk back to our apartment that there are a lot of cars parked outside. Inside there are actually many tables arranged and we understand that there is soon going to be a big celebration. We then take a seat on the table by the wall but then my stepfather decides to exchange it.

I take my son to our apartment but find that his cousins are watching TV in the middle of the day. I then take him upstairs and start wondering when my friend arrives. I then go back down and ask my mother-in-law to look at her journal. There are photos of her celebrating her birthday alone.

I am out listening to my stepfather talking to my mother. He just heard from his boss who he is willing to take two designers to work with him in a different city. I then also wish to let him know that I am a designer and ask him to be part of a test but then remember that it was canceled.

I walking home and see my kid and his cousin crossing the road to go to the playground. As she tells me that the chain of her bike is down I realize that my son is still crossing with his bike but he is not aware of a car approaching. I then help him out and reproach him but he starts crying.

I find a big sign outside where the best employee of the month are shown left to right from the first to the fifth place. They are actually priced for different reasons and I go through them. As I try to understand what they mean I realize that they are actually working in different places.

I am disguised like an Arab but some women recognize me and chase me inside a palace. The floors are very slippery and I can't run so fast because of my sandals. I then lay flat on the floor and hit a guy rollerblading. I am actually in the shoe sections of a mall but don't steal a new pair.

I wake up that it is still too early and find my wife awoken in the kitchen. It is dark and she is actually looking at the films I was watching by myself in my small laptop. I then wonder if she is angry but she is actually happy that she got an appointment with a researcher from the Middle East.

I am at a Spanish friend's place and he tells us what to wash before he leaves. My wife comes out naked from the bathroom and we sit together on the sofa. She behaves like she doesn't want to make love but as I keep her in my arms I realize that she actually wants to.

I am in a meeting with a company and realize that they are all my old classmates from college. I then take one from behind and hug him on the floor. We then start celebrating and another tells me how he succeeded making love to a beautiful Iranian student of mine. He is actually so ugly.

I eat with some friends making small sandwiches for breakfast when our host and his wife comes with a tray full of big sandwiches. We then sit down together and start eating them. As they explain how they bought them in a nearby shop I realize that my sandwiches would have been better.

I am in a bar eating free chips at the counter when a man asks how long it takes to go around the island by bike. He thinks that is a whole day but the island is really big. I then discuss with the bar tender and agree that it is at least two days.

I am walking behind my kid's school that it is raining but have a leather coat that doesn't get wet. As I decide to open the umbrella anyway a worker accidentally throws some water at me. They are shoveling the street filled with water and I realize that even my boots are not getting wet.

I am walking that it is already dark out and with a lot of snow. As I get in a new road a black woman tells me to cut through a blue kindergarten. It is a perfect place where to spend the night but there are too many security cameras. It is actually a film store on the opposite side.

I am looking at a softball game when the ball gets out of the fence. I go to fetch and give it back to one player who is actually the girlfriend of an old friend. As I ask her if I can also try to play I realize that her face is really cute and I dare to kiss her in the mouth.

I am in the kitchen cleaning my teeth with an electric rinsing and get a shock. I immediately let it go on the bench and it breaks into pieces. They keep on moving even if they are disconnected to the main battery. I then see how can that happen but can't figure it out.

I get to an artist friend's studio to dismantle my exhibition but find it filled with other things. As his girlfriend tries to find a drawing she is making on a large paper I take down my panels of people faces and find that a layer is coming out. I then hit one with a hammer and remove it all around.

I am rollerblading on a large circuit and see my stepfather with my stepsister. I then go very fast to show him how good I am and reach them in no time. I start braking and lift one of my legs. I am actually really good and can lift it very high impressing my stepsister who is also a ballerina.

There is a documentary about the mafia and I invite a mafia boss to watch it with me. My mother then drives me to his residential neighbourhood but we end up in a dead end with a gangster peeing on the side of the road. She immediately turns around and we finally get to the place.

I am walking with two friends and come in front of the apartments that I have just rented. I never got in and I invite them to come. There is actually a very fancy wooden staircase but it feels very unstable. I then wonder if I have to walk on it everyday but then see that there is also an elevator.

