

I am walking along a river and find my project museum next to a bridge. I then get inside to begin to weld the textures even though it is already closed. As I look for the pieces of the first part an old man comes in. He is an hunter and I yell at him to go out but there are other people watching.

I am in a small square with a black woman policeman wanting to beat me up. It is the second time she does even if I did not do anything. As I try to escape the American president manages it to wrestle her down to the ground. I then yell at her never to try to attack me anymore as she did.

I am in a car with my son and discuss with him when to buy a new airplane ticket for him. My girlfriend is actually driving and I check on my phone for possible dates. He wants to go late in June but I find a flight for the middle and he agrees. I then tell him that this time he must be sure of it.

I am on a train waiting next to the door when a lot of people get ready to get out. It is snowing outside and I also step out but a bigger crowd comes to get in. I then have to walk to the front and manage to get back on the train but I only find a seat next to the window and feel claustrophobic.

I am walking through a square at night when I cross some neo-nazis with their faces carved with symbols. They are about to storm the hostel where I am staying and I rush there to warn people. They don't listen to me and I just make it out in a terrace to climb onto other terraces and lay down.

I am in a pub watching a series with the Filipino bartender. As an episode ends I ask him if we can watch the others another time even though I am actually leaving the city. He then shows me that every episode is inside a bottle with a green liquid and that he can send these to my address.

I am in a villa with some of my Swedish colleagues seating in different places. They are very bored and I start telling them about the new concept I have developed for autonomy. I am very impressed with myself about the innovative things I am saying but they keep motionless in their positions.

I am inside a giant cave behind a group of people listening to a guide. I actually wonder about the lighting of the place she takes us out into the main entrance. The walls are giant and I realize that I could use the space to exhibit my work. I then ask her how I can also become their researcher.

I am walking next to a road and see some beautiful red horses. I then think that it was good that I am not driving as I could have injured one of them. I actually reach the villa where the black owners own outside tanning. I say hi to them but only the daughter replies while the father gets angry.

I am on a dike just outside our Dutch village when I get a phone call from a friend living there. He wants to drink coffee together but I am actually going to another friend who is living next to him. I then tell him that I can just come by and we can organize when to see each other in the future.

I am in a bedroom with the kids of my mountain neighbour. As I look for a book to read I find that the oldest of them has a box of condoms in a drawer. There is actually a used condom on the bed where I am seating and I go to the toilette to toss it even though every one is looking at me.

I am in a villa with the carpenter who renovated my barn. He shows me a local artist drawings and I realize that one of them is a graffiti I just saw. It shows the cartoon of a cat and I also have the same cartoon on my hat. The carpenter also has a hat in his hands but I cannot see the front.

I am in an empty monastery about to get in a room with my kids when a man approaches. He also has a kid but they are sleeping in a heated room while our room is without any heating. I actually don't mind and realize from his clothes that he is privileged because he is a Russian priest.

I am in a waiting room and realize that there is also my old Jewish girlfriend. As she leaves I tell the doctor about her and he sends other people to wait for me. I then go downstairs and walk with her to a Greek fast-food where I tell her how my girlfriend wanted a second kid after our first one.

I am in a small classroom reading an art book with a girl. It is about an unknown Renaissance painter and a priest tells us that his treaties were quite famous at that time. As he does so I realize that the girl has her left foot against my right foot but I do not feel anything and move it away.

I am in a park with a perfectly cut grass. I actually realize that it is my own property but everyone else in the neighborhood is using it. As I think of planting fruit trees my oldest son arrives and I tell him to eat some berries for breakfast. He starts picking them but they are not on my property.

I am on the top floor of my barn looking at a local carpenter finishing to install the floor. The architect is also there and ask him if he has put enough rebars. He says he has put plenty but he still has some left and he will give them to me before the weekend when he will be done with the job.

I am seating by a river with a girl and she wants to take a picture of me next to a very complex bridge. I then walk to the opposite side and she positions the camera towards me but as she is taking the picture the camera fell. She even used a tripod for it but it was probably not tight enough.

I am in a terrace with my old friends and enjoy the hot weather even though it is still cloudy. There is actually no wind and I realize it is the perfect condition to go to the beach and swim. I then tell them to come with me but my best friend is supposed to be working. We then decide to stay.

I am looking at a big billboard showing the participants to a conference. Going from the right to the left I see that every participants is ranked and for every discussion the best was made a king. I am also listed as one of the participants but my rank is kept among the lowest of my group.

