

I am at my university in my department's kitchen when I feel someone touching my shoulders. It is an art critic I have not met for a long time. He actually reminds me of a meeting I am about to have and I move to the entrance. He keeps talking to me but I realize that it is already dark out.

I am in my apartment on the way to the Thai restaurant next door. I ask him how he feels about Thai food and he tells me that he was just in Thailand. He actually did not like the food there this time because Thai people have started using big cubes of chicken bullion to make them.

I am laying on the grass with a girl and an instructor tells us to write down what we think in a small paper. We should divide it in four parts but I don't know what to write. As I am about to ask him a famous actor comes joining us. He has been just released from prison after harassing a girl.

I am walking with my son down a medieval path at night. A gang is walking ahead of us and I can see them placing beer cans on the medieval wall along it. Their boss is actually lighting one and I hurry to him to tell him not to explode it. He lights it anyway but throws it behind him instead.

I am walking with my girlfriend by the waterside and make a turn next to a cabin. My son is actually behind us and we stop to wait for him. There are a few runners and he also comes running but with a pair of sneakers tied on his belly. As he approaches I see that they are my old sneakers.

I am with my stepfather in a mall and I follow him down the escalators. He actually starts running but he goes too fast and I am afraid of falling. We finally reach the receptionist and he starts asking him for a new yellow car. The latter is a car shop director and the car is actually a gift for me.

I am walking alone next to an old house. It is actually very beautiful but the owner has not painted it and the walls are getting rotten. As I wonder why he is not taking care of it I realize that the end of the house is a big cement block and that the owner must be using it as a mechanic shop.

I am seated in a long table with many young men and my stepfather on the opposite side. I try to explain him that Scandinavian countries are Europe richest. One of the men is from there and does not agree but then I tell him that my country is like an exploited woman who needs to rest.

I am in a seminar room listening to a curator dedicating an entire biennial to a Japanese artist. The latter is there planning his exhibition and I try to give him suggestion about a crane. He does not listen to me and I try to talk to other Japanese artists to organize a counter exhibition.

I am with my girlfriend and take her in a beautiful church. I actually want to see a cupola and go up to the organ but find a man praying for the recent death of a famous artist. I then go down again and see my girlfriend talking to another man. I hide behind a column and photograph them.

I am walking in the countryside with my sister and hear some bells. I want to stop to record them but she wants to continue and I see some rocks on the side. There is actually a beautiful church behind them and that is where the sound comes from. We then go there and find a big crowd.

I am with few other people and a Sicilian man who takes us into a bar. He wants to buy us food but it is very expensive and asks the barmaid for a sandwich each. He then shows her a big box of pizzas we were about to buy and tells her that he wants to make a debit of the same amount.

I am in a pub with some friends who asks me if I am really right wing. I do not answer and stand up to go to another room where I want to subscribe my new party. There is a girl ahead of me and she needs a photo for her party membership. I then try to take it with my camera but she turns.

I am walking in a forest with my girlfriend. We actually stand by a pine tree to pick branches for the fire but suddenly hear a tiger. I then put my girlfriend on my back and start walking carefully out. We are actually in an empty building and I hide through the pillars but can see the tiger's tale.

I am walking on a sidewalk with my son when we see an old Swedish friend I knew from my American high school. She actually invites us to her apartment and we go even though I do not want to make my girlfriend jealous. It is a little room in a basement and we seat inside to eat fresh bread.

I am with another guy for an interview at a new art university. My old English colleague is among the interviewers but there is also another guy who hands us an article he wrote. I cannot understand it but they want us to make a summary of it. I then improvise and sound very eloquent.

I am going out of my university with a tall girl. She tells me that she is French and works for a famous artist. As we get to the escalator she starts hugging me but there is her professor looking at us and we run in my department. He also follows and we run downstairs where I can use my card.

I am at a gym training and feeling strong. I am actually lifting a heavy weight from behind my back to train my triceps and feel it is very easy. I am in the middle of the room and I notice a guy in front of me trying to use a new machine to train his back but he lacks the iron to select the weight.

I am watching at myself delivering a speech in a crowd. I am actually behind it with a woman who notices an old amplifier. Another man takes it and I pull it back from the wire and help her to bring it in a small garage. I want her to take her car to bring it home but she insists in walking there.

I am on a bus looking at some Spanish guys getting off. Another guy takes me by the shoulder and tells me that they look like vikings. As I am about to push his hand away I realize from his accent that he is from my native village. My youngest aunt is also there and I send her to talk to her.