An American poet is in my apartment and I try to look for some alcohol to make her a cocktail. I look in my son's room but spill a vase of water on the floor. She then tells me that she anyway has to go to meet our friends. They actually meet very regularly but never told me anything.

I am walking with my colleagues back to the lab and pretend to fight one of them. As we arrive he tells me to help attaching a large post-it. I then do so but it doesn't get aligned with another and I have to remove it. He gets irritated but I find a good way to align it by attaching it from the side.

My stepfather is a young boy and lives in my Italian neighbour's house. As I talk to him over the fence I tell him to look at the fence to the side. The neighbour has also another boy there and my stepfather realizes that he is my biological father. He then runs in winning and being very afraid.

I am meeting my English supervisor and write on the board the kind of courses he wants me to teach. I am too distracted and write them wrong. He anyway decides to go for lunch and we walk to a restaurant but the waiter tells us that there is a lot to wait. He decides to sit and wait.

I am preparing a salad for my stepfather and he gets really angry with me because I first poured some wine and didn't wash my hands. He then shows me how I have to pull up the hand towel from the floor with my foot. As he talks he actually has a whole egg in the wine and then eats it.

I am in my parents' house and my mother tells me how my son needs the dentist. The amount of money she will have to pay is outrageous and I can't believe it. I really try to think if there is another way and propose her to try in Mexico but then realize that she is talking about the old currency.

I am with a red hair short girl and cross a big road that the traffic light is still red. A man helps us from the other side and we get in the golden metro station with him. He is actually working there and I ask him to let my friend in for free. He then goes upstairs again and let her through.

I am with a good friend and his friend waiting for the train but see a bus arriving in the opposite platform. Our train comes and we look for a wagon with normal seats. As we pass by a factory with mechanical sculptures on the wall my friend starts talking about the investment we just made.

I am back in my old office and my Chinese boss asks me for his memory stick back. I actually have it in my pocket but pretend to find it inside my backpack. As I am about to give it back to him I realize that I still have some images of us at a monument in it. I then erase them on my computer.

I am driving with some friends to the North of Europe across France. We are actually still crossing the same city where we started our journey. There was a train we could have gotten to the periphery and we reach a station with two different lines.

I am at a friend's studio to pick up my paintings but he tells me to leave them there in case someone wants to buy them. He actually says that there is a price on the Internet for each of them but they are worth much more especially the pictures of faces. He even has a smaller version of them.

I get to a farmer market carrying two old baskets with some special roots and eggs to sell. I position myself in the middle but realize that one only has some old potatoes. I then look in the other and find that the eggs have turned into small chicks and feel lucky I haven't sold them.

I am with some friends driving by an old cliff that my Greek friend has climbed with his boyfriend. We then drive in a thick forest and notice some kids with paint ball rifles. We also have one on the roof and start shooting at them. I actually hit a kid sitting inside his parents' luxurious boat.

I reach the top of a dump and film when some guys start doing acrobatics with their bikes. I then move further down to get a better picture of the landscape below. I can actually see the ocean but as I am filming a small gypsy kid comes shaking my arm. I hold him on the ground till I am done.

I am walking at the edge of an indoor swimming pool and bump into a very cute girl. She is actually my old neighbor's daughter and praises my talent as a musician rather than as a visual artist. I then move to the side to put on my swimsuit but I don't have a big enough towel to cover me.

I am in a room when an old classmate from college comes in wearing a Roman helmet. He wants to recruit a guy for a job and I decide to follow him. He then takes me outside and teaches me how to vacuum clean but the cleaner is not strong enough and I try one of the many different buttons.

The faculty members of a school are taking an old Professor out to be hospitalized. I then wait by the ambulance and recognize that he is a very famous Polish artist I have been working with. I wait for him to greet me but he just eats his banana and gets in without saying a word.

I am in a meeting with my boss and I tell him that I still want to do a doctorate in Italy. He then shows me on a map that there are also other places in some small German cities. I then ask a Turkish colleague to repeat them for me and she tells me that one of them is actually in Scandinavia.

I am at my Italian neighbor and get permission from his neighbor to go in her garden and renovate it. I then find the fence open and starts moving in some large timbers to be repainted but the lady shows me her husband's drawings. I then start moving them instead but some are too heavy.

