

I am walking with a girl around a lake and she stops to kiss her boyfriend for the last time before she leaves with with me. I then look out to the opposite side and find a little castle. I then say goodbye to him but he wants to accompany us. We go through a video store and he suggests me a film. I attend the first day of a course and find the books in my locker even though I have withdrawn. I then tell the secretary that I will try it for a day and listen to the teacher who starts to asks mathematical equations. A new teacher comes and we swap to another row of lockers but I want to quit. A friend tells me how easy it would be to drive to Africa. We were actually supposed to go to India and tell my other friends but he doesn't want to come. My stepfather cannot bike any longer and decides to drive us there. I then seat in the car with my sister and cousin who follow asleep already. I am in a house having lunch and realize that a famous terrorist is in front of me. I have read that he spent some time in Sweden and speak Swedish to him. He answers and seems very kind. We then leave at night with another guest and she tells me that the terrorist has committed suicide. I am at the edge of a forest talking to my university colleagues. An American starts talking about autobiographies and I tell her a whole list of Russian authors. I am really impressed of myself but she suddenly tells how asymmetrical their works is. It sounds really sharp but I don't understand. My wife and I are seating with my uncles around a big oval table. There is no food and we just talk when my wife suddenly announces them that she is pregnant. She then adds that she is about to abort but I interrupt her and tell them how she is going to get a puppy instead. I am with my father in his small bedroom from when we were kids. He is actually remembering a little friend from his childhood who died. He is crawling around the bunk bed holding a piece of paper like a plane. It is actually burnt but there is nothing written on it. I am on a car with a guy driving to my parents' old place in the countryside. I read on my phone that I have got two positions. One is actually in a Norwegian city and I ask him what he thinks of it. He then tells me that it is actually overdeveloped but I reply that the salary is much higher. I with my cousin looking at my sister driving her jeep on a street with big trucks. We then go to his new house in the middle of the same street. It is actually very modern and we walk down the staircase. Each step has an orange table with painted animals. I am walking with my family but leave them to go for an ice cream in a fancy place. There is a long queue and I go in the back where two girls are running hand in hand. One of them with dark hair also takes my hand but I let her free. Her boyfriend is there and we walk on the beach together. I am on top of a mountain with my kid but we can hear the motor saws. We are actually going again in a closed path in the forest and I propose to go out in the sun. There is allot of snow we can eat but as soon as we seat down our bob falls. We look where it precipitates but it stops right below. I am in a gallery setting up an exhibition and meet a Japanese girl who wants to show a bunch of colorful illustrations. I tell her to do it but they are very dark and also take up the back of the gallery. Her boyfriend has a piano there but the gallerist told him that the works fit well together. I get in a small shop where two guys are gluing my collages on the floor. They are actually the same and I tell them to glue only different kinds. I then ask them how many others should I print but I can't focus and start moving a wooden shelf with plants in the back of the room. A black guy is trying to conquer a famous black actor. He works as a cleaner on a side-walk where she is taking her stroll. She actually notices her and recognize that he is a famous rapper. They get in love and realize that they are both really fat with dark curly hair on their armpits. I am in the metro and tell my kid to get on a green train. I am not sure he remembers where to get off and asks a driver to take him. He tells me that we can get the red train and go together. As we get off we find a playground where my wife is telling her boss that we couldn't get any more kids. I am walking with two friends on a beach at night and meet two gypsy women. I then call my dogs and we find an excuse to get in a house for dinner. One of them gets hold of me and tells me that I can actually hug her. She is actually quite pretty and I hug her. She starts counting and I come. I am with two others in a warehouse wearing a snorkeling outfit. A man is inspecting us and wants to give us his special shoes to try. He only has small numbers but I go out to try anyway. It is actually my old boss who is working on that project but he tells me that he is not making any profit. I am in an apartment and find a small sensor. I show it to a friend and he asks me what I think it is. I look at it closely and say that it is a microphone but he comes to me with a glass of alcohol. He then tells me to put it inside and as soon as I do it starts spinning. It is an alcohol detector. I am in my native village when a group of Austrian firemen arrives. They inquire about a street and a local explains that they changed a few things. He is actually my relative and I wonder if he can speak our German dialect with them. He is left with a young Austrian and they can do it well. I get a prize at a festival and attend a presentation but wonder when we will install our work. Another winner tells me that it is already installed and they take us to a church to see it. It is very nice inside but they have only placed my catalogues on the altar. I get upset and try to order them. I am at a small party and