

I am looking at a long curtain installed in the middle of an exhibition. It has sensors hanging down and a group of Japanese students are below interacting with that. They try to reach it with their hands but the curtain rolls up. There are other installations around but all empty.

I am in a museum and meet with a beautiful girl. I start running after her and get into a garden where I pick a carrot although they all been bitten by the rabbits. A giant guardian comes out of his cottage to ask me how I dared. I explain that I am the nephew of the owner.

A guy is on a rock grabbing the solid breast of a girl. She also gets on top of her small brother. As her breast is exploding of excitement some metal dogs come out. The small brother orders his helicopter crickets to attack them.

It is evening already and I am still programming for a student. Another student comes to me and asks me to program for her. I tell her that I can even though is a complicated thing. I realize that I am just programming for girls and she could as well ask her boyfriend.

We are driving on a highway going in a big Chinese city. My Chinese colleague tells me of an interchange area we are approaching. There are actually skyscrapers being constructed. We walk along one made of bricks and count the length with our steps. They are of different sizes.

I am walking on an empty bridge and my Polish student is walking below. I start running before we catch up but find some blue goggles. I then walk forward and find a black swimming mask. I meet with the student and give him the blue goggles although he likes the black mask.

I am in a large room apartment where some girls have prepared a place for us. I walk to another room where my mother is sleeping with my child. There is a new magazine on the bed but I pick an old one showing bubs after surgery. I go to the bathroom but find a newspaper article inside.

My girlfriend is on the Internet chatting with another guy. She is tired of us and is asking him to be his new companion. I don't react and move slowly to the bedroom feeling very sad.

I follow a student doing her grocery in the supermarket. We end up in the courtyard of the art school where I find an old classmate. She gives me a hand written letter to read. It says that she has been accepted to a new course.

One of my prints is suspended in the ceiling of the airport. I walk below it and realize that the photographic collage is messy. I take it down and find that the glue got loose. I then ask the manager if I can make the collage on the floor. I start doing it on a side without his permission.

My sister comes to visit me at my parents-in-law. She tries to convince me to take religion class so that I can finish my middle school. I tell her that I already have two diplomas and I don't need it.

My professor has invited a guest to his class. She is arranging each of us to eat. As it gets my turn she starts criticizing me. I get annoyed and throw my table upside down. My professor is also angry with her and kicks her out. He comes back and tells us that the course is suspended.

I run after an artist inside her exhibition where she is shown naked. It is much bigger and nicer than I expected. I manage to grab her from her tits and get her on the floor. She wants a baby from me and we fuck. We then dress white and marry us in a classroom with the old students singing.

A young designer has just finished his first computer game and shows it to an older designer on his computer. It is a red line flying in a space of blue lines. He tries to avoid them but there are too many.

My father just got the answer from an old doctor who suggests me to rest in case of stress. I point at my heart and tell him of the pain I feel. He then tells us to get an air pump and we bike down town where I hear a band playing.

It is late but there is already day light. I look for a place where to sleep and open a little door of a large classroom. There is a secret bathroom but the air is too cold. I then get in a sand box while two guys are making a new one in the middle. A guard comes to arrest them and catches me.

I meet a middle age man with blue eyes. I tell him where I am from and he tells me the name of his city. I first think of a state nearby but he tells me that it is a state in the South. There has been a war there and I wonder that he is still alive.

I hear the voice of a friend behind the door of a palace. I then pretend to have a new girlfriend but she gets me to a window and tells me that my old girlfriend died in an accident. I then cover my face and walk away. I don't remember her well and can't cry.

A guy has spread some bad rumours about his girlfriend and everyone avoids her. She is taken on a side road by some guys who wants to fuck her and ends up in an empty bedroom. Suddenly her Asian boyfriend comes out from under the blankets. He wants a reconciliation.

A fat girl ends up in a catalogue and I bid to get her a plastic surgery. On the following pages there is a famous singer photographed with some beautiful models. She is also beautiful but wants to remake her knees. In the last page is a picture of the photographer wearing a baseball hat.

