I am seating next to my girlfriend driving in a highway. She gets surpassed by two cars and gets quite mad. She then accelerates and manage to catch up with one of the cars. There is a truck on the first lane but she anyway manage to get between them and keep speeding on the free highway. I am in a city suburb and enter a church but there is a man by the door who asks to sign a ticket. I then do so and see that some monks are walking on the tip of their feet. My son is also looking and get confused for one of them. He is suddenly taken against the wall to liberating from the devil. I am in a small opera house and see that an old girlfriend is watching a play with her boyfriend. I then get behind her but her boyfriend to be only an old friend and then wait for the end of the opera to walk out with them. The boyfriend keeps me with an arm away from him. I am in my mountain village and open the door of my garage to let a viper out. I then lay on the grass but our cat tries to get on me. I then kick him down the hill but my drunk neighbour arrives with another drunk man and throws the cat back up. I try to explain her that I don't want him. I am on top of a valley close to my native village and show my girlfriend an old bridge built by the fascists. It is still functional and we walk across it to reach another village. The local authorities are showing there their modern airplanes and we see them opening and closing their wings for us. I am with an old friend looking some photos he took on his winter vacation. I then see two of them with a guy doing ski jumping over an old lady from a mountain village. As I look more carefully I realize that the guy is actually my friend and he tells me that only the skies made him jump. I am on a road at night flying with other people our drones. Their are too many in the air and I cannot understand which one is mine. I try to land it safely but below it there are too many other drones that are bigger and could damage it. I am in front of a barn I just bought and realize the location is not so nice. Behind it there is actually an house and I go to inspect it. It is quite nice for my girlfriend and daughter to live there and I also find that there is a river next to it. I then think that the location is not as bad as I thought. I am at a lecture with my former art history professor. He asks to point out five modern philosophers that are relevant today. I get tired and leave but he also comes out of the university with five small trees to plant for each philosopher. One student comes up with one and I come up with four. I am in an office and a clerk calculates that I can borrow quite a lot of money from his bank. I then walk out of his office and realize that I am in a castle I just bought with those money. It was actually reconstructed stone by stone and I am actually standing on one and feel it can fall anytime. I am in a train station waiting for a train to go to a big Italian city. One girl is also waiting for the same train and I tell her not to worry that we still have quite some time. As I talk to her our train leaves and I realize that the next one is in a long time. I then call my mother who gets very angry. I am walking on a road with my son and a friend. The latter starts talking to a bad guy about another friend who is sick at home. I don't want my son to hear these conversations and we walk further. I am biking with a friend and tell him about a nice road I found on the hills. He doesn't trust me but I take him there anyway and realize that it is a private road. There is actually a gate but a priest opens up for us and we start biking. It a tunnel and on each side there are expensive cars. I am walking in an American downtown with a friend and see a small blond girl. I then hug her and walk together to a tent where some black actors are rehearsing. They suddenly change roles and the men who had to go with some women go with others making the play very confusing. I am in a cafe discussing with a girl about an art movement we want to launch. We actually have a lecture coming up and we take the essay of a philosopher to get some inspiration. I first think we should name the movements according to the dates he uses but then find a special adjective. I am with my Italian guitarist friend in a Dutch parking lot watching a man downloading grain from an old red truck. My friend tells me that it is his truck and the Dutch man has stolen it from him. We then wait that he downloads the grain from one side and then try to surrender him. I am in class with my old high school professor giving us back our essays. He is very furious about them and I accept that I might have gotten a very bad grade. He then shows us one of the essays and I realize that a classmate have made a caricature of the professor on the entire page. I am in a cafe with my girlfriend getting annoyed about two drunk people playing cards. We still didn't get our chocolate and I go up to tell the barmaid. As I come back I realize that the two people are old friends and I ask them about their wives getting a lot of coins back from the barmaid. I am in a mall with my girlfriend and realize that we are both working for the first time in a shop selling baby clothes. It is about to close and I lean towards a big lamp hanging from high ceiling to wash my hands. I then tell my girlfriend that we should tell the shop to sell my uncle's clothes. I am below the field of my cathedral in the mountains talking to a local woman I have never met before. She tells me that her father explained to her that no building in these mountains can survive. I don't understand and she explains that the terrain is very fragile and all the buildings sink. I am in the kitchen of my girlfriend's house