hear an old filmmaker telling how he doesn't want his films on a website. I actually tell him that I saw them on another website and he is impressed. I then try to tell him how close we used to live in the mountains but my uncle comes and starts telling silly things. I am at an American friend's place looking through his film collection. I can't find anything interesting and tell a Japanese girl who is hosting me that it is time to go home. My American friend is actually an old Swedish homosexual and asks me to come back. I promise to be back but I will not. I am with my cousin in a park and find a jogging track. It is actually all covered with ice but he starts jogging anyway. I also do it but then find some coins on the ground. I let him jog and pick them up. My wife is also there and finds an expensive filter for our car that is now at the mechanic. I am with my son and wake up at a friend of a friend's place. We go to the kitchen where he is preparing breakfast for us. My son is soaking the steel floor with a sponge and I tell the guy that we will go out to do some grocery for him. It is very sunny out and we reach the mall under a poncho. I am seating at a table and drawing in front of a girl who used to play with me when I was little. She is not so friendly and I ask her if she remembers me. I then tell her who I am but she doesn't seem so surprised. She actually tells me about her beautiful sister who has just cut her hair short. I am jogging with two old friends and come to the old house where we are staying. There is another friend there and I see that he brought my lamp downstairs. We then look for the keys under the roof and I worry that he has taken my room. As we get inside I find him training in another room. I am listening to the radio about an economic reform being approved by a minister. I am actually in my parents' bedroom and look at a map showing the votes for a secessionist part from the North. My stepfather is actually reading in bed and I show him how many votes they got in the South. My wife and I get in a classroom and the Korean teacher announces that we will have to take our exam starting a year ahead of our graduation. I feel very good in history and start taking that exam. As I seat in the dark a student arrives with a tray of sliced meat. I get a dish together with jam. I am in a market place and look at a guy carrying a big ham. He then takes his shirt off to show his big muscles while cutting the skin. I am not afraid of him and hold a knife against him but then run away. I fear he might catch me and get in the public bathroom where I find an empty toilette. It is late at night and I zap through the TV channels looking for some naked chicks. I find one but it is only a film from a famous comedian. He is in the channel of an old city driving a boat that has no breaks. It is actually a race motorcycle and he drives through a square with school kids. I am in the kitchen cooking and talking to my cousin. He tells me how his twin brother just found a girlfriend in a big Canadian city and how cheaply they live. As I am frying the noodles with cheese he tells me that both of them have had some money problems and are now in debts. I am with my kid when I get an e-mail saying that they have received my application. As I wonder what kind of job it is I notice a list of banners at the bottom. I click on one and find a perfume. I then understand that it is a cosmetic company I have applied to but I will never get the job. I am laying on the sofa talking to a Norwegian colleague who tells me that he is only going abroad to teach. I actually fall asleep and when I wake up again I go out to the terrace. I see him leaving with his girlfriend. My wife is inside and she tells me that they are now living right in front of us. I get to a playground and notice that they have removed a leg from the wooden swing. Two small kids are actually using it but it seems to stand anyway. One of the kid actually pushes his little sister on the ground and she seats without crying but asking what was the meaning of it. My family and I are watching an American adventure film and I go to the kitchen to pick some cheese to eat. They already ate it and the first episode is over. We then go to a small grocery shop to buy ice-cream and find the second episode. We actually try it but it is a video-game and not a film. A guy is up at night making ceramic tiles and placing them on the side-walk. There are actually allot of mobile phones and a policeman shows him how to shake them and make them ring. The guy tries them and find one that has a call on hold. It is the former black boyfriend of a blond girl. I am biking in an old city with my cousin and go along a little river to find a way out of the ancient walls. We actually find an old door and walk through it. My best friend is also there praying in front of a small sculpted skull when a kid comes and hits him hard in the knees. My wife and I get in a restaurant and order some tea. We then go to the main room and find my uncle and his family at the end of it. They have ordered potatoes with whipped cream and I observe them through my laptop. I actually realize how kid they have always been to us and start crying. I am walking with a family friend and her kid on a busy road where they live. There is a studio there where I should take my little sister for a radiography. We get in a building to look for it but find an angry kangaroo. We then run in a room where a guy gives me an expensive disk he did for me. I am watching a film of a man who scream in the jungle. He is caught by an amazon who is keeping him imprisoned. She actually burns his chest with a branched stick that leaves small balls. She then start sucking them with a straw while he implores her to let him go but she won't listen. I am in a