

I am in a car of a friend driving north at night. We actually need to go west and reach a roundabout with a lot of signs. We don't know what exit to take and park on the side to look at the map. I then recognize the name of a town and show my friend how we can drive over the tip of a lake.

I am with my son in the house of a rich lady. I actually put my son in a big basket to pick mushroom and ask her if there are a lot of wild animals out in the forest. She mentions many names and I look out and ask her if there are even whales. As she tells me that it is the case I see dolphins.

I am in a theater watching a performance. An Asian guy frees a big bird that flies in front of me. An Asian lady tries to call him back using a small mouse. It doesn't work and she gets an otter out but the bird fly against it and they explode. The lady then makes sure that her camera is working.

I am driving at night with my old Italian roommate. He tells me about the stadium where he has ended up training in his new university in Australia. It is in the middle of a field and complains how his previous stadium in Italy was so much better. We actually drive nearby and I find it very big.

I am in a villa and see a Dutch exchange student I know seating next to a door. I then go to talk to her but realize that it is another girl and she is seating next to her. She then tells me how she has enrolled into a sport academy but she doesn't really like it and I notice that she is very tired.

I am in a small and dark dining room with my stepfather. We are actually in his parents' old house in the mountains and he tells me how he once went to a famous neighbour and started talking very loud. He then tells me how it was the latter who discovered that he was deaf on one ear.

I am with an old friend at a gas station and see an old bus with the keys on. I then start driving it towards my parents but realize that I have no place to park there. I then make a dangerous turn and check at the gas stations on the opposite side of the railway but they are being renovated.

I am in the office of a local Italian artist. She actually has some photos she took of an old boy scout friend. He is seating in a nearby office and she shows me the photos she has taken all around his face. It looks very cool and I also want the same set of photos but she tells me to stay seated.

I am in my former parents-in-law house and get out of the bathroom. My mountain neighbour is there and complains about a perfume. I then take out the one I used but she thinks it is another one. I try to spray a few times my cheap deodorant and she immediately has to leave the house.

I am in an apartment with an immigrant. We are actually playing with his very ugly small son and I let him walk down the living room. We also go down and the father tells me that he is going with other grown up immigrants to primary school. He is actually paid for it with a normal salary.

I am in a dark reception and find my girlfriend at the very end with another guy. They are actually working for a group of boy scouts and I ask them permission to go further to the camp but their old masters is dying. I then look through a tent and see the scouts collected around the old man.

I am in a mountain cottage and see some ostriches running up the mountain. I then let my two big ostriches to fetch them but they get all beaten up. I then wait for the neighbours kids to come down and hit them with a stick but two of their parents come in the cottage leaving some fireworks.

I am in an apartment with my Polish friend and give him the notification to a residency. We both look inside and find a handwritten message saying that he is accepted. I also open mine but cannot understand what it is written. I turn the letter and find in big characters that I am not accepted.

I am seating under the royal Swedish castle and point my camera where the princess is undressing. She is actually getting ready for bed and I can clearly see her big breast. She lays on a sofa and starts using all sorts of dildos. I take very good pictures and show them to a couple next to me.

I am walking along a shore with the boyfriend of my girlfriend's mother. We are actually talking about his trips abroad and I listen to his future plans. As he is telling me about his equipment we pass by a caravan with some lifted tank-like belts mounted on each side for off roads traveling.

I am walking on a road and pass by a hotel with big windows. I see that one of my students is inside eating and I wave at her. I then go to the reception explaining that I am in another hotel and I want to go in but they don't allow me and they arrange a table for the two of us next to their desk.

I am with my best friend and his girlfriend driving on a road up a hill. My girlfriend is also there and she wants to stop at a village even though it is not so nice. We do so and find a very beautiful church with a lot of people attending a ceremony. As I get some free pizza I loose track of my girl.

I am seating with my dead grandfather in a garden. We are actually on a corner facing a busy crossing and my aunt is also there. She wants a lot of reassurance from us that we love her and I give her that so that she can leave. She does so and I ask my grandfather to show me his apartment.

I am picking up my kid at kindergarten but he is on top of a big wooden slide playing with a friend. I try to go up on a side with small nails but realize that they are for small kids. There are bigger nails on another side and I try there but there are a lot missing and I have to relay on a small rope.

I am behind my barn in the mountains and find a man with a long saw. I think it is automatic and ask him how to cut the grass around the walls but it is manual and I go inside to refill my own. The neighbours' kids arrive and I spill. I then go to cut a big tree but there are too many people.