boiling hot-dogs. I actually meant to cook them for her birthday but only my best friend shows up. I then realize I have cooked too many of them and offer him one. I actually want to warm it up using a pan and it curls up like a long sausage. I am visiting a place I have never seen in the mountains and end. I am actually driving there and follow a sing but there I cannot find it and the road starts going steep up. I drive quite fast and realize that it must be a shorter road to my place. I reach a village and realize there is even a pizzeria. I am in a computer lab updating my website. There is actually a lecture going on from a communist curator and I suddenly stand up to tell what I think about a media art biennial. As I fix the icon of my website I declare that the biennial should be smaller and ready to take in unknown artists. I am with my son in an American hotel and we borrow my parents' rented car to go to the beach. It is actually very nearby and we could have walked there. We anyway get in the ocean and realize that there are a lot of ancient boats all around us. I take a video even though I am in the water. I am with my girlfriend in a camping bathroom ready to shower. It is actually empty and we get a shower each but when we get out there are other people in the changing room. One of them is a young Brazilian guy and he starts getting very jealous while I massage my girlfriend's back. I am traveling on an old boat from Icelandic harbour and have to reach the European coast. I then expect to travel a very long time but suddenly see the Danish coast. We enter a canal and our boat start passing in front of all the other more modern boats but the latter don't use any petrol. I am in a big train station looking at the work that are being done underground. I can see on a map that there will be many interconnecting tunnels but for now I have to go down another level. As I am about to get on a train I realize that I read another sign and cannot see my stop. I am in my mountain field shooting a movie about a car racing champion. He is actually on the field with his racing car but he is not realistic enough but soon his team mate starts driving his identical racing car on the asphalt and I realize it could work. I am walking with my girlfriend by a one story building at night and see that there are different rooms. In one of them the administrators of my mountain village are having a debate. I understand that it is not about my project but in the following room I see that they made graphs about it. I am in a modern church listening to the priest preaching fluently in many different languages. I actually want to pray alone and try to find a better place on one side of the church. There is actually an empty chapel and I am about to kneel but then notice that the priest can still look at me. I am sleeping on the top floor of my barn and realize that there is some air coming in. I then check the ceiling and realize that a tile on the edge of the roof is broken. I finally decide to take the offer of a family friend to rebuild the roof even though now everything underneath it is new. I am walking with my girlfriend in a small village and realize that I have to prepare a contract for each of my mountain neighbours. I then realize that I can just make a few copies and write the rest by hand. I am in seating in an escalator to an underground together with many other people. There is actually a very pretty girl from a Middle East country and I get to seat next to her. She keeps there for some time but then rises up and tells me that she doesn't want to seat next to me. I am pushing the stroller and reach an art academy. As I enter I can see the reflection of my face with long hairs and a beard. I am actually trying to enroll as a student and present myself to the secretary. She has an old press machine and prints a certificate while I look at other applications. I am walking with my girlfriend in a big city and pass by an old church. She actually worries that I am spending too much money to produce my own church and I get in doubt whether I should continue. As we keep walking I see a Turkish artist and say hi to her but she barely recognizes me. I am entering my mountain village and see an old American friend with her girlfriend are putting large bricks on a field. As I walk to my apartment I realize that they are building terraces in the garden and they must have bought it. I then get ready to go out avoiding my grumpy neighbour. I am walking on a straight country road and check some abandoned factories on my left. Seating on the parking lot of one of them is a very old friend from university. I reach him but he doesn't stand up to greet me and I realize that he is fixing a drone. I think it is like mine but it is bigger. I am watching a movie about a man who is kept in an old farm. The owner tortures him but the man is too stubborn and doesn't seem to care about it. Te owner then pretends to let him go but put a naked gypsy woman to wait for him outside. The man cannot resist her and they make love. I am driving across Germany and come to some very high mountains. As I go down a valley I can see one through the clouds that is very high. There are some bikers in front of me and I try to focus on the road but realize that they are part of a big competition and they are too fast to surpass. I am in a church I want to buy for my project and get the real estate agent to show me around. We actually go to the main nave and I realize that it is too narrow. As we reach the center I find that it is too high and there are already a lot of art works hanging permanently from the ceiling. I am in an Italian school discussing with two colleagues about a course. I am actually newly