I am in a night club with a small Indian child to take care of. I actually found a small room where we can sleep and we go to a buffet to get some food. As we come back to the run we find that an old man is seating there eating. There could be space for us also but I don't want to lie next to him.

I am on a dirt road with my youngest kid playing with small stones. As he tries to fetch a few he falls on his head but does not cry and keeps down. I then pull him up and realize that he is not my child but resembles one of our yoga Dutch friends even though he is blond and she is dark hair.

I am in my mountain village talking to my old neighbour when two cops arrive. They want to check whether I am in quarantine and rush back to my apartment. They actually follow me to see whether the other family members are doing their quarantine and fortunately they are all indoor.

I am in a restaurant with my relatives when a couple from another table come to ask my stepfather to join them. He refuses and they go back to play an old instrument. It looks like a guitar but then they connect the strings to a piano and I get moved by the beautiful performance they execute.

I am walking along a Brazilian beach enjoying all the movement of people in and out of the water. I then get my camera out to film them and set it on a trash bin to also include myself in the film but a black thug shows up and I manage to run to the camera before he steal it from me.

I am standing in front of a small library on top of a staircase and look at the interesting books inside. As I try to open the door I realize that it is a private apartment belonging to an old professor. I then walk back down to a supermarket and meet the old professor but he is not willing to talk.

I am in a square at night and seat on a bench where to English girls are discussing on how to walk back to the city. I then tell them that I have walked all the way and one of them gets on top of me with her breast out. Soon after also the other do the same but she is much uglier and fatter.

I am outside a villa with a German carpenter showing me how to attach a large brick on a wall. He is using a special plaster that can keep the brick attached even if it is sticking out. As he manages to do so we get on some motorized small bikes to reach his workshop where he is many tools.

I am in a garage loading the pieces for my museum. Three men are helping me carrying them in a truck but they keep on breaking. I then tell them to stop and just download some silicon tubes I brought to connect the pieces. They start doing so but I realize that I will have to pay for their help.

I am driving with my girlfriend behind her mother's car and I realize that it has an Italian target plate. I then wonder how can that be possible and she explains to me that that kinds of car does not exist in their country. I then think we should also get an Italian target plate to pay less taxes.

I am walking with a couple down a road of my native highland. As we talk about how bad is a local politicians I show them a shortcut through the snow. As we cross a barbwire I realize that it got quite dark and there is ice under the snow. We then start rolling down and pass another road.

I am looking at a map where my spiritual friend is now on holiday. It is an island and I can see that the southern part is a resort for Canadian tourists while in the middle there is a temple complex. My friend is there but finds that the card they gave him to access it has hidden bugs to spy him.

I am checking a book of my mother and realize that it is about how to masturbate. There are several illustrations showing what one should and should not do. In order to masturbate for three hours in a row I look at illustrations showing a soft penis. It has to be pointing up and not down.

I am walking with my best friend on a sidewalk and find a plasticized image. As we keep on walking I find the same image again and he explains me that it belongs to the boycott. I collect only one and as we keep on walking we find in one spot several other ones that we haven't seen before.

I am in the garden of a condominium and notice two guys playing volleyball using a bush as a net. As I come closer I realize that the one standing on my side is my Polish friend. He then stops playing and we start talking about our progress with our art works but he is not at all enthusiast.

I am in the middle of a street and manage to remove an iron block that was placed to divide the two lanes. An old family friend is with me and asks what kind of work I do. As I take the block on one side of the road I explain that I have no work and just use iron to make a giant sculpture.

I am in my mountain apartment at night when I hear some hooligans arrive. I then wait outside behind a tractor and see them getting inside. My bed blanket has the Spanish flag printed on it and I go away with it. I also have their flag and walk to a garden to burn it but they come my way.

I am in my mountain village sorting the textures I have welded to cover my project museum. One of my neighbours come by even though he has been diagnosed with a deadly virus. He keeps no distance from me and I realize that he is a repressed homosexual and wants to make love with me.

I am with my girlfriend in a small clinic talking to the owner. He is a friend of my parents and offer us to train in his machines. He tells us that there are already people from one village coming there to train but our village is even further away and there is too much driving to do for us.

I am in a modern villa building a smaller villa using toy blocks. The owner comes to see what I have accomplished and I show him how I have added several sharp shapes resembling small boats. I did it on purpose knowing that he likes sailing but I realize that the result is not very pretty.