I with my mom driving and listening to a radio program. As I wait for the presenter to put on the song of a very good rapper I keep reading a novel. A part of it is actually a poem describing with metaphors a sexual intercourse and I immediately hide the book from my mom.

I am walking on a crowded street and hear two girls explaining their father a map of the world that I used for my exhibition. It is made of the world flags but many of them are missing. I then start telling them that it is because I have only been to these many countries yet.

I am biking through the streets of an African neighborhood we have never explored. My son is actually with me and wants an ice-cream. I go up to a modern bar and get a raspberry ball for free but when I come back my wife is there and we sit on the staircase overlooking the outskirts.

A scout leader takes us along the street to the condominium where a family lives. The father lets us in and gives me two old publications. They are actually about a film project he was doing that is similar to mine but I am more interested talking to his daughter about her old Italian bike.

A man with a blue face is invited by a doctor to his office where he has just recreated his partner. As they kiss the blue man turns normal again and his partner turns into a young black girl. Her family is hidden behind the wooden wall and has to look while she is being raped.

My old Italian neighbour takes me and my wife to his house telling us about his daughter buying a new house. I then get downstairs where my things are and pee in a urinal but there is a blanket inside. I make sure I don't pee on it and then search for something to wear in a pile of new clothes.

I am under a large tent stirring a bowl with spaghetti when two beautiful blond girls come seating next to me. I then start serving them and they seem very interested to know me but my wife also comes. I then stand up and kiss her in the mouth leaving them with their mouth open.

My son and I are out and walk across an empty basketball court. At the end there is a big dog playing with a smaller dog and we go to see them. As the later leaves we realize that the small dog is actually a white rabbit. Its owners are seating by the fence and he goes to them.

I am in the backseat of my American colleague's car sewing some mayonnaise sachets. They have been torn on the side and I try to sew around them but my colleague decides to go. As the car is moving it is impossible for me to sew anymore and I try to tell her to stop but we have a meeting.

It is my wedding and my wife decides to start the ceremony. We then start walking with all my family friends inside a house and I tell one of them to photograph. They actually want me to follow the tradition and kiss a male in the mouth. I then pick my most handsome friend.

I am in my parents' place and go to the bathroom to clean my ears but the cup of the stick rotates. I hear my mom who wants me to help her husband. He has two cameras but doesn't know how to read from the memory card of one of them. I know a device that can read all and go to show him.

I am seating in a harbor by the water working on my project. My father-in-law is actually behind fixing a small and rusted crane. He actually manages to put rubber around the tip and now hits on the floor right next to me to show how safe it is.

I take a musician to the jungle at night to meet with my musician friend. He then takes us through a dark and overgrown path but it soon gets very nice and we reach a cement house. The terrace is enormous and I go down to swim but there is a guy fishing mussels and I have to be careful.

I am at a restaurant and overhear a couple renting a cheap car. I then call an agent through the windows and he comes to our table. We then ask him for a cheap car and he tells us that there is a cheap model but insists that we go for a bigger model. He looks in a magazine but can't find it.

I am just out of a station with my family waiting for an old friend. I start eating a pizza when he finally arrives and we start driving through some old villages. There are a lot of young people out and I realize that many are very pretty Chinese girls. There are even Chinese antiques for sale.

I am walking with a girl and pass by a field where some small olive trees are growing. She actually wants one but we keep walking uphill and I explain that we would need a spade. We find one on the side but there is also a nice downhill path filled with horse pools on the other and we go for it.

I hear my new neighbor in the kitchen with my wife. He is a middle age Arab and I catch that he is trying to kiss her. She actually consents and I immediately throw him out the staircase. I then get really angry with her but she tells me that he is a karate champion and we have to escape now.

I have my dick out while some workers go back home. I then join some activists and push the workers in a corridor but I am the last one and get in an elevator alone. It takes me really underground while my father is in the very ceiling mounting panels and crying over my departure.

I am checking in an airport and realize that there are going to be thunderstorms over Japan. I then ask to get my ticket reimbursed and the hostess do it right away. She then proposes me to go to South America and shows me pictures of a man walking on a beautiful coast but it is too wild.