employed there but one of them tells me that the teaching is very draining and he wish to fully dedicate himself on his own art using an old computer like I also do. I am carrying my small baby daughter to a public bathroom and find that my mother is also inside. She is washing the hands of a Korean baby she just adopted. As my mother doesn't care about my daughter I approach the baby and start playing with me but my mother doesn't want to. I am in a class taking an exam and finish very fast. My girlfriend is also taking the same exam but she hasn't even started and I show it to her. She then starts copying it but a classmate asks how I answered a tricky question and I get in doubt whether my answers were all correct. I am in my mountain apartment at night feeling very good that I was able to rent it to three students. It is actually quite small and the students move to the big room while I keep with my girlfriend and daughter in the kitchen. They start smoking pot and I get in their room to tell them to stop. I am looking at a magazine showing pictures of a special Chinese farm. They breed gorillas in captivity but I notice that their legs are as high as the legs of giraffes. As I look more carefully I also notice that they are white and not black but then also breed that it is a special domestic race. I am walking in the center of the Italian village below my mountains apartment. I remembered it to be quite ugly but I actually find it beautiful with just a lot of old people. As I walk through the main part I realize that it is my parents' city and the more I walk the more young people I find. I am looking around a new shop even though I have nothing to buy. There is a long queue to the cashier but I get in line anyway and see that a young cashier is free. I then go to her and ask if they can print me a t-shirt with my website on it. We then look for numbers but she misses one. I am following a real estate agent into the courtyard of a big villa. He show me how the roof is not the original but then tells me that I can buy it for very little money. We then crawl through a small metal door and I realize that the space is very narrow and it has already been renovated. I am looking at my e-mail and find a message from a curator. He has actually invited several artists I have been working with and I feel bad he didn't invite me. As I keep reading the exhibition description I realize that he has crossed a lot of the text and that he suddenly speaks about my work. I am in my girlfriend's house working with a man to fix the electricity. He cuts up a cable through all the isolation and I realize that the light can be still turned on. I then try to switch it off from the main panel but it still can turn on. There is a smaller panel with tiny buttons and I try that. I am in a campsite and I realize that my kids are sharing the tent with the kids of the Italian populist part leader. I am actually going to brush my teeth with him and we get to share the same bathroom. I let him the sink and he keeps talking while I wait to photograph my toothbrush. I am walking in the dark down to the ground floor of my girlfriend's house and see that the windmill is still turning. It is actually only on the TV screen showing an animation. I have actually created it myself but the more I watch it the more I realize that I have copied it from another animation. I am driving with my parents up to my mountain place. We are actually with another family friend and they want to show him my place even though it is getting late already. There is a beautiful sunset but as we drive up the mountains the sun disappears and it gets dark and quite ugly. I am visiting my Norwegian friend in his small apartment but realize that he is still out working. I then find his Japanese wife in the bedroom and see that she is changing their son. He actually looks very Italian and she even tells me that his name his Italian but it is pronounced differently. I am approaching a carpenter shop where my mountain neighbours' son is working. I can see that he has piled up some wood and I realize that it is the leftover from my forest. It is so little wood that I tell him that I can anyway put it in my car but as I so I realize that there is more wood. I am driving passed my best friend condominium and finding waiting for me. He is actually studying to get his driver license and begs me to try my car. I then tell him that I will look at him from the terrace of his apartment but as I go up I meet his wife who shows me their newly born baby. I am walking in a city and come to a river where I see a man on a boat. It is actually a handcrafted iron boat and I ask him whether he can also teach me how to do it. I then explain that I want to build a bigger boat for my project and I am willing to pay him but then realize he is a drug dealer. I am at a party with my best friend and he convince me to dance with two girls. I then follow him to the dance floor but my girlfriend arrives and I realize that we are celebrating our marriage. She asks me to cut the cake but I make too small slices and it becomes impossible to serve the guests. I am in my native highland and see a mountain on my left and one to the right. As I observe the latter more in detail I realize that it is also connected to the highland where I bought my apartment. I then realize that I can meet my old friends there if we wish to go for a hike together. I am in my mountain village following the orders of my rich neighbour. She wants me to fill all the glass bottle she has in the back of her car with the water from the fountain. I start to do so but only manage with one bottle and the water stops coming. As I wait a bit it gets out all dirty. I am in the basement of a villa