

I am walking in an amusement park and find my son in a queue. He is going again in the same attraction and I follow him inside. He thinks it is the best but gets soon bored and we walk out again in the fields looking for another attraction. I let him guide but we end up in an abandoned zoo.

I am in a room with a Jewish professor. She is seating on a chair while I am seating on the floor carving a wooden sled. I need it to carry my project and she tells about my Sicilian roommate who has built a similar thing. I then try to attach mine on a bike but a screw breaks and it all fell apart.

I am at a university and notice that the exchange students who are supposed to attend my lecture are already waiting in the hallway. I then go talk to a secretary behind the reception desk to confirm that I have all the audio visual equipment but one of the students have switched classroom.

I am walking in an office with a paper I need to have signed and find my old Jewish girlfriend. Her eyes are very blue and I seat in front of her greeting. She greets back and explains to me the big model she has build of a mountain. There are a lot of creatures but some of them are retreating.

I am in a conference room seating on the floor and my philosophy professor starts telling me about my essay. I then try to seat next to him to hear him better but only find a chair on the opposite side. He is very severe and tells me that there is a chance that I might not pass his course.

I am walking in a city with a friend. I am actually not paying attention and start walking too much to the left of the city center. My friend then tells me we should go a bit too the right towards the city hall. I know it is quite disgusting there with trash behind it but he insists on going that way.

I am in a classroom and find a pile of corrected essays from my philosophy teacher. I pick one up and realize that it is from the best student who is also a philosopher. I start looking through it and find that he has written very little for each of the questions and that the comments are negative.

I am in a museum and realize that they are exhibiting my old paintings. I then walk with a Japanese gallerist and he shows me how I can scratch the surface using the plastic frame around them. It is a nice effect and we keep walking to an auditorium where my photo panels are dismantled.

I am walking at night through a street with a lot of people. One girl recognizes that I am a famous artist and approaches me with her friend. They want to take me to their apartment and I follow them but end up in a clinic. They then tell me that I should pay them before they take my organs.

I am with my parents in an old city and reach a courtyard where we lay on some stone benches. They are actually made for an association of carpenters and my mother recognizes one that do plastering. I then pick a chart and try to ask him if he can come plastering my house but he leaves.

I am on a tram seating next to two Japanese women. The older one starts pressing her knee against my leg. I then stand up and look for another seat in the middle but only find it between two other girls. There are many clothes of the same brand and I realize that I took the place of a third girl.

I am in a beautiful house with an amazing view over the mountains. There is a big table in the middle and many are seating listening to a Venetian priest. He tries to tell them about the reasons why the world is changing but I get bored and make a strange voice to explain the paradigm shift.

I am with my spiritual friend in a shop selling ceramic objects. They are not expensive but we keep looking and discussing about a trip to a zoo. There are also two other guys drawing on a stone and my friend invites them to come with us. I then tell them we are going in the north tip of Holland.

I am outside of a big auditorium waiting to present. I am actually the next speaker and I try to start my presentation. There is a banner and I have to click it several times before it goes away but then I still cannot open my presentation. They call me inside and I think I will use the white board.

I am driving an old sport car at night. There are other people inside and the road has many turns but I keep driving very fast. We reach a gas station and they tell me I should get the gasoline paid by another couple that did not prevent us to get a fine. I ask them but they refuse to even a bit.

I am in a perfume laboratory working and I decide to walk to another laboratory to work the rest of the day. As I am about to walk there I actually walk back to the former lab to inform my boss but there is only an homosexual colleague who starts showing me a video-game with robot skeletons.

I am outside of a cultural association with two girls. As they deliver a speech I start drawing an hexagon around them. They leave and I keep drawing other hexagons to make a beehive but they get too twisted and I walk to them even though they are small and ugly but inside is very beautiful.

I am in a small chapel with my engineer and tell him that I want to reuse the timber in my barn to build a staircase. He doesn't like the idea and we move to a even smaller chapel to discuss it. An elegant woman follows and as we start talking another one seats with her knees against my legs.

I am walking behind my barn and see a man standing inside. He is very upset that we started renovating even though I explain him that we actually had permissions. He doesn't like that I removed the wooden floor and I try to tell him that it was rotten but he is standing on a perfect floor.

I am walking in an airport with my son thinking of the money I still owe him for his birthday. There is no one around and as we reach the security check there are three different options. One of them is marked with a sign saying seaside and my son goes there knowing that his going on holiday.