I am in a mall walking with my kids after having discovering that I have cancer in my hands. We actually reach a group doing yoga and I ask the teacher for some information. He then shows me a brochures with all the yoga postures and how the improve the inner parts of my body.

I am in my daughter's new school and seat next to her. The teacher comes and asks if there are any students missing. I then help her counting the empty desks on the other side of the classroom. There are many but she anyway tells us to start an assignment filling different numerical tables.

I am on a road with a friend when my mountain village old neighbour complains about the way I have been plastering a wall. I then tell him that I did not do it but he keeps angry and my friend takes a stick to break a lamp he has put up. The old man is shocked but stops complaining.

I am in a zoo with my kids and see a big snake outside. As I go check it with my youngest son I realize that it is eating another animal. We then walk back and see a white rhino grazing near us. We want to photograph it but a purple bear comes attacking us and we try to rush back inside.

I am in a cafeteria and hear an English girl asking an Italian girl to take over her work shift. The latter agrees but does not know who to inform. I then try to search on my phone the right contact person but she shows me on her phone a picture of all the other young Italians working there.

I am in a German city at night following a tourist guide. He takes us under a large platform where there is a beautiful Chinese temple carved like a ship. He actually tells us that it is only a reconstruction but that in another city there is still an original temple that was kept in bunkers.

I am in a small apartment watching a film with my twin sister. Our stepfather is studying on the other side of the room but he gets very upset about the noise we are making and move to a smaller room next to us. We then resume watching the film but he gets even angrier and starts jelling.

I am in a big hotel and want to take a walk outside. The ground level is actually on the fifth floor and I take the elevator to go down. It actually drops free and by the time it breaks it is under another elevator. I am then stuck on the third floor and have to wait for the other elevator to go up.

I am walking in a park and come to a gate with several policemen. They are supposed to check my identity card and I show it to the one who seems the nicest. My identity number is ripped and I help him to read it correctly. It turns out to be the name of a special fragrance to make tea with.

I am a prisoner in a camp laying outside in the middle of the night. I am on an actual bed but feel cold and hungry. I then decide to stop to be so miserable and wash myself in a nearby stream. The water is warm and I suddenly have the inspiration to learn a special martial art to resurrect.

I am watching a movie about a Korean couple in a silver coffin. They are being transported by two black men on a boat. As they reach an island they are let out and get into a resort. They are supposed to kill everyone but have no tickets to get in and try to distract the receptionist to steal them.

I am with my spiritual friend next to a river when I see a boat with an old man and his date. The water is quite agitated and we also get to ride with them to a small harbour below a bridge. We then get on the bridge to go back and realize that it is a crane that transport us to the opposite side.

I am in a small square looking at a gang of Bulgarian guys. Their boss is very big and his bike is also much bigger than normal. An old friend is with them and he convinces me to be part of the gang and take care of their drug dealing. We then position ourselves below them like our new rank.

I am on a beach with my girlfriend and she tells me to look at a giant bird behind me. I then turn a bit and see the other side of the beach filled with penguins. As I get ready to photograph them she tells me to turn even more and I see a huge cassowary. I realize that it can be deadly and run.

I am walking with an old friend in a path down a valley. As we enter a tunnel he starts telling me how little he can walk with my best friend. He praises how much more adventurous it is with me but the tunnel is flat and covered with marble. There are several exits but we keep on straight.

I am at a concert and notice that the main musician is standing next to me. He is waiting for a technical problem to be solved while another singer goes around the audience asking who can speak Italian. I then tell her that I am Italian and she brings me on stage but I don't know what to do.

I am walking in a city park at night and end up at a gate with a lot of drug addicts. One of them wants to rob me and starts running after me. I then also run but I am not that fast and just cross an intersection just before the green light turns red. He then has to stop and I can resume walking.

I am in a neighborhood pulling my kids on top of our trailer. The hook in the front keeps going down and there is a family with many aggressive dogs ahead of us. As the owner keeps them quiet I manage to walk pass them and find a way for the hook to keep straight without bumping down.

I am walking with my girlfriend in an empty boulevard and meet one of her old friend. She has a fancy dress on and I think of a joke that she has been working as a prostitute to make money to buy her new house. I actually keep it for me and let my girlfriend and her talk together in Dutch.