ready to go to sleep when the owner's daughter comes down. She is only wearing a white t-shirt without bra underneath and I can see her nipples. I actually try to avoid to look at her but she comes to seat with me and tells me that she is now eighteen. I am in a French city seating at the end of an abandoned boulevard picking strawberries. As I also remove the grass and try to make the ground nicer I hear some locals talking about an old lady who also had to pick strawberries to survive. They mention her pension and I find it very generous. I am with my girlfriend in a Dutch city and get in an empty restaurant to share a pizza. The owner is actually Italian and comes to get our orders. I then tell him about the pizza but he says that they are very small and we should take two. I am not so hungry but listen to his advice. I am driving through my parents city but realize that I have to pick my son at the airport. There is actually a lot of traffic but I manage to get there. It is crowded with young people being checked for the military service. A young girl is behind me and reminds me that I also will have to do it. I am in a monastery and pick a purple cabbage in the vegetable garden. I then take it inside the church but as I open the door I find my stepfather's priest. The latter is very surprise to see me and takes me to a smaller chapel where he expects me to pray but I do it wrong and he kicks me out. I am doing a bike competition with a friend and reach the end with a pretty good time. I then have one of the sons of my mountain neighbour to come up with a system to grade the bikers. I think of a smart one but he suddenly rebels and starts yelling at me in front of the main director. I am at a birthday party in a small apartment and see that almost everyone is gone. I then go around to look for my girlfriend. They are both naked and she is laying with her breast on his knees. I then get very jealous and start shouting. I am on a flat bike laying down on only keeping my head up to see where I am going. I actually end up on a highway with a lot of tunnels and curves. As I almost approach a city the highway gets very busy and I realize that the brakes are in front of the bike and I cannot reach them. I am in a South American city looking for a place where to spend the night. It is actually not a nice environment but I finally find some people speaking Italian. I then talk to a girl in the group and she advice me to go leave in an hotel by a lake even though I know it is quite dangerous there. I am in an apartment with a group of terrorists. They don't care so much about me and I look at them shooting out of the window. I ask where I can sleep and they tell me that there is a whole room for me and my girlfriend. I go to check it and realize that the bed is high and we can get shot. I am in an ancient building installing whole of my art project when a big public arrives. I am actually still at the beginning but an art critic starts commenting on some old paintings that are not even part of the installation. He tells the public how bad they are and everyone starts leaving. I am in a Mediterranean village and see a group of locals taking some Russian girls to a dock. I then stand on the side to film and then follow them inside a church where they start discussing about an exhibition they had. One guy says that he still has all the benches they used for it. I am in a gas station and start to put gasoline in my car but realize that someone already put some money in. I then let the owner know but she calls me inside her office to pay a new bill. I follow her and she wants much more money but I only have my credit card and it is not accepted. I am walking in a tunnel with another family and see them climbing up a steep passage. There is snow on it and I take two long sticks to help me. I actually manage to pass them but the last part is covered with ice. I am sure I will fall down but actually manage to reach an underground river. I am in an apartment that is already late and look for a room where I can sleep. I find it but realize that there is a big bed next to a very small one. I choose to sleep in the former even though I realize that my shoulders are all burnt. On the right side I have no skin left and I am bleeding. I am in a large conference room where people are debating about my project. A young lady did not really understand what I am doing as says that I must be taking a lot of photographs while at the mall. A man then corrects her saying that I must be taking many photos at home when I cook. I am at a seminar looking at a magazine with a list of the last names from my region. There is also an explanation about them but I can't find my own last name. At some point an old classmate comes and seats next to me. I then look up her last name and find that their ancestors were dockers. I am in my workshop finishing a big painting. My stepfather is also there and tells me how all my fortune comes from him. I then show him the painting to explain how I have actually only got the initial capital from them and then moved it from one area of colour to another to make it bigger. I am working on my computer and see that I got a lot of emails. One of them is from a university officer forwarding me a safety regulation manual. I then open the email hoping that it came from a university where I have applied for a job but realize that it is from an old university I worked for. I am walking down a staircase and reach the platform of a train station. Two guys are waiting outside the public toilette and ask me a few questions. They actually lock me inside the bathroom and I realize that they are kidnapping me because I am a foreigner although one of them is black. I am in my forest