

I am on a train and meet an Italian guy. We actually reach the final destination and he gets off talking to my girlfriend and walking down the platform together. He actually starts touching her behind the neck and I keep the distance but he turns around and fires two small rockets against me.

I am driving my van with my son and reach the seaside. The beach is very narrow and I notice that other people have parked their car on it. I then also drive down and try to park it but get stuck in a hole. I then go out to see what happened and realize that I ran over the arm of a small kid.

I am in the terrace of an old condominium. It is actually not my place but I anyway listen to some Italian people talking about the increasing price of the apartments. I really want to leave but there is a high fence and one of them shows me how to put my leg through it to pass with my body.

I am at a meeting with the administrators of my mountain village. The mayor is also there and I start to prepare all the material I need to present my project. More people come to listen but they all focus on an Asian girl who just came back from a protest where she got chased by the police.

I am laying in bed and cannot sleep. My girlfriend's brother then comes with a medicine to make me sleep. I then tell him that the pain could be in my spine and he takes out another medicine. He then mixes the first medicine with the second one and starts to feed me with a small spoon.

I am in a cafe talking with my girlfriend after a meeting to discuss the making of my cathedral. The administrator who was in the meeting actually shows up with a tray of food and comes seating next to me. She then asks how do I really intend to build the cathedral and I reply with rocks.

I am in a gallery and open the letter I got from an old Chilean friend. She is now an art curator and has invited me to take part to an exhibition touring the world. I can see my name under the different museums and ask the gallerist where they are located. The latter announce the news aloud.

I am eating with my parents' old neighbours when their daughter arrives and kisses me in the mouth. She then takes me outside and she seats naked on top of me. I feel observed and she takes me to her room. As I ask her for a condom I look at her face and realize that she is my girlfriend.

I am driving my van from the airport to the Swedish capital. There is a girl seating next to me and we decide to drive on the highway. As I do so we suddenly come to a large metal wall that blocks the entrance. I then try to back up but the back wheels of the van gets out in a precipice.

I am looking through a portfolio I have prepared for an application to a Dutch art school. I actually already attended it and realize that they have rejected me. I then try to look through it and see what was so bad about it and find that I have put there the work I have done with at that school.

I am in the hallway of a building trying to call the Swedish authorities. A woman finally answers and I tell her that I need them to send me my new driver license. She then starts telling me that there is a problem with it but her voice is too weak and I can't really understand what she means.

I am in a park and it starts raining. I then seat on a long bench under a roof. There is actually a hooker next to me and see my American friend and an artist approaching. They seat next to us talking about a show we should do all together but they don't seem to recognize me.

I am standing on the last floor of a building looking outside the window. I am actually searching for my girlfriend in the busy street below and I see her. She is also looking for me and her face is very sad. I then call her and she gets happy but tells me she is taking a boat together with my ex.

I am in a court listening to a trial. A young politician is accused of corruption and the accuser is about to read one of his statements but the defender is faster and begun to read. The young politician is letting everyone know that he is guilty even though he knows that no one can touch him.

I am walking with my spiritual friend behind some people. I touch one in the back and then we run passed them. There is actually a curve and we slide in the gravel before entering a small condominium. My friend is ringing a doorbell and then hides in an empty apartment but I am too slow.

I am inside the backseat of an expensive car with my girlfriend. In the front seat there is another passenger who is claiming for a refund. I then also tell my girlfriend to remove the cover of our tickets and ask the driver for a refund. He lets me talk to his boss and I tell him about my research.

I am in a living room of a small apartment and get the phone call from an important German scholar. He reminds me that we will have to dine together in a week time and he already book a good restaurant. He thought that it was going to get fully booked and I agree with him.

I am outside of a small laboratory when a professor arrives. He shows me that his key broke in half and I take my soldering machine to fix it. I first heat up half of the key where it broke and I think of putting the solder but he wants me to melt a thin thread of copper on top of it.

I am on the last floor of my parents' old house and see my mother's workers leaving with an empty truck. I then run downstairs and tell them to also take some boxes with them. They complain that they have been only paid to deliver things to me and not to take them away but accept to do it.

I am walking with my sun in a forest and go inside a tunnel. My drawings are actually hanging there and as I look at one to see if it is animated my son steals my camera. He then runs away and I run after him. I finally catch him but he still doesn't want to return my camera and I slap him.