I am in a big American city looking for the harbour. I then walk through a new mall and get on an escalator. I finally find the harbour and a policeman tells me how to get to my gate. I walk through the crowd and get on my boat but it is an helicopter and it starts flying over the skyscrapers.

I am in the square of a modern city and see my old mountain neighbour dressing up like a hooker. She is completely drunk and I go to check if she needs my help but then an Eastern European girl arrives with a lot of money in a bag. My neighbour yells at her and get the money to pay a debt.

I am in my mountain village when my Neapolitan friend arrives. I then think that he is interested to hear about the progress I am making with my installation but he just starts looking else where. At last I remember that there is another southern Italian living with me and I introduce them.

I am on a train and recognize my old Austrian girlfriend. I then seat in front of her and ask her about her small brother and her city. She is surprised but does not recognize me. As I look in her eyes I suddenly realize that they are brown and not blue as the ones I am sure my girlfriend had.

I am in an empty office making love to a girl I just met there. I actually cannot come and we both just keep on making love without pleasure. I then start penetrating a power socket next to me and then get back to the girl. She is suddenly very excited and we are both able to come very quickly.

I am in an apartment with my kids when a friend of my former wife arrives. She is there to pick up some blankets and realize they have been used. She then suspected me to have cheated on my ex but I actually already have to children with my current girlfriend. She does not seem to get it.

I am walking in a Russian mall when I see that the communist party has organized gymnastics for everyone. I then join them and try also to do the movements of a man working a land. The coach in the also lays on the ground with his hands on his head. He is making the figure of a dead deer.

I am on top of a tower with my oldest son. It is newly refurbished by an architect and we try to look at the scenery through vertical panels he has placed all around it. They are too much on the way and I realize that if he would have placed them a little lower we would have been able to see.

I am walking with an old friend to another friend giving a party in a palace. As we reach it we hear very loud music and realize that there is a smaller building next to it where a poor Polish guy is opening an art gallery. We walk up to see but only find a portable toilette in front of a television.

I am in my mountain apartment washing a pot where I just made soup. There is a small frog inside and I realize that there is a small pond on the other side of the sink. I want to throw it there but there is also a small snake. As I try to get rid of it I realize that the small frog became very big.

I am walking a pathway to an old villa I have just moved to. There are some ants coming my way and I realize that one is carrying a paper with some notes I have written down. I don't bother to save the notes but I am very impressed about the strength of the ant who disappear under a wall.

I am seating outside a small restaurant with my girlfriend and try to read the name on sign over the door. The middle letter is also a logo and it takes me some time to understand what it is. As I finally get it I write to my spiritual friend who has just landed and should be reaching us there.

I am walking in a portico and look inside a window. I realize it is the house of my girlfriend Italian professor and notice his laptop on the floor. It is on and I can see that he is writing a book on another book we have previously discussed together. I liked it but then completely forgot about it.

I am at a conference and talk to one of the organizers. She complains that she is doing all the creative work alone and I suggest her to make a conference within the conference to think about the future conferences. She does not really understand me and just asks to see my art portfolio.

I am outside a cafe and ask an old friend where is my best friend. He tells me to go inside and I prepare to give him presents for his family. I actually find him and he opens the present for his son and starts playing with it. There is another present with a ring inside but he is not interested.

I am in my mountain village when I get a phone call from an old architect who has been trying to sabotage the building of my museum. I am actually kind to him and we start talking but in the end I hear a female voice. It is a message warning me that the conversation is being recorded.

I am in the small gym where I use to train in my American high-school. There is still the old equipment we used with my swimming team but there is a new coach. He explains me and another visitor that it is a very good equipment to do training on rotation but I think it can be very harmful.

I am inside a city hall waiting to present a building permit for my museum. The two politicians who have been trying to turn it down are also there and one of them asks to see the permit. He starts writing and I am impressed about his calligraphy but then realize the awful things he is writing.

I am in following my American curator friend inside a condominium where we will live together. He actually take a door to another staircase and I go up to see if I can find his name on a doorbell. I actually read my own but realize it is only a message I left when I was looking for an apartment.

I am in line with other people who have put their shopping chart underwater. Some shopping charts emerge filled with golden screws and I also wait to see if I get something. There is another guy next to me and I realize that the shopping chart is his and I will have to further down in the line.

I am in a big office space and realize that in order to move from one desk to another I have to hang on some pink threads hanging from the ceiling. As I try to understand if they are strong enough I see some other colleagues using them and I realize I will never be as strong as them to do so.