I am walking in a crowded city looking for my friends. I can't find them and lay on a sofa. A girl lays on top of me. I wonder about her brown hairs and eyes. She tells me that she is Turkish. I immediately stand up and go away.

My girlfriend and I are working on the vegetable garden. The potato plants from the previous year are blossoming again even though they were cut. Some friends arrive on a car and I greet them lifting the pitch-fork with both arms. One of them is sick.

A group of guys enters a pub pushing a guy from another group already seated. The latter gets really angry and takes the weakest one of them out. I look through the window as he gets kicked hard in the balls.

Two big timbers have fallen over a steep river without water. There are other timbers that are half fallen. I make them fall all the way and one of them join the other two. It is becoming a bridge but it would still need other timbers.

A guy and a girl escapes from the camp where they are imprisoned. They get through the fence and run along. The guard sees them and comes to get them. He has a gun but no real shots. The guy takes him and have him slide down the slope on their side.

Some guys try to escape through the fans of a garage. They hear the guards coming and hide in a hole. One of them has an electronic pet that beeps. The guards catch them. They are only two Japanese that help them to get out before the cops arrive.

Three convicts are now working on a bay picking garbage. They are in their van when a young guy approaches. One of them gives him a phone card he found. There is a machine and the guy loads it on his credit card.

I get by a small cottage that is empty. I walk forward and find a small caravan. There are some shoes outside and I assume that someone is living there while fixing the cottage. I get to the opposite side and look in. It is very stuffy and I understand that they are living there for good.

We just got in a big Chinese city and keep it in a restaurant talking about an American city. A friend of my Chinese colleague tells us that we should really look this city. I actually don't want to but pretend to cover my eyes not to spoil the experience.

I am biking home after a girl who is going fast. She manages to cross an intersection while I have to stop. I look around and realize that it is the road to my grandparents. In town I see my uncle's sister-in-law driving away. They have a luxury car but very wretched.

At the far end of a cafeteria are two guys with a very long beard. I first think that they are Americans but then hear that one of them is from my own country. I watch them sharing food from the same plate and understand they are poor.

A boy and his father are out in the ocean fishing sharks. They catch one and decide to go back but the sky got dark and they can't see the coast. A whale is swimming close to them. The father finally sees where to go and they leave at once.

My girlfriend and I have just performed in a small theatre and are about to leave from above when we see a new show with kids dancing. Among the parents watching I seem to recognize a colleague. My girlfriend has also thought it was him but he didn't react when she greeted him.

I am on a bus with a group of students and propose them to visit my home land and go to the art fair. One of them is an older guy who has already been to that art fair but didn't like it. I tell him that I honestly didn't like to go to any fair myself.

I am in the garage with my mother who invites us to stay at her place while she is on vacation. There is an old motorcycle and I try it to see if I can drive it up North. I turn it on in the courtyard but my father gets very angry because he was taking pictures there.

A black boy is left with a group of other black boys on a river side. They will take them to another land. He has a wooden knife in his pants and take courage to swim to the opposite side. Other boys follow him but get eaten by the fishes.

A soldier ends up all alone in a Russian glacier. It is summer but he doesn't have enough food. Far down he sees a man on a horse. He calls for him and a group of men comes to get him. They are not wearing any uniforms and he understands that the war is over.

We are about to get in an old museum and I take a video of the high entrance. I am not allowed and the guard reproaches me. He tells me to look out of a round window instead. I first look at a high mosaic and then turn. There is a stadium with a very tall black guy running around.

I am in a changing room and a pop star starts singing close to me. I really like the song and want to show her how good I am dancing. I then roll with my body on the sink where she is shaving and manage to make it on top of the bathroom.

I am telling my father about the different biennials they have in a city. I explain how they alternate the art biennial with the architecture biennial. There is also a dance biennial but I don't remember when it comes.