piling all the stumps in one place. As I try to free one I realize that I have a very big tree hanging over me. I will never be able to cut it by myself but it seems strong enough to stand. As I look down I realize that there is another pile of stumps and mine is falling against it. I am at a party outdoor and start talking to my southern Italian friend about traveling up north. He then tells me that the highway is not completed and I will have to turn around. As we discuss other options the hosts come and say that we should followed the address engraved on a tombstone. I am at a Dutch neighbour and he gives me some flowers. I then go out and notice his kids drawing a penis on the window. I try to photograph them but they see me and one of them comes down threatening to kill me. He wants to beat me up and I run inside to get a hammer to defend me. I am watching a movie about a boy who is taken to prison after been accused of homicide. He is actually innocent and starts crying but when he opens his eyes again he finds himself in the prison cell. He is laying inside a small tent and pulls his head out to find that his father is also there. I am in my new university office and see that the previous colleague has left his expensive laptop on one of the shelves. He might not return anymore and I consider taking it home but his wife shows up and I leave her my desk. She is also not staying for long and I look if she sees the laptop. I am outside of a small airport waiting for my parents to pick me up. I try to call them to warn them that they don't have to drive in the parking for them on the road. They send me a photo of my sister in a cave with the girls from my mountain village and she arrive. I am in a small village and walk towards a guy I used to know. There is a man next to him and he get really suspicious. He blocks my way and the other guy does not recognize me so I have to go back to a summer cabin where my stepfather is waiting for me to do the dishes. I am in a club and see that my girlfriend is smoking. I then ask her what is she doing and she tells me that she has decided to start smoking twice a week. I tell her that but she keeps insisting and I tell her that I will split up but she doesn't care and she keeps smoking. I am in an office with a local politician showing a cart he has revived with all the election results. The leader of the winning party tells us we shouldn't rely on these results but the local politician just tell us a story of a time he went hunting in a river for badgers and had to give up. I am walking with my old friends in an old city and hear a lot of music coming from a small club. My best friend decides to go in and we follow but I soon realize that it is a private party with only a few people. My friends starts dancing anyway and I try to tell them to come outside with me. I am in a small hotel watching television with my son late at night. He has actually the remote control and puts on a movie with a lot of erotic scenes. I tell him that he should change but he keeps watching. As I turn towards him I realize that he has been sleeping all the time. I am in a workshop with my high school biology teacher. He is actually on the floor building a robot made of a long chain. He demonstrates it and I see it going to a big metal pole and grab it by twisting the chain around it. It moves to another pole and also grabs it but my feet are on the way. I am in a park and see some kids trying to climb over a fence. It is too hard and I go to help them. We manage to go across all together and reach the kitchen of an outdoor restaurant. The cook is not surprised to see us and starts preparing a salty dish with a kiwi on top split in two. I am in my mountain apartment and find a big envelope in the mailbox. I open it and see that it is from the municipality. I then assume that it is about the building permit for my art project. There is nothing in the envelope but in the back I find some questions I start to answer in English. I am in a Canadian airport and realize that my father lives there. I then try to call him even though he usually never answers. He actually does so immediately and I am about to tell him that I am visiting his city but then realize that I am on the road between mine and his native town. I am in a forest with my mountain neighbour who offers me minced meat and tells me of a walk she just took. As she tells me how boring it was I show her that the mountains ahead of us are also close to my native village. I tell her the old Bavarian names but she doesn't recognize any of them. I am in at a lecture of an Italian teacher but there are only two students. I want to discuss three points about teaching but the teacher keeps asking me to talk about other things. I then start accusing her about being too autocratic and walk away in search of the director to give her feedback. I am at the seaside with my stepfather seating in front of the water. I am actually busy writing inside an empty trolley but finish the space inside. As I turn it to write on the top my sister arrives and tells my stepfather that there is a sale of very expensive clothes but he wants to stay with me. I am watching a program about people who are trying to climb an old tower. One of them manages from the outside but another tries to do it climbing from the inside to avoid the terrace on the top. He manages to go straight up but the presenters are at the edge of the terrace and almost fall. I am walking in a forest and get a video from my Dutch neighbour. I then open it and see that he has been flying the air balloon we bought together. He tried to go as high as possible and on the way up I see that he is climbing over the balloon. I then write him how courageous he was.