I am in an office arranging a notary act to purchase the fields of an old mountain neighbour. I feel very lucky because I am selling the tractor I just bought and might have some extra cash by the end of the day. I actually get a message from the buyer and she writes that she is no in doubt.

I am in the square of a small village talking to some locals when other people come on old expensive cars. One of them opens the back window and reminds me that I have to give them some money as a deposit. I don't have any and some locals try to lend me some but they are still too little.

I am on a moped going back to my mountain village. The road is actually very steep but I anyway pull the accelerator to the maximum and pass another moped. There is actually ice on the road and I am driving backward so that I don't see if a car is coming down from a curve I am about to do.

I am in my parents' old house and go to my room. My Greek friend and his boyfriend are waiting for me on my bed and I see a vampire puppet behind them. As I take some fake money out of a drawer I start talking to the puppet saying that he shouldn't bite my friends in the neck.

I am in a kitchen with my old friends and watch an old girlfriend making fresh pasta on the table for us. I then see my best friend going behind her shaking her body against her. A guy standing next to me also wants to go and I try to block him but we end up fighting against one another.

I am in the courtyard of a condominium where the leaders of a populist party lives. The main leader is actually away and has left the bronze statue of the warrior symbolizing the party in the middle of the courtyard next to a ball. I then stick the ball in the sword and try to hide it as a joke.

I am next to a river with two other people trying to help carrying my art installation in a more secure place. We are actually carrying some panels for blind people and have to cross an old dock. I walk after them but my panels fall in the water and have to wait that they reemerge.

I am on a beach with some friends and leave our bikes down. I stay to look over them and let my friends run to the sea. As they almost approach the water I start throwing hula hoops at them but a gang of mean guys comes between us. I don't care and throw the hula hoops over them.

I am back in my Venetian apartment and find that there is an open ladder against the kitchen lamp. It is not open properly and I ask my Greek tenant to help me move it. We do so and I realize that there is also a disassembled bed net. My tenant then tells me that she bought her own house.

I am walking with my son in the countryside and reach a small river where I see a fisherman. He is suspending a small balloon on the water surface waiting to fish a dolphin with an elephant nose. The latter comes nearby but doesn't catch the ball and we follow it but find a dead one.

I am fighting against a group of fascist soldiers and lay on the high grass. They keep shooting at me and I manage to run away but hear an airplane jet coming to bomb. I then keep running to a village together with another partisan and we reach a house where he shows me his broken ankle.

I am in my girlfriend's bedroom making love to her. She actually comes on top of me and I am quite excited but feel that there is also someone else on top of her. I then realize that there is my mountain neighbour and feel quite disgusted. I stop and she realizes it but doesn't move away.

I am walking in the small public garden behind my girlfriend's house. One of her Dutch neighbours meet me for the first time and I answer to him. He then asks me if I am adopted and I realize that I must look like an Arab with my long beard. I then go inside to shave it with a sharp knife.

I am walking in a neighborhood and come near my Venetian apartment. I start looking at it from the outside and realize that all of my tenants are keeping their windows open. I then think that they are wasting the heat and also notice how old the plaster around the windows is getting.

I am in the mayor office of my mountain village. He is not there and I talk to her secretary seating on the opposite side. We actually get quite comfortable and realize that we are laying in bed. The lights are also quite dimmed and I ask her about her private life in the city where she lives.

I am biking through a city and realize that it is very slippery. There is ice on the road even though it is quite south and see a small girl falling down. As I keep going I reach an old industrial building and I bike inside it. I reach the end of it where other bikers prepare to go down a slide.

I am walking in a small town and find a nightclub. It is open even though it is in the middle of the day and I go inside to check it out. The upper part is quite crowded and when I am about to go out I see naked girls going down a staircase. I follow them and realize they are Polish hookers.

I am in a cafe with my friends and realize that I left my son behind. I then go out again and see him coming down a road. We actually need to get going to the airport and we start waiting for the bus but it doesn't arrive. I then call a water taxi and we get in even though I don't know the price.

I am walking with a woman through a small restaurant and steal two pots. She is actually the owner and is very rich. We then walk to her expensive car in the parking lot and I realize that she already had lunch prepared for us. I think I didn't need the pots but the lunch is for her boyfriend.

I am in my Swedish apartment and start reading through my mail. One of them is from the tax office and I realize that it is handwritten in Italian. It says that they have talked to one of my neighbours and have not see me around. They then decided to cut off my unemployment benefits.