I am in a small square with my kid and see a group of young Arabs robbing a bank machine. Two of them are twins and they stay behind but one of them comes towards me and want to hit me in the belly. We then run in an empty parking lot where I try to get my Swiss knife out of my pocket.

I am watching the premiere of an action movie. The main character has to rescue a group of kidnapped people from a very large military boat. It is actually getting dark and I tell the group of people belonging to his team that they should not listen to him since I am their former captain.

I am in an airport with my son and present a travel card to the check-in. I just want to know if we have enough credits to go to a restaurant but the hostess starts giving us a lot of flying options. She then checks it with the amount of credits I have and tells me that we cannot fly anywhere.

I am with some friends in a dark restaurant talking to a Swedish guy. He is the son of a famous local musician and tells us how he once made a song pointing the gun against random people. He does it himself and starts singing about traveling while the whole rows of tables moves around him.

I am in a balcony of a classroom when I see a famous German director coming in. He is actually looking for me and comes upstairs talking to me in his own language. I don't understand him but realize that he wants to see my drawings. I show him the ones I was making but they are not good.

I am walking through my mountain village and see a small car coming. There is actually a big dog inside and I go to seat with my kid in a garden. I then realize that it is my property and go inside to check but the neighbour is cleaning the kitchen and tells me that she has inherited that piece.

I am in a big waiting room and see a girl seating in a corner. I then go seat on the floor next to her and she pulls a big blanket over us. She then gives me her laptop and tells me to look for ways to get to the airport with her boyfriend. As I do so she pulls up her shirt and I can see her big breast.

I am walking with my Polish friend and his girlfriend on a smaller road going up hill. The latter explains us that it is a new shortcut that is saving a lot of money to the public transport company. We actually reach a tram station and she throws us two cans of beer but mine starts rolling down.

I am with my American curator in a city at night. We want to show to Chinese girls the other side of a river but realize that it is getting late for our plane. We then run back to our car and I start driving on a road to the airport. I speed up and pass two cars but there are a lot of traffic lights.

I am in a room with an old friend and he draws an electric circuit. I then start explaining him the various parts and he also draws a protective helmet. He does not know what is the wire sticking out to the mouth. He is convinced that it is electricity but I explain to him that it is a microphone.

I am in a small student apartment at night when I hear a girl in the corridor. She is escaping from someone and I let her in. She starts to get undressed and I realize that her bubs are quite small. As she removes her pants she shows me that she has a penis. It is actually that of a small baby.

I am at my parents place at night and hear some sounds. I then go out of my room saying that it is not smart for thieves to come at this hour but it is actually my mother. I actually have half of a coconut and bring it to my little sister even though she is not allowed to have food in her room.

I am seating in the back of a bus next to a girl. She actually comes seating in front of me and we start holding hands. I am not attracted by her and actually fall asleep on her big bubs. When I wake up she is gone and I look on my phones for pictures of her. She was actually not quite pretty.

I am biking with my best friend in the country and get two black guys surpassing us. My best friend catches up with one of them but I stay behind. I then make a big effort and also go fast behind the last one of them. As we reach a traffic light I manage to catch him but not the very first one.

I am in an apartment with my little sister and her friends. She actually invites me to go out with them and claims that she is going to smoke a very heavy drug. I then stand by my twin sister and we whisper to each other whether she is serious. She actually denies it but we now know she was.

I am walking in my parents old town carrying a pizza box. I actually get in a cheap pizza place where my friends are and I see them through the window seating in two different tables. The waiter comes with a cowboy hat and a cigarette in his mouth but doesn't want to let me go to them.

I am in my mountain village and walk behind my barn. My neighbour is there with her daughter and she shows me her new dress. I don't find it so special but congratulate her anyway. I am actually carrying a small bucket filled with water and keep walking carefully but they ask me about it.

I am watching a movie about a man seating in a van with an older man. The latter backs up next to a plane and manages to park right behind the front wheel. As they get off the owner comes and the older man gets him too little money but the young man hugs him and they become friends.

I am in a supermarket and get out without buying anything. The police is outside and they look into the bag I am carrying. There are gas masks inside and I explain that they are for my kid. They also finds some guns and I show them that they can be filled with gas and they are also for him.

I am in a small square of my native village and see my mother's cleaner walking in front of me. She is dressing very elegantly and I wonder where she is going. I actually remembered that she just gave a ride to the airport over night and I start wondering how can we now both in the mountains.