I try to open the door of a student and he opens it from the opposite side. We get in and I help him to measure a power adapter. I then leave my girlfriend soldering her earring and go to the bathroom. I look for the WC and realize that it has been moved in front of the door to make more space.

My girlfriend gets a nice wooden panel from my neighbour who is home unemployed. She takes it outside and mounts it below the kitchen window where there are many air infiltrations. It fits perfectly and also matches the surrounding wall.

I am on a train working on my little laptop. There is only one station left and I stand up to get ready. I pull out my adapter and go fetch my bags. As I get back I realize that everyone is working with the same small laptop.

I am in a station and hear that my bike will be delivered in a long time. I then go to the information desk to enquire. As I wait on line my father comes with a bag that I forgot on the train. The man at the desk confirms the delivering date.

I am in a new town staying in a hotel room without windows. As I wait for my father to go out I put my old underwear on the table. I then use a black pen to draw on all the edges. My father is ready and I hurry drawing on the side of the last edge.

I am taking a Turkish student up a slope. He wants to turn back that we still don't have any view of the water. I then show him a postcard taken from above the ancient wall. We actually see it on top of us and start walking over it but soon reach a part where it has collapsed.

I am seating in the dining room of an hotel eating. An American man is seated behind me making business with the head of a design company. His daughter wants a collaboration with a music institute and suggests to pay them a salary of half a million. I intervene saying that it is not possible.

I introduce the college where I work and follow a man to a bar for a drink. All the tables are occupied and we seat on the desk. The man has a big bill and orders a liquor. I order the same but just have coins. The bartender takes most of them and we get a tiny liquor with a small cake.

I get out of my hotel room brushing my teeth. A man is in the waiting room and wants to shake my hand. I have it wet with toothpaste and go to the kitchen to wash it. There I meet the other participants of a conference and get ready to socialize.

I am seating in a bar drinking a green liquor with other artists. The buffet opens and we go for it although we have already ate. The other starts filling their plates but I end up in a long queue that goes all around the table. We stay there without making any progress.

I look at a video I have already watched where body parts are mirrored and animated. On the side is a shelf with small gadgets for sale. On the bottom there are some handmade booklets and on the top some key chains of different body parts attached together.

I seat at a conference among many international students. I talk to a black Dutch girl from a Catholic school and listen to two German reporters announcing a release of their rock bands. Everyone leaves but the girl's bag is still there. Her classmate has hidden her laptop under the table.

I am with my old colleagues at a restaurant. They shows us on a map they made how it is located right in the middle of many other cool places. I look at it and starts telling them of the professor I met. They don't seem interested but then I mention the design company that he is running.

I am attending a workshop but start working on my laptop arranging a set of speakers on an interface. The teacher passes around and sees what I am doing. I lie and explain to her that it is for the workshop. I then get back mounting my electronic kit looking how the others have done.

I enter a church through a religious shop. There are some sticks for sale but they are not obligatory. I put on a white dress and get in. Very old nuns are eating at the tables. I genuflect in the middle looking like the apparition of Jesus. I want to scream.

I walk with a group of Thai on their countryside asking for places where to swim. We are actually getting in a place where it is not possible to swim. It is an airport with many Europeans cars. We wait for an American student. She slowly arrives and I realize that she is limbed.

My mother reproaches me that I use to run on the rail-road when I was a student. I tell her that it is correct but I also explain her that I was with my swimming team then. We actually got a permission to do so and the train traffic was closed.

We drive on the top of a hill where there used to be a lot of big birds. Now there is a grill place and we get off. My parents will bike home and I decide to go with my sister and friend up a small mountain. We start walking and I take a picture of him opening a gate. The background disappears.

My son and I are in a very shallow swimming pool. He wants to get a ball but it belongs to some guys playing football. He starts crying but then I see a kid of his age going into a cave and I take him in as well. It is the storage room with all the water toys.