I am walking on a bike path to reach the metro on time. There are some girls biking in front of me and they are actually slower. I then start sliding on the ice and manage to catch a lot of speed. They do not move and I slide even faster on the side even though there is a layer of snow.

I am in a class with my former Swdish colleagues. One of them is presenting a thesis about a dish soap. He has actually invented a new design but it exactly like a common dish soap container. I think it would be better to have it upside down and only propose that he should incline it more.

I am in a mall and meet one of my tenant. She is actually an Arab woman with kids and she starts telling me about her rights. As I did not live in the apartment and only earned money from her she has now sued me. Another foreign tenant is also there and he seems more easy going.

I am at a conference with my girlfriend and we are about to walk out when I see a group of former students. I then remember how bad they have been in my previous class and I tell their new teacher. We actually follow the latter outside and get to hear how stressed and tired she is.

I am in a pastry shop and look at the members of a jury getting served different type of cakes. They are actually very demanding and get to try all the different sweet pastry. They then start trying the salty sandwiches and I recognize a kind of ham but understand they are not the actual jury.

I am walking in my parents' city dressing like a punk. I am actually going to a concert and cross the road with a lot of black people. I open my arms not to be hit by a metro they are driving and reach a square where white people are kept as refugees under a big tent. My relatives are there.

I am with my friends and a older woman driving a second hand car I just bought. We actually reach the condominium where one of my friends live and I show them how I can command the car using my voice. I then tell it to stop and then tell it to park. It does it perfectly without any accident.

I am in my Venetian apartment and have to sleep with my Turkish tenant. His room is actually occupied by two other tenants and I don't understand how we are going to share the beds. There are only two of them and I decide to let them arrange themselves while I go for a shower.

I am in a conference hall and wait for the introduction of an important American journalist. He comes out an elevator and starts telling the story of his last journey home through Russia with a truck. He then shows us around the hall and I realize that all the furniture were purposely made.

I am at a party eating a cake in the shape of an American university logo. A girl is actually wearing a university sweater and I show her that it is the same. It is actually different and we walk out on the terrace where she shows me on her phone where her university is located in the south west.

I am walking in a French city with my son and try to photograph the streets that are covered with fog. I manage and send one picture to my best friend but realize that I lost my son. I then go inside a very big cathedral and seat down before calling him and explain to meet in front of a big lion.

I am in a car with my ex wife and she takes me to the city where she owns an apartment. It is actually for rent but I am supposed to sleep in one of the rooms. She then introduces me to her tenant who is making a salad in the kitchen. The latter offers to make some salad also for me.

I am in my mountain village discussing with a neighbour the purchasing of a land. I then tell him that there are a lot of taxes to pay on top of it and he tells me to let it go but the old owner arrives. I then pat her in the shoulder and say that I am doing only to cut the trees blocking the view.

I am in a park with two old friends and they find a Eastern European prostitute. They then propose to take her in my apartment for a strip tease and I let them inside. A friend gets naked and makes love to the prostitute without any protection while I warn him that he can get a disease.

I am walking down to my girlfriend's kitchen and see a monkey outside taking the cat food with an arm through his door. I then take a stick to scare her away but she runs to a corner. I try to let her go out smacking the stick on the ground but my girlfriend comes saying she is often visiting.

I am in the reception of a big hospital and wait in line. the guy in front of me is trying to book a check with a doctor but has to fill i all sort of papers. I also prepare to fill the papers but when it is my turn I realize that the previous guy was an immigrant and I only need my passport.

I am in the conference hall of a new museum built under an archaeological site in a southern island. One of the prehistorical people found there is actually giving a talk and I interrupt him saying how much more I now understand of the island. I first thought is was dry but see that it is green.

I am sleeping in a bed when I hear some noises. I then realize that it is the bed of my biological grandparents who died several years ago. The noises must be made by my biological uncle who is coming back from a evening at the pub. I then try to call his name to warn him but I have no voice.

I am on a bus at night seating next to the corridor. My spiritual friend is seating next to me and on the opposite by the window is a Chinese woman. The latter starts breathing very heavily and she suddenly demands we let her go in the front where the seats are empty and she can lay down.

I am in a hostel in a tropical country and hear that it has been overbooked by a group of Indians. I then go to my dormitory to see what has happened to my bed. There are blankets everywhere and several people are sleeping on the same bed but my bed is left untouched at the end of the room.