I am on a road next to my forest and see a guard checking. I then take a big hammer and hit his head. As I try to hide his dead body I hear my parents talking to another guard. I then hide in a small room and wait for her to check her but we end up together in a pharmacy to clean our wounds.

I am with my son on a small hill where I just planted fruit trees on one side. He is actually biking down the opposite side and I run after him. I then realize that that side is much sunnier and there are also fruit trees. We are going towards the setting sun and I manage to run faster than him.

I am in a villa seating in the dining room and see my twin sister arriving by bike with her husband. She is using my racing bike and the front wheel is flat. I then go out with my stepfather to fix it and he shows me some screws on the ceiling where to hang it. He has all the tools we need.

I am on a beach looking at a modern Asian city with many skyscrapers. There is actually a group of tourists with me and we should bike there but the leader takes us on a country road. As we turn back to the sea we end up on a isolate village that is closer to another big city but it is too dark.

I am in a basement seating on an office chair and holding my baby daughter. I remove her hat and find that she has blond and thin hair. I then ask her grandmother to take a photo of her so I can send it to my mother. As we are being photographed she starts talking and writes her name.

I am walking in a mall with my twin sister. As we go out of a big shop she tells me that I should train more my heart. I then tell her that I walk a lot but she also tells me that I should consider jumping. As we arrive to the end of a corridor I see an immigrant market and stop to photograph it.

I am with a friend in the square of a small town. On one side is a beautifully renovated villa and she tells me that it belongs to my Polish friend's girlfriend. My relatives' villa is actually on the other side of the small square but it is to be fully renovated. I then wonder about our ancestors.

I am in my parents' town walking towards the city center and start following two American girls. They are not cute but I talk to one of them that is blond and she leads us to the back stage of ancient theater. We then start walking the stairs that are in the back of the roof but it is too dangerous.

I am in a big pub walking on the edges. I am actually climbing the wall vertically going from a bronze handle to another. A Sicilian man is drinking a coffee below me and asks what I am doing. I then explain that I am trying to reach the door of my apartment but one of the handles is missing.

I am in my mountain house and see a person outside. Is a friend of my old neighbour and the latter takes us to see an abandoned house in between us. The kitchen is nicely renovated and I wonder where the other rooms are. His wife then shows me a very big room leading to the second floor.

I am with my stepfather walking down to my fields and come to a school. There is an old four wheeler car parked outside but the wheels are too old. As we talk to the owner a white car comes up in full speed. It is is my girlfriend driving from the airport and she comes out to kiss me.

I am with my old friends walking in the mountains and we go inside a cave. It splits in two parts going one to the river and the other to the sea. A friend's girlfriend decides that we should follow the latter and we reach a cave where some guys are dressing with blue bubbles ready to attack us.

I am in a car crying for my girlfriend who joined a professional football team and she is now leaving for Turkey. A man is waiting for me outside and he takes me to a church where a priest is playing the audio from a video-camera device. It is the voice of my grandmother and I start crying again.

I am seating in a waiting room and turn around to take a blond beard. There is a couple changing their baby and I try not to molest them. The beard is actually from my baby and I show it to the red hair friend of my girlfriend. She then takes her phone out and makes a selfie with it.

I am in a gym training karate. As I look through the windows I realize that we are on a boat and there is a faster boat speeding in the horizon. I try to take a picture of it but it disappear behind an older boat I have already photographed. I then take a photo of a speed car followed by the cops.

I am in a house with my twin sister when our biological father arrives. He starts showing us on his phone black and white pictures of his house and I ask him where it is. He then tells us that it is in California but switches to another house and tells my sister how he planted hundreds of roses.

I am following a couple down a forest and realize that they are made of ice. I am actually skiing and end up in a square where I loose track of them. There are many buses and I hear them calling me from one of them. I then approach it but my skies are too long to get inside and I remove them.

I am in an office taking a pile of papers to my sister. She is actually with my mom talking to an hairdresser. They have actually paid the latter to cut the hair of their maid but then take the daughter of the hairdresser on a chair. The latter has beautiful long hairs and they start combing them.

I am seating at a restaurant for lunch with two of my colleagues. The table is big and I start teasing with my German colleague about her husband. She is drinking a cocktail with a straw and tells me that he got cancer in his mouth. I then turn serious and try to tell her how sorry I am for him.

I am with my son watching a film on TV. There is a man filling a bottle of gasoline on a motorbike while driving it. As he finishes he is able to jump over a big pine and lands in a different road going up a mountain through a village. It looks like my village but then realize that it is a bit different.

