

I am in a parking lot seating in a car next to an important curator. We actually became lovers and I wonder why she chose me but then realize that we met in the same parking lot some time before. She then told me that she lost her job and has become the secretary for the same museum.

I am walking behind a summer school to reach the recycling station but there is allot of high grass with bees. I then go back to the school and talk to a guy who tells me that he also saw the bees there. He was explained that they all stay on the flower and they never leave it because of a disease.

I am in a small village in the middle of the woods and take the train to go back to my apartment. There is actually an old man inside seating with a younger man and I realize that they are Polish. I can understand that the young one is asking the old one how to go to his place after the last stop.

I am watching a film of a man walking in the woods with a military equipment. He wants to attack a little power station but finds one of his friends dead. The police captures him and he is taken in an hotel room where another friend tries to get him in contact with the father of my Polish friend.

I am with my girlfriend pushing a chart across a city. We just took many beer crates to her place with it and are now going to a university but I realize that we should have brought them there. As we arrive a student comes checking the chart which is actually a chair and finds a blocked wheel.

I am training in a university gym and go out feeling very strong. I then go in the changing room and see a guy who used to be in my American high school. He is also there with his small brother and I ask them if they remember me. They used to bull me but now I am much stronger than them.

I am in the courtyard of a big building and walk out with my stepfather. It is actually on top of a mountain and I wonder what will happen if it get destroyed. My stepfather then shows me how well it is constructed with many thin bricks. It is very strong but there is a nicer mountain ahead.

I am with my old American professor in his house. We go down to the basement with his secretary and he shows me a hidden staircase with a big room that he wants me to paint. I actually have to fetch a bus but he wants to take a film with me while we play a card game based on five ducks.

I am watching a movie of a man hiding in a bath tub with a map. His friends have being imprisoned in the same room but he is breathing too hard and a guard comes looking for the map. Other guards have other maps and the man manage to escape across a field but his friends decide not to.

I am in a large empty restaurant and it is very late. There was actually a big dinner but I still want some food and go back to the dining hall. There are some slices of cheese cake but another group of people is coming. One guy is also looking for some food and we start eating the cake together.

I am in a hotel walking down the staircase to a buffet. I am actually sliding down really fast and jump the last staircase going all the way against a wall. An American girl sees me and tells me that she also does these kind of jumps. She is a rich college student and we have breakfast together.

I am on a train going out of the German capitol and seat in front of a young woman. I am actually on my way out and hear her talking Swedish to her little daughter. I then come back and also speak Swedish. She tells me that only her mother is from Sweden but her father is a local German.

I am at an office of a trendy magazine and go to talk to the journalist who is going to interview me. He is seating at a desk working with a big computer and I ask him if he is making the website where my interview will be published. It is actually a book but the interview will only be at the end.

I am driving with my family and end up in a small town that I have already visited. It is actually very beautiful and we go out to look at it. There is a big black cathedral at the far end and I seat down to film it but keep the camera running too long. As I film again the electric lights are turned on.

I am in my parents' old house in their bedroom upstairs. My sister and I are actually very little and we look at my stepfather that is throwing our stepsister in the air. She is actually a baby and laughs allot. As I think that we are not included in the game my mother comes to talk about work.

I am walking in a Swedish city with my old Brazilian friend. We actually want to go to a striptease but find a sign showing that it is closed. We then go in a café to wait for our bus and meet two girls. One of them is studying art and I give her my business card but my website is printed twice.

I am in a big swimming pool with my cousin but it is too dark and we go to the female swimming pool on the opposite side. It is sunny there but my cousin wants to keep on and we start running in a track. I am faster than anybody else and end up running in a soft asphalt good for my knees.

I am walking with my son and two of his little friends. I should go home to cook dinner for them but they stop at a small ice cream place. They order two big balls of ice cream each and choose a cone with allot of chocolate even though we still have to eat and I cannot afford one for my son.

I am talking to my father on the phone and cleaning the moist out of a window. He wants to visit me and I realize that he is thinking to move to my place but I am actually in a car and I have to get out. I then find myself in a villa and go inside to see a father chopping the hair of his daughter.

I am in a metro station with my sister and see that our train is approaching. I then rush to buy the tickets for us but put too many coins and she is not ready. We get down that the train is already leaving and I give her one ticket. They are all black but I can read that they last allot of hours.