cafeteria when a priest asks about my work. I then tell her that I don't have any and ask her and her friends if they need a gardener. They can't speak English and I decide to go out to swim in the ocean. I undress by a small kid keeping the door close but outside is too dark and cold. I get in a supermarket to buy a cake for my son's birthday and talk to a shop assistant. I want his name on it and she talks to her boss for an estimate. It is actually cheaper than a normal cake and she shoes me all the different backgrounds I can use. I choose one with my son's favorite toy. My wife and I have just bought the old apartment of a count. It looks new from the outside and I go out to the terrace to check. As I lean forward and find that the facade has been remade with cement a big crow attacks me. He wants food but I don't have any and run back inside. An old friend and I get to the beach of a city in the South. We then seat and listen to a local guy who complains about another guy. I then tell him that I can kill him but realize that my friend and I are getting sun burnt. There is actually a blond girl in a bikini putting sun lotion to her friend. I get home to a friend place that is dinner time. His mother has not cooked anything and I go to my room feeling very hungry. I pass by the kitchen and find the sink with allot of red apples. I want to get one but see that they still have green spots and understand that they are not ripe. I am in my apartment cooking shrimps with tomato sauce. The door is open and I hear my sister telling her kid to watch TV. It is actually a beautiful day out and I go downstairs to tell her to go out instead. As I get in their dark apartment I find that she was talking to my kid and get very angry. I am driving my old car to my native village and take a shortcut. The road is very narrow but I drive very fast and pass another car. At the intersection I decide to take a break and put my little kid in the stroller to walk but crash it on a rock and make him cry. I am in my apartment at night and looking out of the window. There should be a church on the hill but I can't see it anymore. There is actually a giant shed right behind it. It has been newly erected and I look at it thinking that I could also use it to build a church but without the big windows. I am with a Korean man and come to a lake where my son is trying to reach a deflated balloon. The water gets too deep and we both go in to help him. As we get out again he tells me of a river in his country where it is possible to swim across but a friend of him tells me that it is too cold now. I wake up late at night and find a Japanese girl hugging me. Her boyfriend should come anytime and I turn to the other side of the bed. There is actually a fat girl there. She is the daughter of a family friend and I find that she has a site with pictures of her fucking a guy together with a nice girl. I am in a museum and find the exhibition of some art students. I criticize a wooden sculpture resembling a furniture but then find a glass box with metal balls flying inside. I prise the work to the brother of the artist. The latter is dark skin and actually comes to present the work. I get to a disco and meet some friends. No one is dancing and I tell a fat guy to slide with his belly on the floor. He doesn't but slides over the pool table. I am impressed and get even more when he starts showing us a documentary of a pool Brazilian family he was working with as a missionary. I am going with my family to an African state. It is actually a small island and we access it through the parliament. We then walk through the center and find a place where to change our money. There is a queue of soldiers but they are fast and exchange our money with two pinches of pepper. It is morning in a forest camping and my stepfather wakes up to have breakfast with cookies. He then asks me if I have already eaten and I tell him that I will do it later. He actually ate up all the cookies and gets angry that I haven't warned him but I explain that I already had cereals before. I get to the studio of an artist and congratulate him for the fair he has organized. He actually wants to help me and tells me that I could get the studio of a dying artist. I then wait for him with his wife talking on the phone with their daughter. The latter is playing music while I eat rotten grapes. I am home waiting for my wife who is not coming back from her work. There are actually three old ladies who has joined us for dinner and I realize that I still have a pot of food under the table where they are seating. My phone is actually off and I turn it on again in case my wife calls me. I am walking home with a colleague at night and meet my old supervisor. He actually lives in my parents neighborhood and I follow him to his place. As he walks up the staircase of his house I show him the yellow condominium where my parents live. He can't see it and just go inside. A radar shows that a bomb is being dropped on the president's office. He actually turns invisible and stands on the door side to shoot at a terrorist. The gun is fake and he cuts his throat. More terrorists arrive and he lays in a terrace. His sister is with them and finds him but then forgives him. I am teaching with a colleague a university course and a student asks for his contact. I then go upstairs to fetch our business card but meet another student who wants to take part in our course. She is a tall French brunette and very beautiful but I have no time since my colleague is waiting. I am in the apartment with my old friends. As one of them is getting selected to a curator program I go to the bathroom and find the toilette filled with shit. I have to flush several times and manage to get rid of it but then see that three pieces are left outside. They are molding