I have my American neighbours in the kitchen and go to the bathroom. I have to wash my penis and start doing it under the sink but then remember to lock the door properly. I actually realize that the sink is filled with water and I can't get it down now that I got all dirty.

It is early in the morning and I am going to the gym but remember that I also have to go to a conference. I then ask my wife and she tells me that there are going to be two sections. She thinks I should be presenting in the first one but now it is too late and I can't make it on time.

I am with an old friend and help him to push a chart to the ferry but the pier is underwater. I actually hear from the Cuban art critic we were going to meet that he is now too busy. There have been many divorced couples going to visit him and they are now swimming naked in the cold water.

I am walking with an intellectual who tells me of an opera coming to town. I will help him posting fliers of the event and follow him up a staircase. We reach his friends' apartment and get in that my Finnish friend is also there. She recalls the time we met in Canada but I can't remember.

I am talking to some friends on the side of a boring hill with no view. I then go to the opposite side where I find some other people talking. There is actually a view of my native village and I start praising it even though there are many trees on the way.

I leave a disco that is closing and look for my car. I can't find it in any of the parking lots and keep walking till I see a group of nice girls on the opposite side of the road. One of them throws me a magic wand and I go up a hill to return it but then see her dancing in a small chapel with a guy.

I get a forwarded e-mail from the Swedish director of an institution saying that my Polish friend cannot come to work for us. I then start to reply but realize that she is actually writing directly to me. She is actually from a very important American corporation.

I am watching a film of a tiny mice that drinks from the bowl of a big dog and also becomes very big. It actually transforms into another dog and gives birth to two puppies. A man on the roof tries to stop the transformation but the film is still lacking all the special effects and nothing occurs.

I am attending a mass and cry to the speech of the female priest. I actually write it down and show it to my stepfather. He corrects some mistakes and adds his willing that when he dies I get a month salary. I then ask his friend and him to sign it but worry about all the corrections.

I am in a ceramic workshop with a friend and ask another friend if he can teach us how to fire images on ceramic. He gets out a special paper and puts it over a painting with a lot of identical small icons of a Madonna with baby. There is actually a grid on the paper but it disappears as it sticks.

I am in my old art academy walking with a teacher in the botanical garden. She asks where I have been and I explain to her all my traveling in recent years. We then come to the cafeteria but I am broke and only get a free olive from the counter. There a new teacher introduces himself to me.

My Italian boss tells us to watch a documentary in his living room. It is about my Polish boss showing an old car escaping the police. The car suddenly turns new and parks at his apartment where his wife is laying without panties. My wife is also without them and I told her to dress up.

I am walking at night in the city where we are about to move and find the actual street where our apartment is. I don't know the number and just keep walking among very nice old houses. I reach the end and find that the sea is really close but there is a party with Swedish people drinking.

I am with a friend and go visit his girlfriend in an isolated house on the side of a park. She is actually an old classmate of mine who lost her father. She has very beautiful blue eyes but not her mother who comes out offering uncooked rice of different sorts while many kids play basketball.

I look at a documentary showing a Spanish man going with his companion up a straight road of a Caribbean island. He complains about the new scooter he has and says that the old was much better. The commentator then says that he still hasn't take it to adjust the height of the seat.

I am biking downhill and look at my native town from a parallel street while waiting for my sister. I then go back to the crossing and find my sister who tells me that she is eating too much chocolate. As I go back to fetch my bike I find that the wall where I was looking is a desk selling lobsters.

I am driving an expensive but old car in Japan and come to a round about. I miss the exit for the capitol and have to go around once more. I then come to a toll booth but I am too far off and the man inside has to get out to get paid.

I am following a presenter inside a workshop where several pilots are fixing their racing car. I recognize a very famous one painting his red. We then go out where there is a motorcycle race but cannot recognize many of the brands.

I am walking with my son down a hill and come to a place where an older man is grilling fish for the people there. I then ask my son if he wants some fish but he only wants grilled corn. As I am about to get it I realize that it is on sale and the guy is actually cheating saying that it is for charity.

I am in the office and hear a colleague approaching with our boss and talking bad about me. We then sit to eat together and he asks what he should buy to his Italian uncle. I first recommend an old Italian book but then see that he doesn't like it and propose some films.