I am in a bar and look at the owner serving cocktails. He actually calls me and I approach him to listen what he wants to tell me. He wants me to work for him in his bar and I really like the idea but then he tells me that it is actually going to be transformed into a striptease bar for porno stars.

I am watching a movie with a man trying to get across a boarder in a small truck. A female soldier starts inspecting it and he hides in the ceiling. Another woman sees him but the man beats her and he manages to escape on a train with his companions. They then jump down to reach France.

I am waking up in a classroom with a professor and another student. The latter asks me if I want some coffee and I ask her for green tea. She then goes to a dining room but I also follow her and seat down with the other students to have breakfast. I am not hungry and only want my tea.

I am with my girlfriend seating in a park and see an old man passing by. She actually knows him and we start to follow him but he doesn't turn and we end up in his daughter's apartment- She is actually my girlfriend's cousin and we go in to look at her folding an old bed into an armchair.

I am in a small shop with my mother and check some fancy jackets. I am actually dripping olive oil from my old jacket and the shop assistant spray some powder on it. I then move to an high table but I am still dripping and I take some paper to clean it but the oil doesn't go away and we leave.

I am in an attic and see that an old classmate is trying to rent a room. The landowner is actually from my native village and we listen to him explaining how he had climb from the inside to renovate it. He is the dead father of my stepfather and I go to take my camera to film him but he shuts up.

I am walking in a park and realize that there is a fortification along one side. It is all made of ropes and kids are preparing an attack against their parents. They want to charge them with the snow balls they have prepared during their school break but the parents have already removed them all.

I am at an opening of a small gallery and join some old friends seating in the middle of the main room. As we start talking the gallerist presents the main artist who has just won a big scholarship. He is actually an acrobat and prepare to perform. He has big tattoos but cannot make any jump.

I am driving with my girlfriend up a mountain. It actually gets covered with snow and I feel lucky we are with my sister's jeep. We end up in a small mountain restaurant and I tell the bar tender that I am his age. He then comes out with a glass of wine and I mix it with my girlfriend's water.

I am in a park touching my girlfriend. She is without pants but I anyway stand up and carry her in my arms. There are allot of people walking around us but I keep touching her and we reach a Chinese restaurant where we could have some noodles. I actually already checked before on-line.

I am visiting an institute where a scientist is showing different machines. I follow him in a room where he starts showing a very simple one with a magnet and a Russian colleague starts explaining the physics around it. I am very impressed but she gets stuck and I stand up to explain it myself.

I am in a garage talking to a mechanic about buying a scooter. I ask him where I should keep it and he tells me that it should be under a roof and with a light always on to see if someone is stealing pieces from it. I then walk out and find an actual shop where they are selling new scooters.

I am chatting with two students how wants to study in Austria. I know a good art school there and try to search for it but end up viewing the profile of one teacher. I am then redirected to another page and I find another school that looks very good. I then show it to them but it is in England.

I am in my apartment that is getting dark and see my ex wife arriving with our son. He is asleep on her arms and I go down to help them but they are already coming up and my son is actually limping. He has a broken leg and I see him very much in pain but he finally seats in the kitchen.

I am walking with a young artist in a Dutch city and end up in a market. We then start talking next to some girls selling clothes but one of them interrupts us. She tells me that I am actually wearing her jeans and I realize that I have been there before to try them and I did not give them back.

I am in an empty mall and start withdrawing money from a bank machine. There are actually two men behind me and I cannot digit the right code. I then tell them to step back and I try to digit the code again although another man is looking from the side. I get allot of dollars and walk away.

I am in a American city and walk down to a market selling fake clothes. There are some nice sweaters but they look too big and I go in a pharmacy. I need to buy medicines for an Indian dentist who has helped me but I cannot remember the name. The pharmacists give me a big red package.

I am in a home at night and get ready to go to bed. A woman is actually showering and her husband spit on the bathroom mirror. She then gets help from another woman to beat him up and I put on my pajama to sleep. The other woman is in the same bed and I only seat to watch a film on TV.

I am with my girlfriend in a train station and I take her upstairs to find the right gate for our airplane. There is a hostess sweeping the floor and she tell us that we are in the wrong entrance. I then follow her through a bathroom and get in the right gate but my girlfriend has stayed behind.

I am in a class talking to a colleague when we hear the phone ringing. We don't bother about it but it keeps ringing and I finally pick up. I can't hear the voice well but I reply that I don't speak Swedish and give the phone to my supervisor. It is actually her husband who knows I speak Swedish.