I am walking in a neighborhood but cannot find my sister and don't know where to go. I try to use my intuition and end up in front of a big compound. I then guess that it is the place where I am supposed to go and my sister actually send me a message showing the small bike in front of me.

I am at a busy opening in the courtyard of a small gallery. It is very crowded but I can see a lesbian colleague who actually has her opening in another gallery. Her wife is following her and I realize that they also have a Chinese son. They seat on a pedestal in the middle and I go to greet them.

I am with a young boy who shows me an artwork he has made on his mobile phone. It is actually a theater but the curtains are too red and nothing can be seen. I then get in to change the color by pressing some colored stains on the wall. I actually manage but have to do it for every scene.

I am biking on a long road to my girlfriend but miss the exit. I then turn in a village but a policeman is there giving a fine to another guy with a scooter. I cannot break and keep straight on the wrong road but then manage to go back and hear the policeman accepting a bribe from the guy.

I am walking in a village and see a beautiful fountain with clear water. Next to it there is another fountain where two black people are rowing Venetian boats. A poor old man comes with his sheep and I go up to his wife to eat some tortellini made with their cheese but they are too expensive.

I am in the basement of a house and realize that it is where my son now lives with his mother. He actually has is room now and I look at him playing. He is very cute and I start feeling very sorry that I have to leave him but I cannot understand how he can be still so little after so many years.

I am visiting an old family friend in my native village. He is working in his small workshop and takes me to visit his old parents. They actually live in a small villa and I suggest to the old family friend to move them to his apartment in town and renovate the villa for his kids but it is too old.

I am seating in a living room and stand up to take a big mug of tea but another guy takes it. I then get really angry with him and decide to beat him but he transforms in a super hero. He is actually very small and I pick him up. He is made of very soft plastic and I start breaking it into pieces.

I am in a basement helping the owner of a clothes shop to renovate it. He is mixing cement and I go in another room to start putting it on the wall. As I get back to his room I see that he has already finished putting his cement and that he did not do it where the walls were already flat like I did.

I am with my parents in a kitchen at the bottom floor. We see the the neighbour's son coming to fetch two cups from our table and I notice some tiles built in it. I then have my stepfather to wash them and find that they are flags from different countries. I suggest to paint the table with our flag.

I am walking with my best friend and another guy in the Swedish countryside. They get really fascinated with the landscape and we stop to look at it but see a cow going forth to a bull to get mounted. The latter quickly comes inside her and my best friends also run down to do come inside her.

I am with my girlfriend and get in a café with other people and I get ahead of them to reach her. I also order a cake but the bartender cuts it really thin. I seat down with my girlfriend but realize that we only have a few minutes before our airplane departures. We try to go but have to check in.

I am biking with my stepfather and other relatives on top of a mountain. It is actually made of many small hills and we easily go up but I start to worry that my son is not going to make it. There is actually a big lake ahead and we bike towards it but realize that it is a big waterfall and we turn.

I am walking through my department and see a colleague under evaluation. The students give him a bad grade and I walk out with the director. His assistant is also there and he tells her how he wants to start a course on logics. I then tell him that I wish to join even though it is in a few years.

I am on a hill next to a small castle giving a lecture to many students. A group of them leaves but I tell the other to stay. They all leave and I go in to have a cake with the other teachers. One of them is Russian and tells me what a failure I am but I reply that I am just very bored and jell at her.

I am walking with a guy on a big mountain road and we start sliding down on our knees. It is quite frozen and we gain allot of speed but I get afraid that we will not be able to stop. I then tell him to turn on a little road and we actually end up at next to a lake skipping all the dangerous part.

I am in a supermarket and find a newspaper with the weather forecast. It actually shows the weather in the entire peninsula and I look at the very south where I am. It shows a green color and I understand that it is cold out but then realize that it is the weather for tomorrow and today is red.

I am walking with my Polish friend in an old town. We actually had to pay a full ticket to get in but I see that the roller coaster on our side is fenced and we would have to pay an additional ticket. I then decide to take him ahead in the old town but see that there is a pub where we could stop.

I am looking on a website for a land to buy. I actually go through several to find one that I can afford but end up on the very first one. It is a small ski slope and the real estate agent tells me to look at it very carefully. He then shows me how big it is on the top but tells me to be the first to bid.

I am in a university department when my new supervisor asks me for my new plan. She wants to discuss it down at the cafeteria but I have to check that my kid is asleep. I then do so and go down with her to get a cake for him but she only gets a coffee and sees that I have done no readings.