An old man is walking on the water spreading seeds. It is actually an enormous football field and I get down to play. I try to identify my team but there are two other ones. I ask a player where I should score and he tells me that I am left alone. I then get back to defend my goal.

I am about to get on the train home and realize that I don't have my bag. I get in anyway and realize that I actually have it. There is another computer inside that I got as a present. The screen can be unfolded. The train arrives but I don't manage to fold it back in time.

I am on the wrong bus and decide to get off and take a bus back. I can't find the stop and ask the driver who is turning around. She tells me that if I get her a box of candies she can drives me home. She is very old and seats on an office chair.

I meet at school with my students. They are supposed to give a presentation but some of them have other things to do. I tell them to present later. They all agree and I realize that they are from the same class and they were anyway supposed to present then.

I take my son to the kindergarten and go to the bathroom. I first leave the door open but then close it afraid that one of the teacher might see me. The door has actually a large window and she can see through. I pee anyway.

I think of asking my rector more money to finish the students' projects. I then go to his office but he is still in a meeting. The secretary is going home and tells me that I shouldn't write so high of invoices. I don't understand what she means and follow her out.

A guy who got famous with a reality show is canoeing to the capitol where the journalists are waiting. He is behind another couple that pretends to be late after making love. The guy immerses himself and surpasses them. The couple will need to rent a bigger a canoe to get in the sea waves.

A friend and I get in an empty pub where a rotating lamp of different colours has been recently installed in the far end. We look at it but don't find it interesting. On our way out there is a Spanish girl trying to tell something to the bar tender. I translate one word and he understands.

It is evening and I am in a Chinese city walking with a friend. I am looking for a bike and we go down in a store. There are very nice touring bikes but they are all too expensive. The owner is from our country and also the brand. My friend tells me that they are made of the cheapest materials.

I am being visited by a doctor in her studio. She has two more patients to visit and I ask her to show me where is the bathroom. She takes me to her desk and logs me on her computer. I look for it and find the icon of a toilette.

I want to write a diary and go to the gas station to buy a sketch book. As I look through some agendas my father-in-law gets in. He tells the shop-assistant about my back problems and she books me for a massage. I don't know how much it cost and tell her that I will be abroad.

I am in a big empty room and meet with my brother. He has been doing some business back home and I ask him if he met our parents. He tells me that he actually had some time to meet them and they were upset that he was coming to see me.

My grandpa is on a wheelchair and tells me to buy some white paint. I plan to first find the shop and then come to get him. There is one across the road and I get in by myself. The shop-assistant tries a spray can on a metal box. The colour dries quickly but it is very rough.

A football team has just won the championship and the goal keeper gets with the ball in his goal. He embraces a small pile of colourful sand. It says that the championship was won thanks to him.

I get an e-mail from my natural father saying how much he loves us. He also writes to give a hug to my girlfriend. I quickly pick a picture of us and send it to him forgetting to write something back.

A well dressed Arabic girl is seating with his legs crossed and talking to a blonde girl who is standing. She tells her of two guys. She really likes them but they are both in love with the same girl.

There is only one student in class. My colleague has invited all the others to his office. There is only one day left and I decide to write them an angry e-mail. The computer room is actually under renovation. My boss is there and I go out. Three students are just back on their bikes.

I am the captain of a crew that is about to embark. One of my pirates advices me to get a mask. I have a silicon mask of a skull and wear it. We then all start to embark. I walk forward but without my bags. My pirates bring me only one and I have to go back to fetch the other.

I have taken our country neighbour's tent and placed it perfectly on top of my vegetable garden. My father-in-law is angry but she has no problems and comes in to arrange the dishes on a table singing a foreign song. I just then understand that she is Russian.

A crowd of international people is at school attending a conference. I walk out bumping on an interesting person talking to his colleagues. My advisor is getting money from the receptionist to eat out. I try to ask him if I can also follow but he doesn't listen to me.

I am in a hostel and find an old suitcase with thin stripes. I try to close it but there are too many bed sheets inside. I then realize that there are two strings that I should pull to close it.

