

I am in my mountain village and realize that I have just sold my apartment and can no longer be registered there. As I try to look for my girlfriend to talk about it the new owner approach me. He wants to know where the wood shed is but I show him that he was replaced with a swimming pool.

I am watching TV with my kid and see two smaller screen-shots of two movies. I really want to show him the one to the left and I try to use the remote control to select it but I switch to a different channel and have no idea how I can go back to the movie selection interface we viewed before.

I am in a small hotel talking to the owner. He is quite old and I congratulate him to be still very fit. He actually wants some movies from me and I help him transferring them to his computer. As I do so I realize that he already has a film with pictures from my are project he uses to masturbate.

I am in a hospital and ask my best friend to follow me to the airport to pick up my new tenants. He wants to and my stepfather offers to drive us there. I actually get a phone call from one of the tenants saying that the airport is in chaos and we go out of the hospital but there is a big queue.

I am in the villa of an old cousin and she shows me the paintings they bought. One of them is on top of the staircase leading to the basement. It is too dark to see it but we anyway go down and I have to carry her son in his stroller. Her husband is laying on the sofa and we get to shake hands.

I am in a small restaurant with my old friends. I actually have no one to talk to and move to another room where everyone is busy talking. I then seat next to one guy who has just finished to read a book and gives it to another friend. The latter is not interested but I would love to read it.

I am in an Australian dormitory laying in bed and looking out of the window. The sky is gray and the terrain below it is very dry. I then wonder how they first colonists were able to make a living in such an inhospitable land. I also wonder what to do there but realize that my holiday is soon over.

I am walking in a Southern Italian village with my spiritual friend and meet a group of Russian girls. They want to know to see my friend's guide and I agree to it although he doesn't want to. They then get an idea of their next destination in the region but my friend says it is only a photo book.

I am seating next to a river and follow a path to see where it comes from. There is actually a guy laying asleep at the end of it but I anyway seat to film and notice deers with fish skin drinking from the river. I am very excited and try to zoom in but the guy wakes up and doesn't want me there.

I am walking through a city and realize that I have to make it to an airport on the other side of some big mountains. On the way to the city I followed a dark man but I don't remember the path and just go straight. I actually end up in a hospital and realize that a guy working there is blond.

I am in a train with my oldest son. We are actually approaching the station of a Russian city but soon realize that we are getting inside the mall. The train even goes all the way up a steep escalator and my son gets really excited about all the luxury shops by I keep my criticism for myself.

I am with a Belorussian girl and she wants to take me to her student flat. We then follow two roommates in the apartment fully decorated with stainless glass. To get to her room we have to crawl in a small tunnel that it is also fully decorated. As we finally reach there are two other guys there.

I am at a party and talk to some Italian art students. They actually recognize me and as they mention the work we once did together I see a commuter train crashing through the building behind them. It is coming our way but then turns sideways and crashes against the building behind me.

I am playing football with my Neapolitan friend in front of a villa. I realize that he just moved there after breaking up with his wife. She is also there playing with us and he tells me that her mother has a syndrome and when she plays football she thinks that there is another player behind her.

I am watching an old movie of a guy climbing a tall skyscraper of an American city. He wants to reach the terrace on the top but has to reach the tip before throwing himself down. I then look carefully at the special effect they used to make the jumping and compare with modern techniques.

I am in a spaceship and get instructed with another girl about the food. We both order two different dishes and she eats it all while I find it too disgusting. We then decide to beat the spaceship by running the longest time. We cannot go anywhere but start running next to our small table.

I am in a small church holding my youngest son in my arms and waiting for the priest to baptize him. He finally comes in but walks all the way to the back and I just go alone to the altar to put my kid head in the holy water. I then seat next to my sisters but they are annoyed and I get angry.

I am in a big square doing tai-chi and realize that it resembles an ancient theater. At the very bottom there is a woman announcing that she will soon teach martial arts and there are tapes we can watch on the top of the theater. I then check them with a girl but they are a very unusual format.

I am in my son's villa and give an essay to his grandfather. I then talk to an old classmate who also wrote an essay but he tells me that we had to write it about the environment. I go back to my son's grandfather and explain to him that I just started writing without listening to the instructions.

I am in a studio talking to a dancer with her desk next to mine. As I ask her about her dancing practice she comes way too close to me I cannot tell whether she is white or black. Her eyes are a bit green and I assume she is white but she also has a black beard and I don't want to keep so close.

