

I am in a valley collecting trash from the ground and find a far right brochure. As I look into it a man comes from behind and tells me that there are a lot of fascist politicians living on the right side of the valley. I then tell him that I know of a female politician also living on the left side.

I am in a kitchen and see that my best friend's wife is pregnant. I then joke asking her why is she keeping a pillow on her belly. The wife of my partner's older brother is also there and I see that she just had a baby. He has pooped in a corner but she warns us that he is taking medications.

I am in a small street checking out a little shop. I then see that on the other side is also another one. It sells different gadgets a man has built using led lights. There are also tea pots and he shows me a painting with an upside down mushroom coming out of a hole from the ground.

I am driving with my kids across a town searching for a place where to take a walk. I actually see a little mound on the distance and realize that we once took a walk there. I then try to park next to it but there are already other cars and the road is one way. It takes me back inside the village.

I am in a garden surrounded by a pile of rotten wood. As I start to climb it my daughter comes out of a cottage. It is owned by our artist neighbours and I ask her if they were making love. She tells me that he would like to but she is too religious and doesn't want to do it anymore.

I am swimming in a river with some people and see that among us is the American president. The stream pushes us forward and we get in his presidential palace. The river goes straight through it and on the other side the river resumes and I can see that further on the water is crystal clear.

I am in a small harbour and notice a lot of yachts going in one direction. They are all carrying a Christmas tree and I realize that they must be from some rich people who are preparing for the winter festivities. I then get my camera out to photograph them but they are already far away.

I am in an office and decide to leave. A colleague decides to give me a ride with his small car. I then sit in the back and listen to the radio. There is a nice song and I ask him if it is possible to know the title. I then realize he has a memory card attached to the radio and I can put it in my laptop.

I am on a bridge when a street seller makes a joke I cannot understand. I try not to care and check a stone in front of me but it is not so smooth. Also the water is rather brown and I conclude that it used to be much more pretty until the land was colonized and it was turned industrial.

I am driving a car with my children and cross a field. On the left side is a house and I recognize a very old friend. I then stop her car and drive back to him explaining my kids the situation. He is happy to see me but sad about the Austrian girlfriend I helped him to find when we were young.

I am in a club with a band who is about to present a book. They think they are going to have the main stage but soon realize that they are just in a small room. It is anyway crowded and I sit next to the singer who starts to show images of the inhabitants of a village where they run a brothel.

I am following a guy through the ghetto of a city. He is much faster and I soon loose him. There is a group of teenagers in front of me and I expect troubles but I have no alternatives than trying to go through them. I do so and hear that one of them is south African but much nicer than others.

I am walking in front of a palace and go to the entrance to check it. It was built by the Romans and I am surprise to see dragons and other sculptures I thought to be more modern. Inside there is a library with very valuable pieces and I tell the librarian I will also send her my book.

I am in a waiting room when a Russian man comes to sit next to me. He threatens me with a lighter and I just take it and start to run away. He catches up and takes my passport but I talk to another thug and give him money to get my passport back. The latter starts beating up the Russian.

I am in my art park talking to a local man. He is telling me that thanks to the installation I have built there the price of a field has increased. He is talking about very high numbers but I soon realize he is actually referring about another installation I have built in my native highland.

I am with my wife and make it to the atelier of a famous artist. We have four of his paintings and I ask him if they should be in a composition. He then looks at them and tells me that only two of them are worth having. As I discard the other ones I realize that the others have a secret message.

I am on top of a mountain and see that there is a thin cliff connecting it to another mountain. I then start crawling on it but realize that I am connected with a rope to a chart. I try to push it along with me but I need to have both my hands around the cliff not to loose grip and fall down.

I am in a shop with my daughter's pink shoes. The lady at the cashier should clean them and she tries with an electric brush but they are too soft. I then try the brush on my youngest son's blue shoes and then pay for some blue batteries. They have the English flag and are more expensive.

I am in a forest with my family and find a very beautiful pond with transparent water. We go in and find the temperature very pleasant but there is a couple coming with a canoe and I swim towards them pretending that a fallen tree is my canoe and they should not try to steal it from me.

I am in a room talking to a Korean lady. I cannot understand anything she is saying but I anyway let her know that my youngest song loves rock music. She then puts a famous rock song on and I start singing it myself getting surprised on how I know most of the words but not the right order.