I am in a parking lot with some black immigrants. They have just made in the country and they are waiting to assisted but I realize that they are all on their own now. I am supposed to pretend that they will be soon relocated but they are too intelligent and I look at them accepting their destiny.

I am driving with my kids in my mountain village and realize that the babysitter is sitting on the side of the road reading a book. I was supposed to pick it up and I look at the clock. I am already late and I wonder how she got there and then search if her brother also came along but he didn't.

I am with my girlfriend and kids outside movie theater. We actually have tickets for later in the evening but want to take a look in one of the rooms. As we approach a guard tells us that families have to use the front entrance and we have to walk over a highway. We will do so in the evening.

I am in a clinic talking to a doctor about a Mexican girl who came to volunteer for our sculptural park. He tells me that she had a virus in her vagina and they had to connect a tube to it to try to suck it up. It is a long process and she will have to wait a long time at the hospital before she heals.

I am in an apartment with my ex wife and she tells me that she just saw a big black car parked in front of the apartment we want to buy. We then realize that there could be someone else putting a higher bid. We agree to stay in our current apartment that has a garden but it is only for rent.

I am in a school with my children and walk through a crowd of young students. As we are making it upstairs we see some older students presenting an installations with long lights twisted on the floor. One of them walks over them and activate another light on his head with different colours.

I am seating in the near of a Dutch canal listening to a professor praising the work of a black artist next to me. The professor is also an artist but says that he finds impossible to do any work while in academia. I want him to comment further on this but he completely ignores my questions.

I am walking next to a railroad and reach an abandoned metro station. There is a girl with very long hairs biking in front of me and I ask her for her ride but she gets in a tunnel without me. I also walk inside and find that she is anyway unable to bike there. We then continue in silence on foot.

I am in a bus waiting for my daughter to wake up in a tent with many other kids. The teacher finally opens the tent and one of the parents tells me to see if I can spot my daughter. I can see several heads and through a mosquito net one eye of my daughter but cannot make contact with her.

I am in a playground trying to walk to the opposite side of a big trampoline when one guy comes jumping in my direction. A second one arrives jumping even higher and I realize that they must be soldiers training. They can even flip in the air and I just move away from the slide to watch them.

I am in a mountain village taking my time to get ready to start the day when I see a young and an old man walking down. I then realize that I only have ten minutes to go to a public meeting about my project. I actually don't care and start caressing the head of the young man who is red hair.

I am with my uncle and twin cousins standing in front of a gate. There is a lion on the opposite side and I inspect how strong is the metal. It is too thin but we keep there and to comfort one of my cousins who has lost everything. I then tell him that who falls from high up will return high up.

I am in a room seating next to a Chinese girl. I can actually feel her leg next to mine and realize that she likes me. I then try to caress her under her shirt but as I approach her breast she jumps up. The Chinese guy on the opposite side was also trying to touch her and she really dislikes him.

I am with some students in an Eastern European city and notice a canal with boats. It resembles some Western European cities but then I look at the buildings. The one underneath where we are is all unpainted and I realize how much Communism has managed to destroy the old charm.

I am walking in a university campus talking to a professor on the phone. She needs to tell me where I should spend the night and I wait for her to give me instructions. She is unable to do so and lets me talk to her husband who is actually Russian. Luckily he does speak some broken English.

I am in the living room of a villa with the officer who has just discovered how locals have been hunting protected birds. He is very proud of it but I intervene saying that now I want to see how long they will be jailed. I then tell the officer that I know that the person backing them is his brother.

I am on a field with my sister watching the type of cultivation there. I first think they are growing rice but then realize that we are standing on a beach and what we see is the sea. She then tells me that it is growing and in a few decades the entire village including her house will be under water.

I am in a city hall and meet two politicians who have been trying to block the building of my museum. They only speak dialect and we anyway shake hands before going inside to a meeting with the mayor. I think we would have talked about my project but they start discussing other matters.

I am in my mountain village and notice that a local carpenter is calling me. He is in a house above and I reach him. He then takes me inside to show me how I can use a scaffolding there. It is very big and I try to remove all the pieces by myself but it is too complicated and also way too heavy.

I am in an empty train station waiting for a girl who is supposed to volunteer for my project. She is traveling from afar and as she arrives I realize that she is much uglier than in her profile photos. As we start walking I also notice her huge butt and think that she will hardly be able to help me.