I am in my sister's physiotherapy practice and see that my best friend is getting treated with a machine. He suggests me to also get my shoulders treated and I seat on the opposite side of the machine but my sister comes and tells me that there I can only get a back massage laying on my belly.

I am in a classroom and I hear the teacher talking to my Polish friend. He doesn't want him to spend too much time on his project and I check what he is doing. I then realize that he is once again copying my project but I just ask him how his family. He get really angry but the lights turn off.

I am in a Swedish station at night and have to fetch a train to go up north. It is at the platform but I realize that they are two different ones. The first is very modern and the other attached to it is much older. I assume I have to get in the latter but it is packed with people fleeing a pandemic.

I am walking in a forest and reach my native highland. I can see it from the distance but I don't recognize the buildings around me. I do actually recognize an hotel but it is in the wrong place. As I try to reach I realize that the road is way too slippery and I start going very fast down the road.

I am in a warehouse owned by my mother and as I try to talk to her my twin sister also comes in. She is wearing a red woolen sweater and I can see that she is very fit. I then congratulate her for having lost so much weight but then realize that it is only the sweater making it look so fit.

I am on a train with my daughter and we reach the Swedish capital. We then get out in a strange place and I try to explain my daughter that there use to be the old station there. I then show her how our train came from a modern tunnel and the old train used to come from a normal railroad.

I am in a small mountain apartment and my neighbours come to visit me. They just spotted me down the mountain boxing but I am not interested in their gossips and tell them that I have a new kid. I then bring them out in the terrace and show them that in a pasture there is a small calf.

I am in a bedroom with a guy and we both realize that it is high enough to build a second floor. I then estimate that I will only be able to stand in the bottom floor but the guy shows me that we can improve the view from the window there by moving the house all the way along a beautiful river.

I am just outside a small supermarket with my spiritual friend and his friend. I then tell them how much I would like some fruit and the latter goes in to get a whole basket of fresh products. As he reaches the cashier he removes all the fruits and only keeps the veggies to make me disappointed.

I am watching a movie about a guy living opposite to an a big American city. He is on the roof top of his apartment looking at the skyline with his girlfriend. I first think how lucky he is but then realize that there is a bridge underneath the apartment and it is congested with old polluting cars.

I am with the gay son of some old family friends and take him to a small beach to show him how clear is the water there. It is not but he gets naked and takes a small bath. I take a big one and try to reach some rocks but end up in a pool for tourists with dangerous flat fishes being released.

I am walking out of a French city with two friends and realize that there are gates where we should have paid our entrance. A guard let us pass but the other guard demands that we pay the fee and we are put in a long queue with tourists entering the city and only one exit for people with bikes.

I am in my relatives house and ask a cousin if our older cousin has found a place where to put all his agricultural machinery after they sold the family villa. He is upset with me because I did not contact my uncle in a long time but then tells me that our older cousin is selling is machineries.

I am walking with my oldest son in an under passage and realize that two guys are also walking next to us. He is working for them even though he is still very young and they don't even care to greet him. As I follow them with my eyes I notice that my son is getting inside the women bathroom.

I am in a station trying to fetch a train but realize that I need to buy a ticket. I then hurry to buy one at a machine but there are two Iranian girls using it. They are trying to select their destination on a map and I just tell them to press it. It is not far but the get a ticket with many connections.

I am walking with my daughter and reach a lake with Chinese people dressing in traditional clothes. I first think it is a market where they sell traditional prints but as we keep walking I realize that they are baptizing young adults in the water. As I try to leave they offer candies to my daughter.

I am having a picnic in a mountain with locals and find an old cave. The entrance is filled with water and I put my legs inside. My son is also there and he is all dusty. I then tell him to wash himself fully but in a bigger hole but he gets sucked up to the bottom and I pull him up with my foot.

I am walking in the Thai capital searching for an ATM and get quite surprised of the many local punks. They are actually quite scary and I take a secondary road but it gets too residential and with no ATM. There is actually a blond girl laying naked and I ask her even though she is on drugs.

I am with my kids going down a slide and reach the bottom that they want to try again. I then realize that we have to buy tickets for it and wait behind another parent. The latter wants to go with his small son in a very dangerous slide and he is warned about it but he buys the tickets anyway.

I am with a girl in my parents old house and I tell her that there are handcuffs installed on top of the sink my mother has in her bathroom. She absolutely wants to see them and I show them to her. She then gets on the sink and tights her legs instead. I then notice her body covered in sperm.