I am watching a movie of a brave soldier crawling to the other side of a room to rescue another soldier. The latter is only sleeping and the brave soldier runs back to his position and then discharges with a black soldier. They go together into an Asian town passing a shop where they sell drugs.

I am running on the frozen grass at sun set and would like to keep there but I have to go back to my son. I then cross the field in front of his house avoiding the neighbours who are barbecuing. Inside there is a couple who is divorced and the woman is only earning the fourth of their properties.

I am on a bus with my girlfriend and show her the sausage our director has told us to save for breakfast. As I explain her how we get two sausages at the beginning of each week she starts caressing the hairs of a tall Italian student seating in front of us. She actually stands up to kiss him.

I am watching a movie of an important priest with a copper suit walking with a timber in the back. He is actually helped by two slaves and makes it to the end. He starts celebrating his victory among other important priests with copper suits but then one comes with a gold dress and they bow.

I am walking in a city at night with an Asian girl. She is in love with me and holds me tight but I find her ugly. We keep walking and she tells me how much she loves me but her face is too ugly and I don't understand how I have ended up with her. It is actually very late and I want to loose her.

I am with my girlfriend and pass by a station where she reminds me to pick up my bike. I then go in but find that it has been broken. I then carry the main part with me down a very high staircase going down in a spiral. My girlfriend is behind me but we loose each other and I get vertigoes.

I am walking in a flat compound and realize that I am actually inside a family's house. I then try to walk out again but end up in the living room where three kids are playing. The mother also shows up but she is not concerned and I also meet the German father who is ready to go out biking.

I am getting in an expensive but old car I just bought from a man who actually still wants to show me how to drive it. I then ride a scooter behind him and we end up on a mountain plateau. We actually stop at one boarder and his son comes out with a frog that jumps out but doesn't return.

I am walking with an old friend inside a fancy compound and he tries to sing to me the new song of a band. I can't remember it and sing the old song but then get in my parents car to go on holiday. My stepfather comes to tell us to stay at the sea side and heal our bones but I will be back.

I am on a green mountain top with my son and a man who takes us to a small playground. From there there is allot of gravel that connects us to another mountain top but I am afraid of crossing. A man with an scary dog crosses it from the other side and I also want to try with my son.

I am walking in my parents' city and come to a modern building. It is in the shape of a girl laying with her legs up and against another building. One of the legs is actually a skyscraper and I go in. The receptionist tells me that the city didn't have the money to make the other leg a skyscraper.

I am back in my former parents-in-law farm after many years. I then go in the house I renovated thinking that I spent so much time and it is now a present for my son. There is actually my dead grandfather inside and we start talking but I am afraid to get caught by my former parents-in-law.

I am with my girlfriend at a station where we should get a train but there is a big line. It starts moving ahead but three guys with an orange uniform stops us at the corner of a small house. They then let us go and direct us on a escalator that quickly makes us pass the line and takes us inside.

I am in my parents' mountain cottage observing the mountains and see a cross. As I remember that it is the place where I have been with my stepfather the neighbour appears. As I look at his beautiful face in the blue sky my mother goes to talk to him and my cousin arrives with allot of buns.

I am in a property I just bought on a hill side and my old best friend comes to visit me. He likes it allot and I tell him about a bike competition coming through here. He already checked the villages where it starts but I suggests him to check the later ones and realize my property isn't as nice.

I am walking on a road and find an empty box of female underwear. A beautiful dark hair Swedish artist sees me and I go to talk to her. She is actually from the Netherlands and I leave her outside while I go in the station to catch the metro. There are glasses and we can still see each other.

I am in a small square and see a crew making interviews about an activist who was just murdered. The latter was my Chinese teacher and I invite them to see an exhibition I made with her portrait. They then start filming me but seat down and I also seat with them hugging the interviewer.

I am in a mountain getting ready to receive my relatives for a party. An old one arrives but he does not say hi to me because of a fight we had before. I then start running down a stream of water and pass a young relative who actually greets me. I keep running down anyway and reach a cabin.

I am in my studio with a curator of a famous museum and another curator. I am trying to show them my website but use an old computer. I then switch to my new one but realize that there is a virus. The important curator leaves and I still try to show the website to the less important curator.

I am walking with a circus performer through an empty and small square. She is getting old but tells me of her recent performances until we meet two of her students. They did not attend her last class and have a good excuse but the performer is angry and tells them to repeat the entire course.