I am in a large tent attending the conference of a political party. We are actually in between two highways and a minister says that the secessionist party is like a grass growing in a waiting area. I actually thought he was one of them but then realize that he is he is belonging to the opposition.

I am driving a big pick up and park it at a gas station. My mother is also there and gives me a bike without wheels. I then go to her place to fix it and meet my stepsister who congratulates for the bike. I walk to the attic to check if I find some wheels for it but there are none and I give it up.

I am walking a road down the mountain but there is too much traffic. It is actually a dirt road and I wonder why they do not asphalt it. As I reach I curve I notice that even dormice are allowed to drive from one place to another. I even see one of them coming up and turning right next to me.

I am in the university lunchroom with some colleagues. We have pastry on the table but it is almost gone and I start complaining that I did not have any. My supervisor hears me and takes a freshly baked loaf of bread out of her pierce. She then puts it on the table but my colleagues take it.

I am at a meeting with my old philosophy professor and he agrees that I should read the books of a Roman philosopher. He then warns me that I should refer to specific pages in the book and gives me one that I should study carefully. It lists the ruins of the villa where the philosopher lived.

I am in a zoo with my son and enter a shop where the sell small snakes of different sizes. We order few of different colors but the shop assistants take out very small ones and puts them on a stick. I then hold the stick while he gets bigger ones but realize that the small ones fall in my pants.

I am in a bar with a group of famous designers. They ask if anyone is going to Asia to do a case-study for them. I am actually going to China but decide to leave the meeting. As I am out on the street I think it can be actually good for my curriculum and go back inside accepting the commission.

I am out in the small garden next to my mountain cottage and find my neighbour laying on the grass. He is actually very young and I seat down next to him to talk. The sky is blue but there is smoke in the air and I quickly get back in my cabin and find flames on top of the new stove I bought.

I am walking in a university corridor and hear people doing different lectures. I get in a classroom where they are having one on philosophy and listen to a student commenting a book. Opposite to him is a colleague and he contradicts him using a Roman philosopher. I start telling about him.

I am walking in a city at night and reach an outdoor disco with a Arab DJ. No one is dancing and I look through his CD. I take on with me but then bring it back and go to another disco in a basement. An old friend is there and she tells me that my girlfriend was also there with another friend.

I am looking at a program with a famous motorcycle racer wearing a pair of skies but standing still in the middle of the slope. There is also a rival going downhill and I realize that it is a competition. I then expect the former also to sky but he starts going backward and too slowly to compete.

I am with my aunt and uncle on a dirt road. My cousins are also there and I realize that they have just been looking at my house. We are actually on flat country and and the house is there but has to be completely renovated and my aunt tells my uncle to give me a bill worth a lot of money.

I am in a waiting room with a couple and their kids. We then decide to stand in a circle and start dancing together but one of the kids is actually without an arm. He then pulls his jacket back up so that he can give the sleeve to another kid but I realize that the latter is without his little leg.

I am standing on a demolished house thinking of a way to renovate it. Below me there is a big Russian man opening a small garage and I see that he is pulling out some rebars. As he starts talking to another man I get down and start running away with them into a park where I plan to hide.

I am walking in the small neighborhood in the mountains and meet a couple I have never met. I then continue towards my cabin and find another neighbour laying on the grass. I ask her about the couple and she stands up to show me the fields they own but parts of them are actually mine.

I am in my ex wife's apartment and hear that my lesbian colleague is in the garden. She is carrying her small baby through the compound and wait her at the door. She is actually going fast through it not to catch any cold but I stop her and caress the head of the baby which is hairy and blond.

I am walking in a resort with my girlfriend. Our little son is with us and a group of tourists stop to see him. One of them lifts him and I realize that he is a she. We then keep walking and tell my girlfriend that our daughter is much more quiet than my son but the realize that she is handicap.

I am in a room with a big bed and lay opposite to my Polish friend and his girlfriend. They actually have a gypsy girl with them and she starts dancing on the bed. They leave and she throws herself next to me but I find her really scary and go to yell at my friend to get her out of our house.

I am driving up a mountain with a guy on my side. We are talking together while looking at a cliff behind the green mountain we are crossing. It actually disappears behind it and we reach a flat road. It is completely in the shadow and I realize that I am driving too fast and there is ice on it.

I am in a small library waiting for my girlfriend to check the Internet on a computer. I then walk through the bookshelves but then go back to see if she is done. She is actually between two other guys also checking the Internet and there is an Italian older lady laying half naked next to her.