I am searching for the name of my installation in the Italian alps and find that there are several more articles than I expected. One of them is written against the project and I see that they have added a small power plant in the rendering of the installation to make readers more indignant.

I am on a road talking to a former football player. He then tells me that once he tossed the ball across the city and all outdoor activities had to be suspended to see where the ball would land. I tell a friend who was painting a tall building at that time and had to stop in the middle of his job.

I am in an empty restaurant with my best friend and I realize that he is upset with me for a comment I made. I then tell him that I did not mean to hurt me but he is still very upset. He doesn't want to hug but I do it either way and cry telling him that he is still will remain my best friend.

I am watching a movie about two imperial guards standing in a cave with their naked chests sticking out of the water. The emperor concubines pass in front of them but one of them goes underwater to give a lowjob to one of the guards. As she does so also a eunuch does it with the other guard.

I am in a square with my Italian architect and he shows me on his phone how the main church looked like. It was very rectangular and then I look how now it is very much curved. He then tells me how his mother was behind the restyling and then also shows me a sundial she commissioned.

I am in a clinic seating with a few patients when the director comes to thank them saying that they are getting better. I then understand that they are bringing a lot of money to the clinic and try to talk to the director but he has to go. He just quickly offers me some tea only filling half of my cup.

I am checking a social media site for professionals to share their working contacts. I deleted my account many years ago but I see that they still have a copy of it and ask me whether I want to publish it again. I feel quite tempted about but then see then realize that they want some money for it.

I am walking in an Italian city and see that there is a big carnival parade approaching. I then try to cross a big intersection but there is a lot of traffic and I find a map of the city in the middle. I try to look at it and see where the parade is going but I don't even know the name of the intersection.

I am walking on a path along a hill with many other people buying snacks from market stands. There is was selling local pastry and I also consider buy some but as I get close I realize that the lady at the counter is coughing non stop. She is infected with a virus and spreads it to her costumers.

I am watching a critically acclaimed old movie starring an actor who later did only lousy comedies. He is the striker of a football team but the other striker just keeps it next to the other team golly waiting for the ball. At last the famous actor lets the ball thrown by their goal keeper score.

I am in a park talking to my girlfriend about my upcoming trip to the capital. I actually will meet my former Costa Rican girlfriend but do not dare to tell her. My girlfriend is also going to be in the capital with one of our kids and I then think I should meet my former girlfriend in the suburbs.

I am dressing like a monk and enter a big restaurant to pee. It is empty but suddenly get in a large room where a group of nuns is meeting. I then asks them where is the bathroom but then find it myself and tell a lady working there that I paint religious icons and have to wash my brush.

I am in my daughter small bedroom seating with the Italian clerks following the building permit for my installation. One of them asks how we are going to remember birthdays in the future and I say that I just had the exact same questions the day before and that there will be smart calenders.

I am in a city at night and a girl insists that I meet a guy with my last name. He is very tall but his face looks familiar and I ask him if his relatives came from my native village. They did not but I anyway ask if I can take a picture of him and he poses with another friend who is also very tall.

I am trying to show the daughter of my mountain neighbours an email on my phone with the invitation to a presentation I have to give. Her brother actually organized it and I try to search for his name but the application gets frozen. I then use another application to search for the address.

I am in my parents' house after a very long time and talk to my stepfather about a knee problem I have. He then tells me that it is related to my flat foot and he checks it. It is fully bending inward and he tells me I should have worn insoles in my shoes I can still try but it is too late.

I am at a party with my old high school friends and I tease one singing a song for him. He is actually together with another classmate who became a famous dentist and I show her my dirty teeth. She then offers to clean them for me at her practice and I realize that she has very white teeth.

I am standing outside a building with an old artist who was supposed to contribute to renovate it. It is now abandoned again and I look at the plants growing through the sidewalk while talking to him. At last I ask him what was his contribution and he tells me a tea spoon to melt heroine.

I am have just been elected the new president and wait for my secretary to let me sign a few documents. As I keep waiting I start cutting an ancient cross out of a magazine and the secretary gives me a box where I can store it. I also take an old African mask from the wall and put it inside.

I am in a small kitchen with my Swedish students and start cooking for them. My girlfriend is also there and wants me to wear the hat of a chef. It has some stupid text written on it and I don't want to. She insists and I just put it in the back of my head telling it hanging out like a normal hat.