I am running in a small village and see the jury of a Swedish award. My old professor is among them and I could talk to her but decide to run in my hotel room. I then look in my laptop for a text to show her but a cat starts running inside. I try to close the door but it can still go underneath it.

I am in a cafeteria reading my mail. The secretary of my former university has written to apply for an American college. I don't read the mail and notice another one from a French girl who sends me a package. It is a salad dressing set and I give it to a guy next to me to put it in his salad.

I am with a group of friends and get in an abandoned building. Some teenagers with sharp teeth let us in and I see a girl with us falling inside a hole in the kitchen floor. It is filled with milk and a man dressing a dragon costume sucks it back up and brings it to a gigantic black spider.

I am in an apartment hiding behind an armchair and see in a mirror a chick next to the window. The landlord is trying to let it out of the window but soon gives up. I then go myself next to the window to see what has happened and notice that the chick is on the way back to the floor again.

I am in a hotel lobby and realize that I just caused an accident where some Japanese students had to be amputated. Their friends come seating next to me and I first think that they are angry but they seem cordial. One of the people from the accident also arrives without a leg but he is happy.

I am in the entrance of a condominium with my spiritual friend and meet two of his friends. They are both musicians and one of them shows us how his guitar sprays colors. I get all my clothes dirty but I realize they are wearing some special plastic suits and they brake as they remove them.

I am in the American apartment of a famous Polish artist. He is actually arriving and I don't want to be caught. I then tell my ex that I will be locking myself in the big bedroom and she can tell him that I am abroad. He arrives and I lay on the bed trying to read a book but make too much noise.

I am walking in a mall watching a girl with his mother buying expensive perfumes. I quite dislike it and move forward to another department but stumble on a man wearing a lot of camera bags like me. I then ask him if I can unscrew my main camera to remove some sand and he says I should.

I am in a cafeteria when a man and a woman points a shooting gun at me. I manage to escape to another building and get ready with other people to fight a gang leader. As we put tape around the floor perimeter the man and the woman shows up again but I shoot electricity against them.

I am on a bus with my mountain neighbour's son. We are actually going through his neighborhood and I am shocked about the many condominiums they have built there. The styles are also very different but lastly we reach an area where they are building new condominiums that are similar.

I am with some friends inspecting my forest. We walk on the bottom of it and then take the road on the top to avoid all the snow. I then ask my friends to help me move some small red firs on the opposite side of the street. I also want to move some small larches but can no longer spot them.

I am walking on a countryside road when I see my mountain neighbour coming by with my tractor. I then get on and realize it is going quite well. I just have to change the gears for him and we soon reach our village. I then see the other mountain neighbour and clap him in the shoulders.

I am watching a movie showing a small group of soldiers with a blue cloth on top of their uniforms. They all get in a tank and one of them starts driving to a battle field. It is the biggest in history and he estimates they will need to drive for at least four days. I then wonder what will they eat.

I am with my best friend looking at a countryside property. As we walk in the big backyard towards the fruit trees we both find an almost new small car. We then start wondering how expensive it can be and I tell my best friend the full price but he actually think it is half of what I said.

I am in a small Dutch city and see a young guy going out of his small home. I then go inside and find his bed in a mezzanine. I lay there and realize that it is connected with the mezzanine of the neighbour house. His son is actually still sleeping there and I go down the bed to walk out again.

I am on a train and seat in a small compartment. A girl and her younger brother are seating in front of me and I ask them if there is anyone seating on my side. There are actually two jackets and I realize that there are indeed two other persons. They arrive and the sister leaves them their seats.

I am walking outside of a German village carrying a transparent plastic panel. I then realize that I have just forgot the scale model of my cathedral at my ex wife's place. There are actually wooden panels on the floor and I look through them for some I could use to rebuild the scale model.

I am with some tourists and end up in a big station. I then try to ask a person working there the schedule but she sends me to another guy. I then complain with him that they used an Italian name for the station but he takes the guitar out and starts playing an Italian song to make me dance.

I am in my Venetian apartment figuring out how to make more money renting it and support my family. As I am about to walk out with no idea in mind I suddenly realize that there is an attic on top of the hallway. I could actually renovate it and make my Turkish tenant sleep there instead.

I am in a metro and start preparing some wooden sticks outside the windows. The train then leave but it goes inside a tunnel and I realize that it can be very dangerous with the sticks rotating in the air. I then think of a new system to attach the sticks with one another but they are all broken.