I am walking with a friend at night. We are actually in the Swedish capital and I show her a shortcut through some old buildings. We end up before some other friends who took another road and we start walking together. I keep behind them and intend to turn left but they keep straight on.

I am seating in the back of a bus and stand up to hit young a young American film maker. An old man seating in the front sees me and wants to call the police but I tell him that he is very stupid to because I was very light. The young guy also says that he was beaten much harder another time.

I am attending a lecture and start singing an Italian communist song. Everyone starts singing along but a student jumps down from a terrace. The teacher then wants to put me and the ones next to me to jail but the guy is not actually dead and rises up. She still wants to put us all to jail.

I am walking with a young girl out of a high school and we start hugging. I feel her big breast and kiss her neck. She starts kissing me and wants to lay down to be fucked. I then take her in the toilette and lock the door to get us all naked. She kneels down to give me a low job but I am dirty.

I am joining a group of students on a small hill but we are called in by the teacher to give a presentation. I then get ready to present my work but the teacher wants someone else before me. I then wait for my turn and try to plug in my computer to project my presentation but cannot find it.

I am inside a barn where my brother-in-law has placed models of modern buildings. There is also an older woman observing them and she kisses me. We then go to my sister at the other end and she tells me that I never got in any vices. As I try to justify myself we hear her daughter crying.

I am seating in a classroom listening to a student presenting an assignment. She asks how much time is left to lunch and I rise my hand showing with my finger one minute. She then keeps presenting but xl look at the clock hanging on the wall and realize that we are two minutes over twelve.

I am in the garden of my former parents-in-law cutting a big metal pipe in two. I actually needed to exhibits my stolen cameras but my father-in-law comes to see it and gets upset. My former wife asks me what is the problem and then follows him to tell him that it is only for an exhibition.

I am in a small airport and get ready to embark from the ground floor. I am actually the last and I realize that I don't have my boarding card. As I look for it an hostess runs from behind and brings me a new one. I then start walking to the airplane but realize that I also lost my silver backpack.

I am in a bus and take a seat by the window. An Arab woman with a big breast takes a seat next to me even though her child his seating alone on the opposite side. She then starts looking out of the window and sees a plant. She thinks it is a leek but I tell her that it is just a tropical plant.

I am on an boat crowded with people getting ready for a party. I disembark and I also walk home to get changed but pass in front of an hotel with a blond maid sweeping outside. She makes sign to me that she will also join the party and I am ready to go but an ugly blond comes out to kiss me.

I am in a room with an old university friend and ask him to lay in bed so that I can photograph his face next to one of his drawings. I stand on top of him and show another friend the picture but they are all taken from the side. I keep searching but cannot find the one I took from the top.

I am in my parents' mountain cottage and receive a message from an old friend. He wants to come by but I have to eat with my parents. I then join them and one of my sisters complains about the clothes I brought them as a present. The other is actually very tiny and seats in a baby chair.

I am inside the metro when a tall gypsy guy comes next to me. I try to avoid him and get out but he is waiting outside a mall with his friends. I then wait that they leave and realize that he left my pouch there. I call immediately my bank to block my credit card but realize that it is still inside.

I am walking in a city and get in a small art museum. It is actually quite big inside and I start walking through the exhibition. I reach a big auditorium and find my old curator friend there who shows me the catalogue of their next show. My photographs are inside but my name is not included.

I am seating with my parents in the last row of a concert hall. Next to me is actually a red hair girl and I ask her where is she from. She is from the States and we start looking ahead at a brick mill attached to a factory chimney. She takes my hands and I kiss her even though I don't want to.

I am with my sister driving through my parents' town. As she points at our old high school professor I realize that the city is made of many small towns. We then stop in one and I go inside a cathedral. The main part is closed but I am able to walk to the top through the corridors on the side.

A man is on the terrace of an ancient Roman palace and sees a fresco showing how the king there used to commit suicide by hanging with his hairs out. He then wants to try it himself but he needs someone to old him and he sees an archaeologist working at the entrance. He then asks him.

I am in an auditorium giving a lecture with my old Norwegian colleague. He is actually playing a long symphony on the piano. His hands are too slow but suddenly he starts playing very vigorously for the grand finale. The piano doesn't sound anymore and he takes out a pistol to shoot himself.

I am seating next to a girl looking at a video playing on her tablet. It shows the Japan and a guy seating on the opposite side asks me why am I watching. He knows that I have already been to the capital city but I tell him that I have never being to the suburbs. He then shows how ugly they are.