I am in an apartment and realize that it is very early and that my stepfather was with my youngest son all night out. The apartment is completely untouched and there are no signs they have made it back but I assume that they did. We actually need to travel further but I let them sleep.

I am with my son at a restaurant and leave all our luggage in a corner. We then get in an elevator to go to a disco upstairs but my son realizes he wants to wear a tuxedo. I have one for him and as e call the elevator to go back down we find all our stuff inside it. We the repack all our luggage.

I am walking with my small daughter down a volcano. There is an old guy also coming down and he gets between us. As my daughter starts running down I also run but the guy forces me to go to the left of some bushes. As the bushes end there is a canyon but we all manage to jump it safely.

I am walking with my oldest son through a fortress and realize that it has been built in granite. I am afraid it might be toxic and tell him not to cover his mouth while breathing. As we get out we see that there is even a bike path going through it and get on a bike to continue our crossing.

I am in an empty airport and stop at a small electronic shop in front of a very large public toilette. I buy some special headphones for a new speaker I have but they are very expensive. The Indian seller also gives me some plastic cards I can use for further discounts but they are worth nothing.

I am in a small tennis field playing against two young guys. I am actually much stronger but don't have the proper clothes and decide to get changed. The guys are most impressed with me and just decide to wait there while I go in the changing room and meet an old friend from high-school.

I am walking inside a building with a Colombian friend who just got out of prison. He actually starts running and I realize that he is wearing his guerrilla suit. As we reach a room with a group of young girls seating around a table we also seat down and discuss the merging of our magazines.

I am in an apartment watching TV and keep searching for a movie while thinking. As I pay more attention to the screen I realize that there are only erotic movies in the section I am searching and I immediately switch to another section but they only have an old dinosaur movie for children.

I am in an Icelandic cabin with my daughter and she really wants to celebrate the new year. She then walks out to see if she can join a neighbour and I also follow her but then hear the voice of my sister celebrating in a nearby cabin. I open the door to join her but she gets really angry.

I am on a small boat with my son crossing a big river. There is actually a beautiful turquoise bird flying above it and I find one of his feathers floating. I actually manage to pick it up before the boat goes on top of it and I want to show it to my son but he keeps on staring the bird flying above us.

I am at a mechanic waiting for our camper to get fixed. As they are still repairing another one I put ours on the chart needed to transport it inside. I only then realize that there was a coupe before me and I apologize before the mechanic tells me that it is the kids stroller that needs reparation.

I am with my spiritual friend walking through an Australian city. We first come to a small square with many outdoor clothes for sale. I am interested in the price but my friend is not and look for the city center. We keep crossing a boring residential area. At the very end of it I see a small market.

I am going up the staircase of a condominium and reach a small space used as a church. The priest is giving the communion to an old lady with the help of a beautiful girl. The latter suddenly leaves the ritual to open a big window and prepare to give the communion to some dangerous bats.

I am in a crowded changing room and walk to the other side of a corridor to shower. An American guy behind me start blocking everyone else and claims that the two of us and another guy have the right to shower alone. I actually forgot my slippers and go back to the other room to get them.

I am biking inside a big wheel crossing a river. There are also other bikers with me but I soon realize that the wheel is spinning so much that it does not matter how fast we go. We can actually stand still and go the same speed as if we would pedal. I then do so but the others keep pedaling.

I am in a small square with my best friend and I ask him whether he thinks that the buildings around us are new or old. He thinks they are old and I can also tell that the style is old but if I look at the cement between the bricks I can tell they are new. The wall behind my back is also empty.

I am in an indoor stadium watching a football game and feel that the woman seating next to me is pressing her body against mine. She is actually there with her kids and I realize that she is highly pregnant and is suffering contractions. She begs me for a back massage standing in front of me.

I am in a meeting with a group of artists who have been part of an important show. I then realize I am not supposed to be there and that I am actually dressing up like a woman. As the meeting finishes I try to leave but a young artist also looking like a woman stops me to ask me out.

I am in the garden of our Dutch house looking at my stepfather taking all our bikes outside the shed I have built for them. I then go inside to see what is going on and I realize that there are also other bikes. I want to try one but my stepsister arrives and tells me that it belongs to her boyfriend.

I am the captain of a group of young fascists and drill them in the middle of a forest. I actually need to go pee badly and tell them to wait at a cross road. I then run to an empty cabin and stand on the kitchen sink to pee but realize that there is a cabin in front and they might be watching.