I go to the dentist but there are only his two secretaries. They anyway start giving me anaesthetics on a rotten tooth I have in the far end. One of them tries to pull it out but can't. I try by myself and it comes out with all the frontal teeth. Some sharp filaments remains that I should cut.

My girlfriend and I are looking for a place where to stop. The grass on a hill is very wet and I propose to take her for the first time to an old village. I drive her there but it is another old village where we have already been.

I am seating in front of an ancient door filming when a middle age woman and her husband comes up. I try to film again but this time a man comes with his dog. They are very characteristic and I decide to keep the film.

I am in the kitchen having breakfast with my friends. My neighbour is standing in front of the window. I go out and she tells me that we have been too loud. My friend explains that another friend has come back in the middle of the night having forgotten something.

I am walking along several stands painting people's face. A girl has already painted mine and for free. I walk to her to have my face painted again but her boss wants a compensation. She gets on me and I get really horny. I ask her to fuck but come already in my pants.

I look through several catalogues of different nations in South America. They have the same panoramic format but show different concepts. As I look at the one from Cuba showing a dry land I hear an artist talking about his upcoming exhibition in a secondary city of Argentina.

I get on the car with my parents who are about to drive down the mountains. My father explains that there use to be two ways down. The first is the one we are taking and the other is on the opposite side of the highland. Both of them are part of two minor villages.

At the bottom of a mountain is a group of small students singing out loudly. I recognize the song and walk below them with my son. The path forks and we take the left coming into a bunker. We open a door and find a room stained with blood. We continue and find an abandoned cathedral.

I get on the metro that a guy starts to recite the bible on the loud speaker. I then move to another wagon and complain with a passenger. He is surprised and wonders if I read the bible. I lay and say that I actually do.

My girlfriend and I walk through a farm that she is renting out. We look for a place where to build a shelter and I suggest to go in a nice forest. She takes me to an ugly wetland with fallen trees. We pile them up. There is fresh resin on them. We look for some stones but they all brake.

I am walking through an old school with students showing their old instruments. I come to the end where a dark hair guy is playing the strings. As he talks about the case of mozzarella cheese that he buys I replay his movements with my fingers.

My grandfather is watching a program on a small TV. I get close to it and change channels looking for a better one. There are allot of interferences. I keep going up but come again to the first channel.

Throughout the green grass of a camping there are small artificial caves. The campers camp anyway in front of them even though the statistics say that only the ten percent sleep in their tents. The rest sleep in the caves that are just enough for two persons laying.

I am having lunch with my father and his old friend. He suddenly asks me when I will get a job. I try to explain that I actually make good money but he is angry. We walk to the metro and I start hitting the fence with anger.

I get alone in a supermarket and start picking onions. I then think that I should do the grocery closer to home so that I don't have to carry it. I leave the onions and go out but my girlfriend and son are already gone.

I look at a magazine and pass the photo of a nice museums. I try to find it back but only find the work of some successful artists. One of them is a large painting of a mountain. As I go backward a detail is enlarged revealing a woman getting splashed by a wave.

My father just had an argument with my twin brother. I tell him how exaggerated he is and try to press the accelerator of his car to get me up the ski slope. I get there myself but find my best friend. My twin sister is getting him a pair of skies. He puts one on and slide against the fence.

A beautiful girl is rowing away from the beach. I swim and get on her small boat. We then go to the public library to have sex. She makes sure that all the doors are locked. As we are just starting a flock of kids comes out of the book shelves.

My neighbour shows me that a piece of the door of another neighbour is missing. A thief has tried to get in with his hand to unlock it. The news have made it to the national newspaper. I suggest to have a metal plate but then realize that our doors already have an extra panel.

In the attic a fine lady is showing how to work with granite stones. She takes one and then puts in the water with a large leaf around it. She then throws it on the ground and tells us how to change the electrolytic state in order to brake it. I then start looking for a battery on a catalogue.