I am with my family at a small airport. I am actually queuing with my mother but see that there are some guards ahead of us. They actually move away and I go to look. The airplane is leaving and they are letting everyone in. I then call my mother but she doesn't run out with me to catch it.

I am with my son seating next to a lake. It is actually very muddy and I can see something moving underneath. I am not sure it is a fish but tell my son to leave. There should be a nicer lake with transparent water on the other side but we have to first cross a forest and it is also not nice there.

I am running down a mountain road with my mother. She is actually holding her small nephew in her arms and we reach a village where we hang out with the locals. My mother wants to continue and leave me her luggage to push a trolley with the kid. I then put it in another trolley and pull it.

I am with the cops under a bridge and see a Russian couple. They are two criminals and the cops arrest them. They then remove the camouflage of the guy and the girl lays him on the street to kiss him. The captain then takes her camera and looks into it but I have to show him how to do it.

I am in my girlfriend's attic and see that my American curator friend is inside. He is actually eating and he is very fast. I then tell him that it is unhealthy to eat so fast and he should slow down but he has a meeting in a few minutes. He stops eating all together and tells me about the meeting.

I am in my parents' garage and wait for my uncle to come in. My step sister removes his coat and I notice that my dead grandfather is behind him. I then go to receive him instead and bring him a bottle of orange juice. I poor it for him in a glass and he drinks it without saying anything to me.

I am in an art museum with my girlfriend and she wants to go inside a special room. We go in even though it is cold and I already saw the installation inside. It is a fancy fair constructed by a famous artist and I am upset about how much it must have costed. We then walk out and it collapses.

I am in my apartment's kitchen seating with my department's director. As he is showing me a paper that I should read I notice that a protest is taking place outside. They are throwing stones and I suggest him and another colleague to take shelter. They don't care but I hide under a pine tree.

I am in a metro with my sister and notice a girl with blue eyes coming in. We look at each others and I feel my heart pounding. As she walks ahead to find a seat she keeps looking at me. We actually reach the final stop and I try to write my e-mail address for her but the pen is too thick.

I am in park standing on top of a wooden tower. It is actually my studio and I keep doing my work even though my uncle is waiting for me below. I keep working and he leaves upset but my girlfriend comes. She climbs up to tell me that she has been out with my sister and they are now friends.

I am walking to my parents' mountain place at night and realize that the bottom floor of a nice house has been turned into a pizzeria. I then enter to see how it looks inside but the inner door is closed and I realize that no one is actually going there. They must have closed down for good.

I am out on a road with my father showing me his little bike. I actually have my parents walking ahead and run to reach them. I do so and show them my father biking by. He turns on the main street and my stepfather feels very lucky that he was disguised with sunglasses and a baseball hat.

I am in a room with few other people and my English colleague. They are evaluating whether I should get enrolled in their programme and he tells them how good of an artist I am. There is another colleague with him and she bites an apple to project my project on the wall but the bite is small.

I am walking with my girlfriend in a Dutch city. It is raining and I have actually moved there for good. She got a new job and makes a sketch on a paper to show me what is all about it. She will need to work as a pin up girl and I get jealous about it looking on the sidewalk for things to collect.

I am at my Swedish university attending a course when I see one of the students outside with his son in a trolley. Two cops are actually around him and my professor walks out to see what is the matter. He was supposed to pay the metro ticket also for his little son but did not know about it.

I am showing an old friend my savings on the Internet. He then looks at the different pages and see that the total is actually very little. I don't understand how it can be so little but then read in Swedish that the total is only a tax on my property in my native village but I don't own any land.

I am at a conference and try to show my work to a professor. I then take out a small memory stick with only a few examples but she cannot get much out of it. As I start showing her all the project in my bigger memory stick one another professor criticizes me and I go out to jell at the latter.

I am walking with my son and see a stand selling animal masks. I then go to try one and realize that they spray water. As my son also tries it I put on the big one of an elephant and spray at my son but make a whole group of kids standing behind soaked. The shop assistant comes to scold me.

I am in a shop selling electronics and I go to talk to the woman at the cashier. I want to buy a new tripod for my camera and she has little ones on the desk. She allows me to try one but my camera is too heavy and it bent down on the floor. She then shows me another looking like a desk lamp.

I am walking on a construction site with a large panel. I want to dump it somewhere and try to do it in a corner but there is a caterpillar there. I then walk into a forest but the caterpillar starts following me taking large chunks of earth. I actually end up in an abandoned barn and hide there.