I am reading a newspaper writing about an accident in a mountain near my native village. I can see the picture of a group of soldiers standing right on the ridge on top before they precipitated. It is very steep and all of them are smiling while they hug each other unaware of the friable rock.

I am in a playground following my daughter to a slide where one of our Dutch neighbour is playing with her son. She also got a daughter and I go to her place to see her. We actually already got her a loaf of bread as a present but I see in their kitchen that they already had a lot of bread.

I am with my oldest son looking at a map of a walk we just did. I find that we have been walking a lot but he complains that we always have to walk very little because we never get to spend an entire day together. I could then show him other maps I drew with our previous walks but I don't.

I am getting in a classroom that a teacher has just finished to discuss my project. I then ask him if I could have some time to add a few things about it but he tells his students to leave. I then follow them to another classroom and ask how many of them are actually going to be art practitioners.

I am in my Venetian apartment laying in a small bed connected to a central closet. On the opposite side of the closet there is an identical bed with a Sudanese girl. She is actually renting the room and tells me that her father will soon join her even though the house rules do not allow visitors.

I am in a restaurant and see my former American director seating in a corner. I then realize that he has been a regular guest there and that famous people goes to him to share their personal problems. It is my turn to seat next to him but realize I have a message on my phone I need to answer.

I am in the empty lobby of a very big hotel and realize that there is a small sculpture of a famous artist. It consists of a glass box with a bigger lamp hanging higher than a smaller lamp. There is also a catalogue showing how much audience the artists had visiting his other installations.

I am in the new wing of a museum where my photo panels are installed. They are actually only a small part of my project and check the other side of the wall to see if I other works there. On a smaller wall there is a collection of my mugs and I think of proposing a wall with toothbrushes.

I am in a cafe with two Syrian brothers working as janitors. They are actually waiting for their third brother and at last a taxi arrives bringing him from the airport. Only the youngest brother goes out to welcome him and I realize that his whole profile looks more European than Arab.

I am in an abandoned building and find a room where to sleep. There is even a bed in a corner and I lay there but a guy also comes to sleep with me. As I see his small body naked and filled with freckles I get scared and look for another place where to lay. I find one but it is dirty with pooh.

I am in a big classroom with my spiritual friend and see in his computer that he has made a very iconic drawing. He then tells me that it is a homework for a teacher seating next to us. I actually did not prepare mine and I see that other students are also making iconic drawings at their desks.

I am walking in a corridor and meet my Swedish lesbian colleague lining up to go the opposite direction. Her blond hairs are actually black and she tells her other colleagues that we could be brothers. As I approach her she claims that it could be possible because she does not have a dick.

I am in a small shop in our Dutch town and get my teeth checked from a local dentist. She is very funny but then prepares a very high bill for fixing two cavities. As I walk out I am about to inform my girlfriend about it but realize that my cavities were not fixed and my teeth are still dirty.

I am walking up an old hotel left empty by a pandemic. The old handrails are all wet with disinfectant and I keep using it to reach the top floor where artists are talking about politics. As I make it to the roof I find my girlfriend and one of her colleagues are preparing a ballet for her students.

I am in a small living room playing with my kids when their grandfather calls us. He is on his way to visit us and I then wonder if he wants anything to eat. I could share some of the pasta I was making for us but then realize I also have some roast beef. I tell him about it but he keeps silent.

I am running a marathon with a famous champion and go ahead of everyone. As we reach a mountain road I offer him a ride with my tractor and drive to a restaurant parking in the shadow. I want to keep running but he meets and old friend there and I go pee behind some small pine trees.

I am just outside my garden and see an abandoned small cargo for cars. There is actually a rack attached to it and I want to see it I can fit it on top of my car. I then try one joint and it does fit in but I cannot get it out again and a gas starts coming out of the car and never seems to stop.

I am in the mountains working at my installation when the hunter who has his shed above me arrives. He supposed to be very angry with me but we start talking and I tell him that I am not against him. As he mentions some animal rights activists a gray wolf arrived followed by a white one.

I am watching a photo of the new fascist leader followed by a priestess giving her the communion. She runs away from her because she is black and realizes that there is a paparazzi photographing from the top of a wall. There are also some video footages but they are taken from too far away.

I am walking with my mountain neighbour in our street and tell him that I am interested in the empty house at the beginning. He tells me that there was a girl living there and once two boys came to visit her. One of them died and the other boy and the girl ended up in a psychiatric hospital.