I am in my son's kitchen with my old Chinese boss. I am actually seating next to him and feel very disturbed. I then stand up and offer him a toothpick even though it is way too thick. He takes and as I seat down with him to tell him about my divorce I realize that he is missing the front teeth.

I am watching a movie with some friends and my kid. It is actually finished and they want to replay the same movie but in Italian. I don't object but stand up and go to the kitchen to fetch some food. I then realize that it is actually very late but start serving the potatoes I cooked to everyone.

I am in my barn in the mountains when two kids come in. I then explain them how they can look at different objects inside the closet. One of the kid shows us how he would take an object and kick it. I then get very upset and run after them outside managing to take and beat one of them.

I am in my department's lunch room. I am actually standing next to an old closet and scratch out an etiquette of a colleague from a drawer. He has actually left and one of my colleagues say that I can now take his place but I already have my drawer. I then look at a homeless stealing our food.

I am in a car driving in my old parents' village and pass by the church. I see that my twin cousins are there and I pick them up to reach our other friends. It is actually a one way road and it drives us back to the church. I then decide to back up but my sister is there and she calls my parents.

I am in a hotel room and see a boy sleeping. I actually seat down to do my own work but he wakes up and I realize that there are many other kids in the room. They all come to me and I ask them at what time they went to bed. They show me a scientific chart and I find that they will stay awake.

I am walking down a road to my parents' old house and realize that there are beautiful small hills. I then regret I have never explored them when I lived there. I see a dirt road going through with a beautiful empty house on one of the hills and I also regret that I did not invest my money there.

I am seating in a kitchen table talking to my Polish friend. I realize that his voice is quite bad and he tells me that he spent the night at his parents-in-law. He was very drunk and came to their place very late begging them to open the door for him. They finally allow him to sleep on the sofa.

I am walking in the countryside with an American man. I am curious about how to replant a berry tree using only a branch and he tells me about the tree he got from his father-in-law. As he explains how he transplanted the entire plant his train arrives and he has to run to the next station.

I am walking with my Polish friend's girlfriend in a neighborhood. We actually stop at a house where there is another American girl. We start talking and she tells me that she is from a city in Missouri named after an English city. I then tell her that I am from Italy and we eat chips together.

I am outside a train station with my girlfriend and we hitchhike. A man with a tiny car stops and we go in even if I have to seat on a toilette. He then starts driving and I realize that he has a famous pilot. We stop in an empty theater and I want to take a photo of him but then end up filming.

I am in an apartment with a friend and show her the pictures my father sent me of his house in Canada. It is very beautiful but I realize that my stepfather is there and he might get upset. He actually tells me about a computer program that got very expensive and I know a cheap version.

I am with my dead grandfather in my mountain field and find that someone has put a fence through it. He starts photographing it and I realize that it must be a neighbour with a horse. I then talk to him and he tells me that it is his right. He is very stubborn but I convince him to move it.

I am in a hotel and walk down to the reception where the curator of my next show is celebrating her birthday. She is with the other staff and I realize that they have already shared all the cake. I am actually wearing her leather glove and give it back to her contenting myself of just a drink.

I am walking with my girlfriend through a big supermarket. As we are about to go out again she sees a place where we can buy some takeaway pizzas. She really wants one but I already had one and I look at the guys making it and see that they are immigrants using too much fake cheese.

I am in my Dutch house and see that my son has called me several times. I then call back and realize that it is my parents. They are actually seeing me and I start showing them around the living room. I then go upstairs but my girlfriend tells me not to. I go anyway and find it very messy.

I am on the phone with my ex and find that she is in bed with her black new boyfriend. He starts asking me whether it is not too much for me to travel back and forth and I tell him that my friends travel way more. He then tells me that we should talk more about it and I propose him to meet.

I am walking on a small road and get blocked by a small car. There is actually my Polish friend inside and we walk together to a big square crowded with graduating doctorate students. As we joke about putting a bomb there we see that there are many sculptures of big hands all around.

I am walking in a neighborhood and see that someone has thrown stones at the windows. I then realize that my son leaves there and I immediately check his window. It is perfect and I check if he sleeping inside but then realize that he is no longer there and call his mother to ask where he is.

I am in my university and see that my supervisor is in a meeting with my other colleagues. The younger ones are actually in a classroom and I tell one about my project in the mountains. An old classmate is also there and starts searching on the Internet for the exact location finding my house.