and I get nausea. I am walking with my cousin in my native village and come to a square in front of a war memorial. My uncle's new motorcycle is parked there and I seat on it trying one of the helmets. I manage to unlock it by pulling up the seat but actually break a plastic hook inside. I then put it back again. I am at the airport but cannot find the check-in. I then ask an old hostess and she tells me to wait with the other passengers. She comes back to us saying that the flight is stopping in Norway and we need a visa. She gives me my passport and I find a red stamp inside taking up a whole page. An architect has his workshop on a beach. He explains to us that he owns all the furnitures but the owner is going to construct a residence there. We then help him to move his stuff and I take a big bag on my shoulder. We then get to a supermarket to buy oregano for him but I already have it. I am with my sister who is telling me about a car accident that our old friend just had. She is accusing me that I have distracted him. I did not but realize anyway that he was hit from behind and it was not his fault. They were actually two girls in a little car who didn't keep the safe distance. I am with a friend and pass through an old square with an old woman sleeping on top of a glass staircase. As we come back she is downstairs and begs me for a chestnut. I give it to her but she wants more. Her hands are actually too small and I show her how to hold them close together. I am just starting to walk in my parent's city with my son. We are looking for a toy store but actually find an ice-cream place. It is actually owned by some distant cousins and they come out to greet us. I suddenly remember that I was supposed to meet them and pretend we came on purpose. I am laying on the floor of a classroom to take a nap with my classmates. There is actually a storm out and remember that our French teacher is responsible for the electricity. He is gone and I crawl out to the terrace looking for the switch but then start recording the wind with my cellphone. I am outside my old office that is raining. The printer is also outside and I pick up a manual pretending to read it. I then go back inside and seat in front of my kid playing with a little Jewish girl. I make a portrait of her but actually look at my son's face. I then draw her as she was kissing him. I am walking with my cousin in a Russian field and cross two hunters. Their dogs growl at us and we hurry to the edge of a ravine. It is very beautiful and I take out my camera to film. There is a spring with ancient sculptures but my hand is too shaky. As I try again a Russian blocks my view. I am with a friend at a fair and pass by a Japanese guy with his friend. He is actually smoking a cigar and asks my friend to take a picture with his camera. As my friend prepares to do it I also take my camera out to photograph him. I can't put the automatic mode and have to give up. I am with my wife inside our car at night when a famous pop star comes up to us dancing while holding our son in the arms. We are actually on a rotating platform surrounded by real dinosaurs. It starts spinning and should take off but the pilot explains to us that we are too heavy for that. I am looking at the map of an island searching for a house to buy. There are plenty of it but they have all been sold. As I look at the outskirts I realize that there is still a strip of land where they might built some new houses. On the opposite side is another town that even has a train connection. I am in the forest with my wife and reach an old tree that is rotting on top of a small hill. As we keep it around it I find an Egyptian bill. It is not so much but I pick it anyway for my trip there. Someone has actually cut off the figures of another bill. It is actually worth much more but unusable. I am at a lecture and seat in a narrow wooden bench with the teachers lecturing from behind. I am actually absorbed in my thoughts when a girl starts panting on my side. She actually asks me where I come from but then it is time to leave and I am left alone. A waiter comes to ask me out. I am with my cousin selecting a new car on the Internet. He actually chooses a very expensive one and we get in to try it with his girlfriend. He actually drives away without paying heading to his father's studio in the suburbs and showing us how he has built an outdoor slide of wrapping film. I am at my in-law's place when an expensive car arrives. It is the parents of a little girl who is playing with my kid. The father goes in to get her and I pretend not to be impressed by their car. He actually gives my son a whole package of pudding and I greet them but the mother doesn't answer. I am at home when my cousin comes with some friends. As we seat together on the table I start putting together broken pieces of an article. The guy next to me has one and he tells me that he has been in my solo show in Italy. He is actually talking of a group show I almost forgot about. I am at my party with my relatives and meet a big guy who was a friend of my father. He wants me to stay with him but he is drunk and I make up an excuse to go. He actually gets offended and wants to beat me. I go back to my room at once and my aunt brings me the things I left there. I am walking in my old neighborhood that all the shops are closed and there is no one around. I actually cross a South American guy I knew from an artist group. We greet each other and I tell him that I am actually going to visit the Swiss leader of the group but he actually became a soldier. I am looking at the river out of our apartment and see a giant pelican and its companion approaching. I then call my wife and run to the next room to follow them passing the house. They are actually really big and have their son in the front. I