I am in the middle floor of our Dutch house and realize that I can lift my broken arm again. It goes higher than my shoulder but I cannot try to lift it all the way because the ceiling is too low. I then move to the staircase where I can stretch it out and make a little dance to celebrate the healing.

I am watching the map of the Spanish territory and notice that far to the west there is an ancient wall stretching from the south. I then zoom in and see that it is made of several towers facing different directions. The enemy could potentially go through them but not with soldiers on the top.

I am in a bathroom with my partner's mother. The window is open and it is quite cold. She then complains that her former husband wants it that way even though the bathroom is part of my house. She suggests me to tell him that he should do whatever he should do so in his own house.

I am walking up a field with my children and notice one of the sons of my mountain neighbours cutting the grass. I then feel guilty that I am not cutting the grass and say out loud that I am on my way to the tractor. I then hear the guy talking with his brother about watching a porn movie.

I am in a theater and see the parents of a dead friend in the audience. We are all supposed to sleep there and I get to share a bed with the mother and another guy. It is too tight and I just stand up and decide I will spend the night up. The guy also do the same and we try to think what to do.

I am in a classroom teaching a group of students how to weld. I then start going around with a chunk of clay and start putting it on the helmets they have on top of their tables. I notice that the helmets have little horns and I make balls with the clay and put it on tip to look more indigenous.

I am in a public toilette with one of my old friends' father. We are both peeing in the urinary when a black guy also comes in to pee next to him. My friend's father is surprised that the black man is allowed inside and starts praising the country for having become so open also to other people.

I am walking in my native village trying to hear what young people are talking about. As I follow a group I find a book binding shop. I then get inside and ask the owner if he can print the book I have just written about my project. He is actually busy binding an old book and doesn't understand.

I am following a river keeping on the right side and going downstream when suddenly I see that there is a smaller but more powerful river joining it. It is on the same side where I am walking so I move to the opposite side but then the river becomes too big and gets covered in leaves.

I am in front of a chamber in which a woman is suspended. A metal helmet holds her up and she is ready to be elevated higher into a different level in which there is only water. I then realize we are under the sea and what she is trying to attempt puts her life in danger and she could drown.

I am in a city with a classroom of small children. They are playing in a park and see two of them further away in a playground. I then realize that they have crossed a street to go there and I take the other kid to reach them. As we also cross the street I find that it is more like a forest road.

I am with my partner visiting another couple in their apartment. It is more central than ours and the man tells me how they can rent it and make a lot of money from it. They are very lucky because in the periphery where we live there are hardly any tourists and we would not be able to rent.

I am in an office with my former American director. I tell him about an American president I like and he starts to draw it. It is actually the wrong one and I tell him exactly the portrait of the president I refer to. He starts making a new drawing but then quickly sketches a beautiful cat.

I am in a beautiful apartment with golden furniture and realize that it is the one that my sister inherited from my mother. She is laying in bed and I try to explain to her why we should go to the notary to formalize this transaction. Her husband is also there but they are both not listening.

I am with two other guys in a game shop and connect a console that one of the guys just bought there to a monitor. He doesn't want to buy the monitor as well and just pretend to test the console but in fact downloads a new operating system. A shop assistant comes to see what we are doing.

I am walking on a modern bridge together with a young woman and an older one. As we reach the end I want to go straight but the old one lives in an Icelandic-looking village up the valley. It is very cute and we decide to walk there together so that I can spend the rest of the day exploring it.

I am in a library and hear a man explaining a group of people the meaning of yoga. I actually know it already and sit with them. The man tells us that we are supposed to meet every day of the week except the one in the middle. An Italian guy then says that this decision is too random.

I am in a park and see the wife of my black neighbour walking with a friend. I follow them and we reach a gathering where my black neighbour is also present. He comes to me to tell me that the mayor has written me about a new project but I tell him that I have never shared my email address.

I am watching an animation about a boat shaped like a whale. The inside is filled with water so that it can host a robotic whale. There is another guy watching the animation with me and he finds the idea to be genius but I don't see what is so good about it and think I am more inventive.

I am in a small pizza place and hear the Italian owner talking about the mafia. I would like to order pizzas for my Dutch relatives but I realize that the Arab cook is inside the oven cleaning it. The owner tells me to wait but I realize it is going to take too long and my relatives are waiting.

I am home when the postman arrives with a package for me. He has a pile of black books and I expect them to be the one I just published but they are all in different formats. I then wonder if they are not other books but they are the right ones and I realize that inside they are all black.