I am walking on a country road and reach a shop selling different kinds of local fruit trees. The seller is an old man with a long beard and I notice that they sell a tree making black pears. They are actually chestnuts and I keep walking discovering another garden shop with a bearded man.

I am in a park and see many yellow signs drawn on the grass. I then realize that I made them to play with my kid and start walking along them. I get a phone call from the police and I tell them about my wife's aggressiveness. She is actually with a friend in front and I throw her a piece of wood.

I am walking on a road and see a hardware store with its stuff outside even though it is Saturday. There are old machines lined up everywhere and I enter to ask for a screwdriver. An old man gives an entire set with also some marking pens and an additional set which I put back on his desk.

I am watching a film about people building their own cabins. One of them is in a dark and cold lake and I look at how some old fishermen construct the base using mud. I don't find it very solid but then the next scene shows them drinking tea inside under a very compact roof made of straws.

I am seating in a motorcycle shop waiting for a shop assistant to help me. A young pretty woman come seating next to me and she recognizes that I am a famous singer. She actually took part to a show where I was about to be beaten and I pretend that I was actually hit on the forehead.

I am on the phone talking to an old university classmate who is going to a party. I am actually going to another party and follow a Jewish girl on a corridor with several restaurants. We reach a dusty square and I see a Mexican guy on a wheel chair and a woman selling him an expensive soda.

I am walking with my sister across a pedestrian bridge in a foreign country. She then tells me that credit cards don't work there and I anyway keep walking to the city center. I am actually afraid that they will steel my camera but then reach a castle with young Romanians and start filming.

I am in my ex wife's boyfriend villa walking through the big living room. They actually broke up but I can hear her upstairs with our son who is crying because he doesn't want to go out. As I hear her forcing him I reach the garden where I decide to put down some small planks I was carrying.

I am walking on a park and find my former mother-in-law bending on a bush. I then realize that she is got really old and keep walking across a street where I meet my former father-in-law. He actually did not age but his eyes are wet and we hug. We soon detach again and I find myself crying.

I am in a lobby of an hotel with my son in my arms. I am getting tired and go to a receptionist to check-in with my credit card. It works and I go upstairs but find an empty room with a large palm tree where my old Swedish professor wrote me a e-mail complaining about my conduct with them.

I am in the pile of rocks next to my barn when my fiance loses her ring. The village elders start looking immediately with metal detectors if they can find it. They can't and I go to my apartment to look for a tool to lift the rocks and find that my neighbour has placed one in front of his house.

I am in the room of a boat with a rich lady. There are no windows to look out and I turn off the electric light saying that the boat went black-out. It was only a joke but it is actually true and we spend our days recording the birds we hear outside. One kind comes to eat all the food supplies.

I am sleeping in a small dormitory full of people. There is a black woman next to me and she goes to the bathroom but doesn't come back. A big black man comes instead of her and lays next to me. He puts a hand in front of my mouth to suffocate me but I move and the other people wake up.

I am with a man running down a steep forest and find a path going on the side. We reach a city that it is getting dark and go in a mall where a man starts talking to us. He is actually a criminal and I see his fellows ready to kidnap us. We then start running again taking random small roads.

I am in a field walking next to a road and meet my parents. They brought me a pair of new sneakers and a rain jacket. I then put them on and walk back across the field. I actually reach my barn and find that there is a old man waiting for me above and another one is blocking my way above.

I am in a class with a colleague to teach some Japanese students. I want to talk to them about electronics but some of them gets bored and the rest goes to follow the other colleague. I only have one student left and decide to go more in details with an electronic circuit but he is not interested.

I am with my girlfriend walking in a foreign city and I tell her that I would like to leave a day earlier. She then takes me to a travel agency and asks whether it is possible to fly out today. They check for us and I see that we have to pay some extra money but I realize that it gets more expensive.

I am walking with a class of young students in an old village. I am actually behind and start looking at the sunset but realize that some of them are already going back. I then decide to follow them and we reach a small lake where I make a film with the belfry of another village in the back.

I am seating on a dirt road with my mountain village carpenter. I explain that I want him to do some extra work for the mounting of the windows and he starts joking that there is a lot to be done. He actually would like some women around and I realize that there are some seating close to us.

I am with my Polish friend looking at an house he wants to buy. He wants to rent the basement to a band and a room to an artist. It is actually quite old and he adds that it is very expensive. I tell him that I would never even dare to buy it but he says that the interest of the mortgage is low.