I am in a castle trying to read my colleagues' articles but the radio is on in another room. I then go to turn it off but when I come back I find the TV on in my room. It turns off by itself and I realize that I am actually in a rocket ship. Asteroids are hitting it and the captain prepares for the end.

I am walking with my Polish friend to his apartment and he tells me of a project he wants to do with his American girlfriend. It is actually his project and I propose them to do a work together using three packages inside one another. His girlfriend then proposes to use them separately instead.

I am walking back to my apartment and see a big crowd of young people. They are also going inside but I make my way through to reach my flat. They are actually celebrating a young neighbour who has just graduated and I see him going in a one room apartment with his girlfriend to have sex.

I am in an empty and dark living room. There is some old equipment on the table and I realize that it has been screwed together. There is a VCR on the top and four of the screws are sticking out in the corners. I then take some wire and twisted it around to make an antenna but it is too short.

I am in my parents' apartment seating at a desk with their computer and see their dog in the middle of the living room. It is actually light colored and my stepsister comes to hug him. He actually barks and I understand that he greets her with a nickname. He only does it to his boss who is she.

I am at the university and look in a room at a new teacher. He has some notes on his shirt's pocket and talks reading from it. I then go in another room and there is a student also reading. He has a black print out and I realize that there are pictures of Christ and he composed a religious text.

I am in a classroom with some of my senior colleagues. They ask me to explain them my project and I start writing down a few concepts of a green board but they are not paying attention. As I get into psychology however a German colleague starts paying attention to me and I feel very fluent.

I am in a room with a girl who asks me about an old basilica. There is actually a similar one outside and I show it to her explaining that the inside was actually made by the Romans. We then go down to check it but the girl finds a male friend and we end up going in a fashion department.

I am walking on a main street with some friends and one of them tells me about a model in a building. We then go in the basement of a building to check her out but only find a café. My cousin is there with an old friend and I hug them but the later tells me to order some Californian wine.

I am in a park on a hill side playing music with a band. There are allot of other bands and we are having fun but another band of older people on top starts playing a big trumpet very loud. We then understand that the park is closing and we start descending the hill with all the others.

I am with a man next to a wooden house. He shows me the hole of a squirrel on the unpainted wood and we go up an old staircase. We are going all the way to the top although I am scared. There is a TV crew and we discuss how they can make interviews but they cannot use any zoom effect.

I am going back to an compound thinking of a beautiful girl I saw on a window. I then go in an apartment and realize that it is that of my girlfriend's brother. We will sleep together and I test the bed to see if it is good to make love. They even have two very good mattresses on top of one another.

I am in a park with small mountains and try to go up one with a ladder. There is a boy with an adult already and I decide to try somewhere else. I find another ladder that is free but realize that it goes up a much higher mountain with a rope trail on top. I then just walk around all of them.

I am with my girlfriend in a car and drive her to my uncles' mansion. As we go in I realize that it has been completely restored. There is a restaurant but the waiter is complaining about working there in the winter. As I walk back I find a square and get a free strawberry juice from two girls.

I am with my mother walking on a dry hill and she starts complaining that I am never there. As I look at an asphalt road below she tells me to use my bike more but I tell her that I like to do different other actives. She keeps complaining but I tell her that I can take care of myself and she stops.

I am in a store with a friend and his drunk father. We walk across it and I find some tshirts to buy. The father wants to pay for me and I get rid of an expensive tshirt but the price is still high and he tries cheating the cashier typing a small number. The payment is rejected and I pay with cash.

I am walking to some small mountains and meet an Arabic girl. She wants to follow me at home and I let her but then find that she is in love and waits me in bed. I don't want to go there and keep in the kitchen. I also realize that she is old and ugly and my girlfriend is coming the following day.

I am on a bus with some Japanese girls seating in front of me. One of them is actually writing in a journal and I tell her that I also keep a journal. She is actually quite famous and I ask her if we could compare the journals together but she is writing in Chinese and has to go to the doctor.

I am with two friends at the airport and go to our gate. There is another flight leaving before ours and we wait for all the passengers to check in. As it gets our turn we realize that it is only the three of us traveling and they have a whole plane for us. We see it coming but realize that is a van.

I am attending a seminar with my spiritual friend. A group of Japanese musicians is presenting their music video and he starts telling them how good he finds it. As I am about to tell him to shut up my director stands up to ask them more serious questions and they draw charts on the board.