There is a marathon going across a thick crowd but opening up for the group in front. They actually start running in a large park and they catch a guy cheating and going in front. They manage to reach him and come to the office where the marathon ends. As the guy arrives they throw him out.

I am talking to my stepfather at lunch and ask him if he ever had a problem with the mafia. He then tells me that they investigated one of his patient who was a priest. He operated his shoulder in a private clinic and found that he was paid by the finance minister in person.

I am waiting to board an airplane with an Italian colleague. As he tells me how he just managed to leave before they caught him with some important data he tried to transfer I look at a large monitor behind. There is actually the data from my project that is barely appearing as stripes of photos.

My son is late for school and we hurry to his class but he needs to go to the bathroom. He then gets over the long row of aluminum sinks and start washing his feet. I am very disgusted because it is all dirty and I try to hold him up and explain that to him.

We get to a fast-food restaurant and order some sandwiches but they don't have any left. We then order some noodles but they have just turned off the kitchen. The cooks are some old Chinese ladies who take pity on us and restart it so that they can cook the noodles we asked for.

I am walking with my wife through our American neighborhood and I show her where the sister of a guy lives. She then tells me that he is actually her husband and I see her training by herself. She jogs by holding a string that ends at the house gate and turns back so that she never gets out.

I am in a restaurant with a photocopy of a photograph hanging on the wall. It shows a light bulb and I use a blue crayon to redo the edges. I avoid doing the inside and look at the other photocopied pictures on the opposite wall. One shows some politicians talking but it is actually from a film.

I disembark in my old city up north and feel good even if it is dark and there is still snow on the ground. As I walk down the harbor I meet my old neighbour and his daughter. I tell her that I am also right wing like her father and we actually join a party meeting where there are other Southerners.

I am walking in a very modern museum taking pictures with my wife. We get out that my mother is buying the tickets for her family but ignores us. We also move on but then come back to tell her that she could at least invites us for dinner but she doesn't want to.

Two guys enter an hotel and start shooting. They then get everyone line up and ask them to bring them anything valuable but another guy has a gun and they have shoot many more to kill him. They are actually in my parents' place and they steal their money running away with their big car.

I am talking to my best-friend about his work in a studio at the end of the historical city. There are only two of them who are actually fully employed. I thought they were all but the rest is only working half time and have to help their boss to pay a percentage of their taxes.

I get in a museum with my old American Professor and try to tell him of a show I saw in America. It was from an old comedian but I can't remember his name nor he can help me. We actually get to a stand with old shirts and I try a really nice one on but it is transparent in the back.

I am walking on the side of a big road when the police stops me from the other side. One of them checks if I have any weapons and another starts walking with me and interrogates me. I then tell him that I have a son and we come to a beach. He lets me go to get paid and I meet my old friends.

I get in a building and find a group of graduate students seating around a table. There is also another group and they are singing a song celebrating one of them who has just graduated. A fat and black guy knows different versions of this song and I stay there to listen.

I am in a supermarket with my old supervisors and we go through the prices of a shelf with perfumes. One of them takes a whole box with some of them for free but then shows us how the other ones are just more expensive. They actually want to modify the prices and wants me to participate.

I sign out of an hotel filling only part of a form and get out singing a song from the radio. A girl is also coming out singing the same song and gets really surprised. We then start crossing a field together and I sing other songs but then a ball comes towards me and I lose her as I throw it back.

I am biking with my cousin and he takes me down a garage where to park our bikes. He has a good chain and I ask him if we can lock them together but he doesn't want to. I then use my plastic lock and realize that he actually has the keys to lock the door.

I am talking to my aunt by a house painted purple with small flowers. They actually just got it from a guy who went bankrupt. He is seating in his office on the other side of the street and my aunt shows me how his neck is still. He had cancer and has to turn his all body to greet us.

I get back to my old office that my colleagues are setting up their new installations. I interact with a robot by swapping my hand on top and ask the colleague who made it if he has considered the birds from the sky. I then cover my face with my arm and get ready to surprise another colleague.

I am seating in a cafeteria with my wife after a workshop. A senior joins us and congratulates with her about her work. She has even published her notes about her. I also was a leader of one of the projects but didn't do a good job and have no one to congratulate with me.