I am in my barn plastering the walls when I see my girlfriend coming with our old neighbour's daughter. I haven't seen the latter in a long time but I anyway keep inside and let them come in. She is really critical about the plastering and I realize that it is not straight and I made a big hole.

I am in a cliff over a beach looking at a guy chasing a woman down to the water. They are actually being filmed but I find the guy not too convincing. I then also run down and tel him to really pretend he is chasing her but the latter is gone and we have to go back up with an old piece of wood.

I am with my cousin driving in the mountains but the road becomes too narrow and we start walking. We then go down a forest but it gets too steep and I go down a small cliff. He then also starts to come down letting stones roll against me. I then tell him to stop and hide behind a big tree.

I am with my girlfriend in a Swedish city and get approached by a dark hair lady. She starts talking to us in Arabic and we go forward to an hotel for business men. They are all well dressed and I anyway go up to the last floor to get some food. I pick a roasted corn with melted chocolate.

I am at a restaurant with some friends and see that my stepfather's cousin is eating a pizza and giving bites to a dog. I then tell her that he is going to get spoiled but she gets very angry. I keep firm in my opinion and repeat what I said but she gets even angrier and leaves the restaurant.

I am at a party with my girlfriend and I ask her when she plans to leave. Her friends convince her to stay and I get angry. I then leave by myself and start walking out on a corridor but realize that we are suspended high up and I will have to walk down a ladder. I then go back feeling very afraid.

I am on a bus seating next to an artist holding his small son. Another artist gets in and seats in front of us also holding his baby son. As one of them tells me about the neighborhood outside we reach a big conference room where I quickly select a place for myself where to spend the night.

I am in a museum with my girlfriend and she introduces me her student. He is actually a very talented graphic designer and I ask if I can speed read two of the books he has written. One of them has his poems and I skip it but the other has a black and white animation he made on nature.

I am having dinner with my parents and their friends when my stepfather says that I cannot think of putting my things in a relative's apartment. He says that if he dies I will have to buy it but I explain to him that it is only a temporary situation before I move my things to my new barn.

I am in my old bedroom from when I was a teenager. I am actually seating on a desk facing the wall and the family priest comes in. He wants to know about my art project and I start telling him about it but then notice an opening in the ceiling. I can see a small attic and a hole without window.

I am in my mountain cottage and meet my neighbour. He has just been to the hospital and I haven't seen him in months but he anyway gives me a letter. It is hand written and I realize that he agrees to rent his apartment to my girlfriend's brother even though he already found another place.

I am in a disco and walk next to an old fire place. I then see my spiritual friend talking to a guy with blond and straight hair. As I pass them I hear that the latter is telling my friend to start behaving with his sister. She is actually ahead with other girls that my friend has tried to harassed.

I am walking down a dirt road in the forest and turn. There is a guy coming up by bike and I ask him if he can cut through the grass. I tell him that I couldn't but he actually has an electric engine and manages. I then keep walking down and tell an Indian couple to walk up to see the view.

I am on a field at night with my old friends. I haven't seen them for a long time and hug them but see that some stay in the back. Among them is my best friend and I go to hug him but he surrounds me with the other people and they decide to wrestle me although my shoulder is broken.

I am looking at the Internet and find an e-mail from a Japanese fan who found a grammar mistake in one of my dreams. I then search for my website but find my biography and discover that someone has added some statistics. He claims that I have only used a certain amount of objects a day.

I am in a small kitchen with two other guys. There is a very big white puppy below me and I pick him up as if it was a baby. One of the guys then tells me to be very careful and I get afraid that it might bite my arm. I then carefully place the puppy down but it is very fine and nothing happens.

I am with my mother at the supermarket and she asks me if I have all the tools I need to renovate my barn. I am actually wearing a black mask and we go to the cashier. In front of us there is a cute woman with her friend and I pull out a plastic shovel with a sword breaking the package.

I am in my son's new classroom and seat on the steps thinking that it is full. There is actually space for me and the teacher calls me up. I then seat with the other students and she starts showing a three dimensional map of the world slowly zooming into Normandy where she has a story to tell.

I am in a station with my spiritual friend and we manage to get on a train. We don't have a ticket and lay on the floor at one end of the train. There is a model in front of me and I can feel her body with my elbow. I remove it and she shows me a map with the village in Sweden where she is going.

I am queuing at the airport and see that my Polish friend is in front of me. He turns and tells me that he has just being on a long trip up north and that it why we did not speak to each other. He then shows me the map of a big mountain where he hiked and an ancient path made by a king.