I am in a class where an older man with mustaches is teaching. He is quite severe and asks random students to go through single chapters of a thick book. I have actually read it all and feel confident if he asks me to do it but he actually asks the best of the class to go through the entire book.

I am walking in a city and find a map where a public bathroom with showers is. I then walk in a small road and find it at the very end. It is actually very clean and I start showering but hear people coming. I then go out but realize that I am in someone's bedroom and I start making the bed.

I am going out of a compound and walk through the bushes of a garden looking at my phone. I have actually got an alert about people commenting on a video I have posted. I go look into it and find that they are short reply videos. One is from my spiritual friend who says that he did not like it.

I am with my son laying in bed. We should sleep but I decide to turn on the TV. There is actually some porn on and I cannot stop watching it. He also watches it even though his mother is in the next room. I really make an effort to turn the TV on but find that I am coming in my pants.

I am going in a basement to throw some garbage and prepare myself for the smell. There is actually very good ventilation through an horizontal opening. I look inside it and find that someone has left large slices of pumpkin to dry there. I then think that someone should come to remove them.

I am in an apartment with a friend. My ex wife is actually seating outside in the terrace and I point her to him. He finds her beautiful and I also try to see her but it is too dark. I then move to the left and finally cross her figure with some purple clouds where the sun is setting but it is still dark.

I am with my sister waiting on a railway. She is actually carrying a basket with toys to sell and the steam trains come. It stops next to us and we go in to sell the toys to the passengers but there is another seller and we try to go ahead of him. A kid has already bought a plastic gun from him.

I am in a small classroom attending a lecture of an old professor. He starts explaining about the evolution of technology but I realize that he is only talking about old technology. I then rise my hand to intervene and say that new technologies cannot be changed but my professor ignores me.

I am looking at a concert with a ban playing experimental music. I like it but my girlfriend does not and we are about to leave but the singer comes down with his penis out. There is an old woman in the front and he uses her scarf to clean it. I want to keep watching him but we are now leaving.

I am on a bus with my kid and the driver announces that we are about to arrive to the final stop. He actually stops in one at the beginning of the city and most of the passengers get off. He then says that he will not drive further if we are so few and I start distributing everyone around the bus.

I am in a big room with many artists when I hear a musician on a small screen playing a religious rock song. My old English supervisor stands up and plug off the cable. We then starts talking about him starting speaking Swedish and he claims that he also begun to use it to teach his classes.

I am in a village with my kid's boyscout leaders. As I move backward I see a very nice mountain and ask my kid if he want to go there. There are even houses at its feet but he doesn't want to go. I then try to photograph it but it is too far and the road where we are standing too narrow.

I am in a bus with a group of researchers. They are actually going to America and I ask a Japanese one how long it will take. They will reach a harbor at night and the ferry will only take one day to cross the ocean. I decide to go with them but then realize that they are actually going to fly back.

I am walking with a girl in a town and realize that it is very old. There is even a portico resembling the one from a famous city. My mother is also there explaining us about it and she takes me to a small square with a medieval parade with horses but my camera is uncharged and I can't film.

I am in the station next to my flat and try to get on a train with my bike but an old friend is watching me. I then cross the platform and try to go down the stairs but he is also by bike and follows me down. I invite him to my apartment to look at the art in my studio but he is there to spy me.

I am standing by a wall looking at an old friend doing a graffiti. It looks really bad and he starts criticizing my way of drawing. I then take his can and spray paint a beautiful face also using colors. I ask the public what they like best and they all vote for mine but my friend still criticizes me.

I am with my dead grandfather in a bus going to my parents' city. As we pass by the industrial suburbs he shows me a certificate of some extra money he is now getting every month from the state. He then explains to me that his pension is not enough and he used a lawyer to sue his bank.

I am in an elevator and reach to the top floor of a building. It is indoor but there is actually a grass floor. I then walk across it and meet a boss. She is actually busy and I go back to the elevator to go down but as it opens again I am back on the top floor and the boss looks at me rather upset.

I am looking at the images I took in an island. I am actually going to exhibit there and I realize that I could put a banner with headshots across the water. It can be too windy but realize that there are some small churches in the island and I could place them there instead but they are too small.

I am in a small room being examined by my old American professor. We finally have a break and I go in another room with two other students but when we come back he is gone and also my laptop. We find the latter on a bed and my director in a garden eating chips and thinking about retiring.