I am in the forest playing with my kids and their friends. I let them run along a path assigning them different roles and tell a black girl that she has chased them all. Her father is also there and is not happy about it but then I notice some strangely shaped watermelons growing in the wild.

I am sitting in the terrace of a busy restaurant when my doctor comes with a list. I try to read it but it is all in Dutch and assume I have to run a few tests. As he sits in front of me I manage to lift my injured arm and then I try to turn it on the side but the doctor goes and sits in another place.

I am on a plane with my family and land in an airport but my partner sees that she has a ticket to go back. She wants to stay on the plane and eaves me alone with the kids but I insist that she comes down and we can drive the van to an island. She is reluctant but finally agrees to my plan.

I am biking with a group of teenagers and then follow one to a park where his other friends are playing very nice exotic music. One of them gives me a microphone and I start to sing but he shows me that I have to hold it closer and I don't have to move my lips. I then try to sing an entire song.

I am walking on a street with my partner when we stumble on a salamander. She gets very scared but I realize that she is pointing at something else. It is two other salamanders making love but I think they are harmless. Our son is walking over a dike into a beach and it can also be dangerous.

I am on a train with another guy and manage to rob a small safe. We then walk ahead but I notice that a guy from the security is following us. I keep the door open for him and we all go up a glass staircase to a bar in which the rest of our band is waiting. As they see the guard they beat him.

I am with my daughter on a wheelchair and I take inside a movie theater. There is only one film we can watch and it has already started. I anyway manage to sneak in and get through the theater into the projection room without getting caught. Inside there is a large television showing the film.

I am in a cafeteria sitting next to a Russian guy who gives me a small package of a drug he is hiding in his lunchbox. I will have to smuggle it to another country but have no idea how to. The guy then shows me how we need to pretend to be dead so that they can transport us in different coffins.

I am in a room on the top of our barn and go down to the middle floor. A German friend is sleeping in another room and I call his girlfriend to warn her but she is not so happy. My girlfriend is already preparing breakfast and I realize that the barn is fully functional with also a heating system.

I am walking with a group of Japanese students and one of them keeps on putting his dirty fingers against me. I then bite them really hard but he just keeps on and I tell one of his classmate that is he doesn't stop I talk to the first person I will meet at a cashier when paying the highway toll.

I am on top of a mountain and meet my Dutch artist friend. He is actually talking to a German tourist and I just go inside to eat with his family. It is actually my house and they soon leave. I want to make a joke that he should take the harmonica out but I cannot remember his name.

I am sleeping in a bed and realize that there is a blond girl next to me. She is the wife of a Brazilian friend and I realize I have to shoot a film with him. He looks exactly like a famous comedian and I want to do something about it but the girl makes me promise that the film is going to be serious.

I am ordering icons on my phone and realize that I can put all of the ones I have in the first page in one corner. I then think of taking all the icons I have in the second page to the first so that I can concentrate everything in one. As I start going to the second page to do so the phone freezes.

I am in a shop with my partner and check some boots. She wants to try a pair on but I want to go and she shows me some metal sponges I can use for my old boots. I can use them to remove the shiny layer and turned them into natural leather. I think it is a good idea and pick one sponge.

I am in a small terrace talking to my oldest son about an apartment he just went to check. He can actually buy it with a loan from a bank. I then ask him the name of the bank because all the other banks do not want to give him any loan. He tells me the name but the connection is too bad.

I am next to a big road waiting for the bus to take me to the airport. I see it coming but it doesn't stop and I have to take the next one. The Arab driver promise to let me out near the airport and I try to show him on my phone how to get there but I cannot zoom in the map and we reach the sea.

I am in a village walking with another guy when an agent stops him. I then make it around the corner trying to look for an alley where to walk without getting caught. I get in one but have to go through an abandoned building and realize that below there is a man waiting to beat me up.

I am in the villa of my partner's older brother. I am actually chatting with him in the living room when his wife stands up to help his father. The latter lost a ring around one of his eyes and helps him put it back. I then go to the bathroom and think on how my partner's brother is already rich.

I am skiing with another friend down a very steep slope. I can't wait it is going to end and just try to go the last part holding to the right where it is less steep. We finally reach the bottom and realize that my parents are also there and they have ordered pizza for us but we wanted a salad.