I am in a football game and manage to take a picture of the entire stadium even though it is quite empty. I then concentrate on the game and see one player coming very close to the golly and throwing the ball over the goal keeper. The latter manages to catch it and throws it back on the field.

I am inside a museum and come close to a door. There is a babysitter with a kid on the opposite side and I describe them the beautiful things I see. The room is showing the art collection of an Italian poet and I find it quite boring. I then open the door and realize that the babysitter is a gypsy.

I am walking on a road at night to reach my son's apartment. I actually forgot something and go back to a small restaurant owned by an old relative. I steal a long spear and get back on the road. I actually hear him talking to another guy in the forest and I hurry down the road not to be caught.

I am in a kitchen with my Polish friend and his girlfriend. There is also another couple and I claim that the tea we have made is heavier than theirs. It seems correct but then they pull out a big jar filled with olives and I know we cannot win even though they have fill it with too much water.

I am in a meeting with the curator of a big museum. I have actually installed large blue sculptures all around the big staircase. It is an old temple and the curator decides not to have my sculptures there anymore but to use them as some kind of containers for the visitors to throw trash.

I am with my Polish friend in a parking lot and tell him that I can follow him with my car to drop his rented car. Two tires are actually flat and I go in a shop to ask if they can fix them. There are some family friends waiting but I ask first and they tell me they can get the car ready in one day.

I am working in a studio and an old American guy calls me to switch a camera with another. A girl is also there and she helps me but then we have to download new content for the guy and I find that my browser has changed. Her browser has also changed and she tries to reserve a train ticket.

I am in a cafeteria observing some guys seating on a round table for a job interview. They are actually asked to read a passage from an old book and recite it. The interviewer comes to me but I did not pay attention to what the others had said and improvise saying a few sentences for too short.

I am in a parking lot looking in my car's engine when a girl with a very short t-shirt comes towards the fence. She is actually wearing a ring I gave her and observes me while I fix the last things in the engine. I want to take her for a ride but she leaves and I realize that I have a cool cabriolet.

I am at a restaurant eating lunch with a southern Italian couple. I tell them that I wish to be back in their region and that I used to go there every summer when I was a kid. I remember the forest burning during the month of August but the girl tells me that the worst month for fires is in April.

I am in a big shop and ask an assistant for a laptop component. She then shows me a the battery of a new laptop sold for very little but I cannot afford it and go with my cart to another shop assistant. He gives me a new kind of battery for a phone by explain to him that my phone is very old.

I am with my son in a park looking at the training equipment I just bought. As I check a rubber to put around my neck to work my biceps out I see my son running down to a road with a bar. It is bent and he tries to play hockey but I tell him to go away from the road and play on the other side.

I am in an apartment and hear an old American couple talking outside. They have a very nice Southern accent and I take out my camera to record them. As I try to point the camera as low as possible not to be caught I realize that there is a small kid. His face is actually that of an old man.

I am seating on a road with a friend when a black beggar comes. He sells us a bag of oranges to make juice but when I am about to pay him he steps on them with his dirty shoes. I then don't want to pay him anymore but he keeps begging and I check that he didn't step on my blue toothpaste.

I am in a metro with my girlfriend and some important artists. The train seems to come to an end and I get out but they all stay inside. I then think that they are playing with me but the doors close and I realize that there is another stop. A new train comes right after and I get straight inside.

I am walking on a beautiful road in the forest with my girlfriend and my kid. We are actually exploring higher mountains up north and I see them going down to a sunny valley filled with yellow flowers. I also want to reach them there and find a path going down but there is no longer any sun.

I am swimming in the ocean with my girlfriend and my son. It is actually winter and I am amazed how warm is the water. My son really likes it and goes further out to swim but it is time to go back and I try to reach him. I then realize that the water is very shallow and I should not worry.

I am at a party but keep on the side thinking about my project. My sister is also there and sees that I am not with my other friends. She then comes my way and tells me that I will have to go to another party that an old friend of ours is giving at his place. I actually want to skip that one too.

I am next to a river and see people swimming. The water is blue and I also jump in but the current starts taking me very fast away. I then swim really hard to go to the opposite side where there are a group of old friends standing on a pier. I want to get on it but they recognize I am right wing.

I am at a restaurant talking to a local artist when I see my uncle coming forward. He has just participated to the elections and thanks the latter. He has actually the bag with all the votes and explains us that many of his supporters came from a fraction from which the local artist belongs to.