call my wife again to come but no one answers. I am taking my son to school and pass by the central station. We actually don't go in but keep walking by the entrance. An Asian man goes in and my son suddenly says that he already saw him before. There are actually many people we cross everyday and I wonder how he can remember him. I wake up in a small apartment with my Polish friend and start to plan our day. We are in a new American city and he wants to go to have breakfast at the pond where a famous poet used to live. I actually wanted to eat at home and don't go so far but pretend like I am enthusiast of his idea. I am at a small party and gather around a small circle of friends. We start talking about a Japanese art gallerist who I think is really unprofessional. As I am about to say what I think a curator friend tells us that he just got a baby and he is now a big success in town. I am walking in a dirty city and come to a small square. There are some punks seating on a wall and they tell me to seat with them. They actually have some small white pit bulls and I don't want to. One actually takes hold of my leg and the punk has to use another pit bull to get him away. I am in the bathroom looking at the e-mail a Japanese friend has prepared for a job at a bakery. There are actually two photos of the nice cake she can make but the bakery only serves bread. As I go out of the bathroom I find her in my room cleaning the dirty mattress of my son's bed. I am walking in a big city and get in an art gallery where I find the catalogues from three people of an art department I once met. As I go in another room I actually meet one of them and he takes me in to his students. I show him my catalogue but he tells me to wait and presents as a professor. I am with two students and follow a professor in a university building. It is a wooden cupola and he walks in a staircase inside it. It is very narrow and I am afraid of going. I am actually blocking the students behind me and finally decide to go in pushing my step up the very first step. I am with some friends in a house where a beautiful girl leaves. She is already engaged to one of them and I want to leave but the later is talking to his mother. As I wait on the staircase he is trying to make a good impression telling her of his university diploma. I get out on the street at night with a friend and two girls. It is very late but I want to invite them over to my place. My friend proposes to go to the beach instead and we get on the bus. I push him to seat with one of the girls while I seat with the other who is actually a black girl from India. I am inside a university lab when I see the iron ball of caterpillar smashing on the window. It is taking a crane down and only hits the metal wall but I run out anyway. A black researcher is also outside and I help him wearing a modern version of a Chinese mask to start performing. I get to my parents' place with something in my teeth. I could use a sharp knife I brought from up North but don't want to scare them. I then get in and hear my mother insulting my little nephew who is on my sister's arms. She is too sweet and I understand that my mother is only teasing her. I am walking through a park and find a small school with kids playing outside. It is actually the international school where we just put my son. As I walk around the fences I really feel bad about it but then realize that there is another school on top. It is a public school but is even smaller. I am about to give a lecture when my supervisor tells me to wait for another class. I then go through my slides and find some private images showing my ass. They are actually being projected on the large screen and I unplug the cable from my laptop to remove them but they are still projected. Two Chinese girls take me and a friend to a local restaurant. It is actually their house and we find their boyfriends making long skewers with fruit. One of them asks if we can contribute with some money and I agree. He actually takes us around their house and I flatter him with compliments. I am in a small pub with my Polish friend and I tell him that I will finally get a salary at the end of the month. I actually own him some money and wish to pay him back then but he gets upset. I then understand that it is because I got back teaching and I am not involving him in the lectures. I am walking with my wife in a residential area with many villas of the same kind. We are actually thinking of buying one on top of a small hill but my wife tells me that it is covered by another villa. I go up to check and it looks like it is isolated but then I notice a villa constructed in the rock. I am driving by car with an American guy and show him the mountain peaks around us. I then propose him to go up there hiking but he doesn't seem so excited. I propose to go skiing instead and he agrees but there is too little snow and I only have my cross country skies to go downhill. I am with my little cousin putting small figures on a toy boat. The bad and the good figures are actually blended and I take out the good ones. My little cousin wants to eat them and I ask my big cousin if he can but he tells me that they are poisoning. We already ate some bigger ones before. A man is being pulled by a girl with a long rope through a mountain tunnel. As he gets out of it he realizes that she has left him alone. He then run to fetch her but she is only hiding around a turn. They hug each other and he kisses her rapturously thinking that she might have left him. A man lands in a ocean close to an island. He then swims there and finds an old friend with a local woman. They have both grown old and can't recognize each other but they share some roasted meat together. The first man likes it very much and the second man tells him that it is dog meat.