I am in a small field next to the forest and test the fence I have just put around it. There are only iron strings I think it is too weak but try to pull them and realize they hold very well. Suddenly there is a car lighting up the space and I take shelter thinking it is coming from above but it is below.

I am at a meeting with the politicians who have facilitated the building of my sculpture park. I want to illustrate them all the work I have done as part of it and start with the circle I made in a field. A politician wants to see other works but I tell him what the circle represents anthropologically.

I am on a plastic chair sliding very fast down a mountain road but see that there are several cars coming behind me. I then choose a spot under a small cliff and pretend that I am just sitting there. The cars pass and I decide to go down much more slowly than I did before and take my time.

I am in a garden arranging some small sculpture when the son of an Italian neighbour comes to see what I am doing. I am actually quite ashamed of the sculptures but show him how I have built them use textiles soaked in cement. One of the sculpture is actually more transparent and light.

I am walking with some friends through a park and come to a villa. I know a passage through it but I find it closed and we just keep on walking to the left side. It gets dark and one of the friends tells me how lucky they are that I know the road but I have no idea where we are heading to.

I am in an underground metro with my youngest son and we follow a path left on the pavement by other passengers. It leads us to an elevator and we press the only button inside. We are ejected out over the city and I find it beautiful to see it but then it brings us back on the ground below us.

I am sitting on a bus telling a couple about a walk I took in a mountain nearby. I don't remember the name and just shut up but then two girls enter the bus with their dogs. As I look at the blue eyes of the girls I recognize that I know her from when I lived abroad and she promise to write me.

I am in a beautiful town in the mountains and realize that there is a festival. I see soldiers with long feathers marching my way and then reach a lady who is showing her breast asking them to touch them. She then explains that they have been placed in boiling water to make them harder.

I am going down a railroad but have to quickly decide whether to turn left or right. I choose to go left and notice that there is no longer any track on the sides but only a cement track in the middle. I then stop in a field to check a map and see that going back and can make it over a mountain.

I am in a mall together with a guy telling me how bad his cousin is. He wants to become my friend and demands that I go to his place to study chemistry. I really don't want and just let him have a drink with other friends while I write a message to my partner to see where I can reach her.

I am in a city trying to turn on the engine of my van. By the time I manage it gets dark and the tunnel I have to cross can no longer be accessed. I drive through it anyway and realize that it has become a gathering point for black people. I drive ahead but there are many roads merging together.

I am visiting my partner in a big open space wit big stacks of hardwood. She is actually shooting a film together with other artists who have built a metal sculpture in the middle. I want to talk to her but she is too busy with the camera and asks our daughter to help her setting up a scene.

I am attending the concert of a rockstar and hear his son performing. He is not so good and at the end of the show I line up to congratulate with his father. He has a bad disease and cannot shake hands but I tell him about my cube and how it works. He is interested and we become friends.

I am walking in a park and come to a football field where two teams are playing. The one on the right uses dogs as defense and I see then tossing the ball forward but then I realize that the team on the left uses rapacious birds as their attack and a powerful eagle grabs the ball to score.

I am in a helicopter with a woman driving over some mountains. I show her the trail I am making in a field and she drives much closer. There are also rocks and I am afraid she might crash against them but she tells me that she also wants to see the art installations I made as part of the trail.

I am in a hotel room with a father and his children laying on a big bed. I should also lay down but the bigger kid is taking up too much space. I then tell him off but he raises up and starts showing how good he is with his karate kicks. I then make some space on the opposite side of the bed.

I am in a cafeteria sitting at a big wooden table. I check how white it is in certain spots and realize that the have something to tell me about my relationship with my mother. I would love to spend time with her but I am stuck in another place and realize this is the reason we cannot get along.

I am watching a movie about a young couple getting in a car to copulate. They are actually in someone else's property and go away with their bike ending up in a mall where they take an elevator. I then see them going all the way up one by one wearing a bikini and screaming to the whole mall.

I am riding a broom up a mountain and reach a village where a carpenter is sweeping the road. He tells me that he can come with me if I want but I first go by myself to the top of the mountain. I am just impressed how fast is the broom and how smoothly I can do all the curves on the way.

I am in a hotel with my sister and go in a room only to pee. As we are about to leave the owner comes to tell us that the room has already been paid for us. There is even a place in the attic where we can go party and I walk there and meet a young man and a woman who might also be artists.