I am inside an empty building and walk up to the other floors even though the escalator is not working. I actually find an Italian doctorate student and see that he can do tai chi by himself. I realize that he does not do it in a straight line but ends up in different sides also going back and forth.

I am seating in my studio with two Swedish professors. They are examining a paper I wrote and the youngest one is positive but the oldest stands up to criticize the way I have installed my work. I then stand up myself and tell him how I predicted all his critic. He seats down to congratulate.

I am with my son on top of a big public terrace. We are leaning against the fence and I realize that it must be the place where he lost his arrow. I then look for it and I see it on the opposite side next to our feet. It is actually all broken in pieces and I don't think it is worth picking it up anymore.

I am walking out of a mall and realize that I am still wearing my wedding ring. I am actually on my way home and I try to remove it but it is stuck. My girlfriend is there and we go to my room to make love but she her mouth is too salty and my parents call us to go have dinner with them.

I am with my son walking in a square and seat down. I then see that my girlfriend is seating on a staircase above. She wants to give my son some chocolate but I don't want and she keeps there. A friend of her arrives and they hug. I then look at them sipping a big and unhealthy energy drink.

I am walking on a small street in a Dutch town and meet a young guy. He is dark hair but he is actually a local and tells me how he has fun. He takes out girls to drink a strong transparent liquor and gets them drunk. He then admits that he also took my girlfriend and I get really jealous.

I am at my parents' place standing in the hallway and editing a film about my stepfather driving an old cabriolet. As I think how stressed he is he actually comes out of his bedroom. He is again very stressed and close our little dog inside. I then hear the dog crying and realize that he is sick.

I am walking passed a barber shop and an hair dresser calls me inside. She wants to attach a small rounded net on my skull and I agree. I then seat down and I can feel that she is actually sawing it directly on my skin. I wonder what it is for but don't feel any pain and let her saw more.

I am watching a man on a small boat in a tropical sea. A local is guiding him but they have a white shark underneath them and they try to reach a small harbour. There is another boat there and they have to continue but the man falls in the water. He is able to go back up without being eaten.

I am in an apartment with some old friends. We are seating on the couch and I realize that the host is Sicilian. She is standing behind us next to her boyfriend. She does not like him and I tell her that my friend is actually from Sardinia but the latter tells her that his ancestors were British.

I am in my bedroom playing an old piano. I am actually pressing down the pedal to keep it low volume but I cannot hear the melody I am playing. It is very good and I let the pedal go but there are also other pedals. I have to release them manually and start playing again hearing the melody.

I am in an auditorium listening to a lecture when the professor asks us students to sing for him. An Italian guy behind me stand up to sing a cheesy song and I also decide to sing but a girl is next in line. I then go out to the bathroom to prepare to sing opera and watch my throat in the mirror.

I am in my parents' garage when my stepfather arrives. He starts asking me how to park the car inside but I cannot remember. He leaves with his sport car making allot of maneuvers and I get in a taxi with my mother. It gets us in a nice area by the water but the driver leaves and locks us in.

I am walking in an old city with some people and try to talk to two girls holding each other. As we stop in a café under a portico I start talking to a guy and one of the girls takes him on a side. He then comes back to me and tells me to stop harassing these girls because they are a lesbian couple.

I am on a river with my son trying to see some fishes through the transparent water. We are actually standing on a rock in the middle of the river and the water starts rising. My son quickly makes it to the other side but I get stuck. I then look in the back and realize that I can still make it.

I am at a conference hosted by my old English colleague. It is about to end and I go down to the technician and ask her to plug in my camera. It shows the video I made of the conference and everyone starts watching it. It also shows me and I get embarrassed but the audience starts applauding.

I am with my sister in an amusement park and see a very big roller coaster. She wants to go there and I convince her to take a safe seat. It is actually detached from the rest and we see the other people spinning below us. We also starts spinning in the middle and start making full rotations.

I am in the office of my old American director and he congratulates for my work. I then go out and try to lock the door behind me but it stays open. I try again and finally manage. As I walk out of the building I realize that I am in a new campus and start running feeling very happy.

I am in a cafeteria with a colleague queuing for food. He is actually telling me of the time in which he was also upset with the other people in our department. He decided to stay away from them like I did but only for a day. Our director is nearby and I move on to get food but it is too expensive.

I am walking with my girlfriend in a forest and see a bear ahead of us. He is actually uphill and he seems too slow to come down but I actually move my girlfriend to one side and the bear turns into a leopard. There is another one behind us and they start fighting between them leaving us alone.