I am biking on a road facing a big valley. As I start looking at some beautiful big mountains I have never seen before my cousin catches up with me. I then start biking after him but my sister passes us with an electric bike. We actually reach a small village where we stop to try local cheese.

I am in my Venetian apartment and hear the complaints of two Australian female guests. They actually cannot sleep in the living room and I go to inspect it. The beds seem fine and I walk to another room to see if there are better beds. There I find my son still awake reading a book in bed.

I am watching a movie about a white bear chasing a brown bear. The latter is dragging a chart with his owner but manages to be fast enough. The white bear than attacks the chart owner's wolf. I then see the owner seating by himself on the cold land with a magazine and a bottle of vodka.

I am with my twin sister at a small empty restaurant. We both order spaghetti but with different sauces and seat at a table. We get served almost immediately and realize that the spaghetti were defrosted. They are anyway cheap and I tell one of the guys to bring me an ice-cream as a joke.

I am with my stepfather walking on a sidewalk at night. He is actually listening to me carefully about my project and we reach a boat depot. I then start eating a salad with my hands while he takes his new boat out. It is cold and I decide to keep my jacket up together with his old assistant.

I am walking in a square and get in a small student restaurant. I have no idea what they serve and look at a girl baking some noodles in the oven. I then ask for a wok but the girl tells me that it is too late. I keep looking at her putting loafs in another oven not knowing what to take.

I am in the ground floor of a big villa playing with a small girl and a boy. They are having fun with me and the former asks me to go upstairs to play with them. I then get ready to play but they take me to a living room and I realize they only want to play video-games between each other.

I am in a big conference room and notice a man on a wheel chair seating on the opposite side. He is actually looking at my girlfriend and wants to talk to her. My girlfriend reaches him and they start talking. I feel jealous but then try to think on how to change the main building of my project.

I am watching a movie about a rock star talking to his girlfriend about his next concert. He wants to engage more with the audience and have the idea of a big egg emerging among his fans. There is an option of getting a huge inflatable egg and he decides to buy it but his girlfriend is against it.

I am with two old friends in an underground garage and hide the key of a locker on top of the door of an empty locker. We have actually locked some stolen money away and discuss how to divide them among us. One of my friend's girlfriend reaches us to ask for the money and we run away.

I am on a boat in the middle of a big river. The boat is actually still and I talk to a girl while we get ready to depart. I actually hear some noise in the back and realize that everyone is observing my girlfriend diving in the water. We then go to watch her and realize that she is treasure hunting.

I am getting off at the station where my parents live and walk to a secondary exit. I actually see my former director and greet him but he ignores me. He walks away from me but also get through the exit I need to take. I then catch up with him and tell him about my new project in the alps.

I am in a room checking my phone. A porn website opens and my ex wife comes in. She is very angry and throws her jacket on the ground filled with dust. I am actually supposed to renovate the room and my girlfriend comes in to kiss me. She wants me to eat but I keep watching my phone.

I am in an outdoor restaurant telling about my former Jewish girlfriend who throw my expensive bike off her window when I left her. Everyone is listening but then arguments starts and only one guy keep listening to me. A girl leaves the room with some cheese but the guy wants it back.

I am in a cave with my girlfriend. She is actually sleeping on a blue hammock and realize my son is waiting outside. I then go to him but he gets on a school bus for English kids. I follow to a college and realize my son doesn't have a uniform but he anyways queues to get a glass of punch.

I am driving my tractor inside an underground garage with a lot of other tractors of the same color. There is actually a free spot and I leave it there but have no idea if I have to pay for it. I manage to meet the owner but he tells me to remove an engine part I don't know. He then does it for me.

I am in a small city with an ex girlfriend and she asks me whether I have to photograph also if she uses an object. I tell her that I do and she gets a toothpick in her mouth. I don't even bother to photograph but she gets in her car to make it harder for me. She slowly drives away looking at me.

I am following some kids down to a beach on a river next to our place. I have never bathed there and realize that there is a sand beach and it is very soft. The kids are actually my nephews and I swim out with them playing but then realize that a local couple might start thinking bad of me.

I am in a big house of some new acquaintances and go to the living room. My son is there playing a video-game designed by an Italian artist. It looks quite similar to another video-game but my son is having a lot of fun and I look at him jumping with his character on top of small astronauts.

I am in walking through an art biennial and find a book written by a Dutch artist. As I read it on the phone to my girlfriend she joins me. We then walk further through the biennial and she shows me a building where an Icelandic artist designed a staircase only leading to a closed window.