I am in my children's school making a drawing of a ghost. The teacher comes by and asks me about the drawing. I then explain it is my daughter totemic spirit. The teacher takes the drawing from me and immediately call the authorities to see if I am doing anything legal and I explain it is.

I am in a cafe with an Indian girl. She is actually a guest and gets a whole white cake for herself. I find it too privileged and just walk behind her and get a slice all for myself. My aunt has actually made the cake and she sees me but doesn't say anything and the Indian girl is also fine with it.

I am in a city at night with a group of friends. We are ready to drive home but one of them refused to rent a car and we have to use the new jeep of another man. My oldest son gets to drive it and I tell him to push down the accelerator to feel how fast it can drive even though there are bumps.

I am with my wife and kids in a big shoe shop and find some boots that I could wear. My wife also finds some sneakers of the same brand and I try them instead. They are a very different kind of shoes but they feel so comfortable that I decide to buy them instead of any other leather shoe.

I am walking in a city at night and see a very fat and ugly prostitute standing alone on the road. As I go forward I find a biological shop and see that the owner is inside. I could go in and buy cookies but realize that it can be very expensive and I might not afford it. I then start walking back.

I am looking at the photo of a mountain taken from up high by a climber. He is claiming that it is his usual spot where he climbs but I can see the snow is about to crack. There is no way that he can climb there without causing an avalanche and I find him a liar or just a crazy man.

I am in a place with a lot of rocks and see that a beautiful girl is standing on one. My wife and kids are behind me so I just turn back and decide to walk down to a village. The road is covered with a wooden pavement but it is too slippery and I have to hang around a small tree not to fall.

I am outside a city with my wife's older brother. He tells me how we are going to go around and not through it. He wants to first stop at the vegetable garden of his father that his down in the south of the city and then continue up all the way opposite from where we are. There is a forest there.

I am in a meeting room with a company showing their new product. They have invented a glue that the more is mixed the more it shrinks and becomes white. A woman is trying to demonstrate the entire process but I tell her that it is good she also explains it. She then comes to sit next to me.

I am in a restaurant with a backpack full of pots. I need to bring them to another restaurant but the head cook also gives me some long poles to carry. I then cross the street with all the stuff but see that my daughter is with her friends and she is not paying attention to all the traffic.

I am on a boat trying to book a sleeping place. There are private rooms but with no windows or seats. I choose to have my own room but realize that part of the staircase going down is missing. Two Polish guy manage to come up anyway but I have no idea how to do it with my heavy luggage.

I am in a restaurant sitting with my old friends. The one sitting on my right side think that I have always been rich by I tell him of the time I only ate soup. I then go to the bathroom to pee and find my best friend. He claims to have eaten already six courses while I ate seven and feel hungry.

I am walking up to a castle with the daughter of my Dutch musician friend. She is very happy to be there and can climb very fast up the staircase but I am very afraid she could fall down. There is even a cannon on the top and I think of taking a funny picture of her sitting on the tip.

I am in an art school and see my partner interviewing an Arab guy. I then walk out to a pond and she reaches me to tell me how it went. We sit down on a deck and I expect her to be politically correct but she tells me that the guy was worth nothing and they have immediately rejected him.

I am hiking in the mountains with a couple and reach a ridge. I have no idea why we are there when I can see me art installations far below. I then try to walk to them following the ridge but there is a lot of mud. I am afraid the couple is upset but both of them enjoy sliding down.

I am biking with my children through a city and take a road to avoid a steep downhill. We actually come to the bottom of a high ramp and we all manage to go to the top. The way down is very steep and my daughter manages to make it to the bottom but my youngest son loses his skateboard.

I am in a hall attending a presentation and intervene saying the speaker should be given the possibility to also exhibit her work. A man agrees with me and invites me with another guy to his house. It is filled with African art and I make a joke that one of the sculpture is like the big brother.

I am walking in a field and notice some white long stripes on the grass. I follow them and make it around a building. On the opposite side is a valley and I realize that it is where I used to walk with my oldest son when it was little. It breaks my heart to be there and I don't want to continue.

I am in a dark room together with a famous American anarchist. There is a professor talking and suddenly he mentions the anarchist in relation to a party he had the previous night with another friend. The anarchist denies what has happened and I wonder what it is the reason behind it.

I am walking along a ditch with my daughter and her Australian friend. The latter pushes me down and I end up in the water. I stay underneath it so that I can reemerge with a stick and show the Australian girl that it is identical to the one she is also holding but I cannot get a hold of it.