I am in the small shop of a gas station when a black beggar asks me for water. I then buy two glasses for us and the shop assistant tells me that I can only pay for one big glass. He then splits it in two and I pay for it but realize that he is also black and he could have given the water for free.

I am driving in a big road to my mountain cottage. It is actually dark and I reach a red light but it is free and I keep driving together with another car. I go very fast but still I do not find the exit to go up the mountains and realize that it is very far. I actually have to drive that road every day.

I am walking on a bike path and see a large cement block over my motorcycle. I then realize that it has been taken from my barn. I go to check and find my stepfather working there. I also start taking planks down from the ceiling but he has no proper gloves and I realize I am full of supplies.

I am in a car talking to some friends and we pass in the middle of a military airport. There is a very cool plane with smaller planes piled on top. As we pass it I can see that we are close to the ocean and ask the driver to stop. There is a beautiful resting location but he keeps driving south.

I am with my son and my girlfriend inside a building at night. We are actually illegally there and I hear a security guard coming our way. The room where we are is small and with no exit but we manage to go on top of some metal closets. My son can stand and I realize that we are small dwarfs.

I am biking with my old friends up the mountains and guide them on a valley promising that we will be soon back to my native village. We do actually reach a village but we still need to go uphill. As I get unsure I ask a girl walking towards me and she tells me to go the other way downhill.

I am in a living room checking for the schedule of my examination. I am the last one and my old supervisor plays the song that I am supposed to sing. I actually don't know it and I stand up to tell him if I can have another but see that my piece of meat is already burning in the fire next to a pig.

I am in a storage and see that a guy is selling my prints. My Swedish curator wants one and I go talk to him. There is actually an auditorium on the opposite side where half of my prints have been installed. He finds them too faded but I tell him that it will be very impressive when I put the rest.

I am walking with my son in a dry highland in Asia. There are Western people driving safari jeeps and I promise my son that we will soon arrive. We are actually carrying polluted tap water and I stop at a bar to buy milk before we reach a very beautiful beach with only a couple laying to tan.

I am in a car with a friend going up the mountains. We should turn down to a village but the road is actually a field. We then go forward and ask a lady who tells us to go the opposite way and invites us to go in their house. She then tells us about all the shops the we can find in that village.

I am in amusement park with my girlfriend. She is actually holding a baby and we have to climb down a wall but I am very slow and I create a big queue behind us. My girlfriend with the baby then goes first and I she just walks down. I then realize that it is not a wall but a wooden staircase.

I am in an airport and go to a bar to get an hamburger. The shop assistant asks me what kind of sauce I want and goes to fetch it. I then pay for it with my card but it is not accepted. It is actually my driver license and I pay with my card but the shop assistant tells me to wash myself next time.

I am seating at the edge of a park observing the nature. My girlfriend in the middle cooking sausages. I actually see some very nice birds flying in a very unpredictable way. As I show them to her they come our way but she doesn't seem to care so much even though they have leopard skin.

I am looking at a newspaper and see the photo of a young leader of a movement. He is not the one I know and I look at other pictures in which they show the other people involved. I observe a group photo and recognize the main assistants. As I look back at their leader I finally recognize him.

I am in the backseat of a car and my grandmother's brother is in front. He was actually diagnosed with cancer in his neck and I touch him there crying. He tells me that there is no problem and I walk out to the entrance of his villa. His daughters and sons are there and I give them condolences.

I am in a bar with my Polish friend and we start making our own pizza. He is more ahead of me and almost finish. As I spread the dough it solidifies turning into a good looking pizza. I then spread pieces of mozzarella cheese on it but they are too thick and I forgot to put the tomato sauce.

I am looking on the Internet for an hotel. I actually find a restaurant giving free rooms on a Greek island. I book it immediately without asking my girlfriend but then realize that it can be the island where the refugees arrive. I then double check on a map and realize that it is next to Turkey.

I am on a car with my supervisor and show her the surrounding of a village. It is actually all green pastures and I explain to her that they did not build around it. We come to an old site with some concentric dikes. In the middle is the pond where my ex wife defended her doctorate degree.

I am under a big bridge and reach a pillar with a staircase going around it. I then start walking up but there are big gaps at every turn. Also the cement handrail is too low and I try to use a metal rope to get over a gap but I cannot see the other side and fall back holding myself suspended.

I am in a classroom with a blond girl on my knees. It is my turn to talk and I stand up making her fall. I then apologize to everyone and start telling about the three people I plan to interview. Two of them are dead and as I am trying to talk about the third my ex calls me to talk about our son.