

I am seating on the floor in the back of the class and chat with an old classmate while the teacher interrogates a student. The latter doesn't know what to answer and keeps silent till the bell rings. The teacher then scolds me for the noise and I tell her how little she had increased my knowledge.

I am with my son in a crowded restaurant celebrating the new year. We keep seated while other costumers make a chain and start dancing around. Among them is my mother with her new husband and she is really happy to see us. She actually cries under her sunglasses and so I do.

I get on top of a mountain that everybody leaves but a young man. I wonder why and he shows me the storm approaching behind. I then also rush to leave but he starts ceasing me down the slope. We reach a very big dam and I resolve to jump in not to get caught. He also jumps in.

My Chinese colleagues drive me through a forest to a restaurant. I then follow one of them to hang my coat and he tells me that the hanger there is better than the one I designed. He then searches in his little laptop for a file to show me what he means and I see a lot of gay porn thumbnails.

I am with my son on a staircase and seat even if there are allot of bumps. Some of them take a karaoke out and start singing. The TV shows a famous band but the members are all Chinese. We are actually in a bedroom and another boy is with my son but then runs to the bed with two bumps.

I walk up to the ruins of a temple wishing to ask the elder for a loan. As I am about to talk to him my old supervisor gets between us. He doesn't let me talk and has already decided with the elder how to reward me. They actually let me keep one of the cameras I used for their project.

My wife is in the atrium of a school presenting her project. There are many students and one of them is actually from Iraq. A whole other groups of students is seating by the window and I ask them if they are also from there. They are actually from Iran but I want to photograph them anyway.

I am in a bank attaching my small photos on an application while the clerk is looking at a magazine. I actually see a picture of the city from up high and ask him where is such a place. He then takes me out and shows me the top of a high mountain. It is in an island right across a small stream.

I meet my best friend and he tells me that he just won a beauty competition. He was in a disco where another friend with big muscles was participating and they suddenly seized him to also do it. The same thing goes for his old girlfriend who got first among the women.

I get a mozzarella cheese and read the instructions. It says to use a special oil for dressing. I then get some bred sticks and find the logo of this oil. It shows the actual olive with a spike of wheat illustrated on top. I then pick the can of oil I have and find that it is suitable.

I am attending a workshop and get through the group of students to check what the teacher is presenting. I suddenly remember that I am also a teacher and I should keep some distance. I then back out and start eating my raisins. Another group of students pass by and see me again eating.

I am in a green pasture and meet a German priest among others. He tells me his name and I tell him to visit the house where his father has killed all the inhabitants during the war. A friend tells me that it is not true but I keep going and tell the priest that I will build a church there.

I am driving back from a mountain with my old van although I still wish to hike there. As I am checking for a trail I actually get on one that is cut on the grass. I drive through it and jump back on the road that splits in three different directions. I take the one going higher.

I am guest of an American family that is barbecuing outside a local sea food. As I wait seated their little ermine like animals gets around me and I am scared. They tell me not to be otherwise it affects their growing. I then concentrate on the food but only find small and uncooked fish heads.

I am walking with a friend out of an old city that is pouring rain. We then slide down a slope with our roller skates but I am careful while another guy is very fast on his skateboard with big wheels. As I reach the bottom I see his terrible shadow with dreadlocks. He is standing right behind me.

I am working at my desk home and hear someone at the door. I first think it is no one but then hear it again and realize that it is my small Korean neighbours. I then invite them in to eat with their father in the our dark kitchen. They came for my son and I still have to fetch him from school.

My step-father calls me to watch TV with him. There is a program with a Chinese woman playing on the fortune wheel. Her head is shaved and has a long tale of dreadlocks in the back. She wins an incredible amount and I realize that it was more than twenty years ago.

I wake up really early and get ready to leave for a famous bike competition. As I walk out I realize that many others will take the bus with me and even my wife. I actually forgot my camera and let her take my place while I go up and get it.

I go down to my neighbours and realize that they are my relatives from my step-father side. As I play with the little kids and talk to the teenagers about their first day of school my step grandmother comes out. A young priest has offended her and we all try to persuade her that he didn't mean it.

I am working in a laboratory with another colleague and get a delivery. There are two special robots and we test them but they don't work properly. One is actually operating with solar power and I print the entire manual. Our boss says that I am wasting paper and I start cleaning up instead.

I am walking in my parents-in-law's forest that there is much snow. It is very beautiful with the light coming through the trees but it is dark around and I feel afraid of other animals. I then start walking home even though I use to be in the forest chopping wood in the past winters.

I am in my wife's office going through a magazine when a black woman comes in wearing a tight jogging outfit. I keep my eyes on the magazine and don't dare to look at her but listen what she says to a colleague. She actually talks about our arrival while I find jogging articles in the magazine.

I go to work that a good friend is already there. We go in and he starts his laptop with a very cool start up music. I start mine and while he looks for the web-site of a lady working across the road I look at the features of a special software. It is doing what I wanted and actually uses my pictures.

I am the hitter of a baseball game and manage to make it to the first base. As the pitcher throws the ball outfield I manage to get to the second and then the third base. Here I am surrounded by the black players protesting against me. I call for my own players to support me but they are too few.

I am in a Chinese park and look up at very big skyscraper standing right behind an old building. Its facade is all changing from one color to another even if it is daylight. I then think how advanced are the Chinese today and regret to have quit my job there.

I am biking on an American highway and come to a busy intersection. I try to cross it first but a van gets in front of me. I actually end up inside but it soon stops at a gas station where I get off. I can see that we are close to an American city and I get ready to film the no longer modern condos.

There are some old style Italians playing music outside and I am without shirt singing with them. Other bands come and they leave but among them there is another Italian singer with her husband. The latter has his hair hitching and goes to wash them while she gives me a guitar for my son.

I am in my small apartment alone with my mother and she is very kind. We agree that I will call her for her birthday and I take her out where her new man is waiting in a wretched car. He has grew up in Asia and I want to photograph him but they leave as I go to fetch my camera in my car.

I am in my mother's kitchen when the bell rings. I can see from the video monitor that it is a red hair Polish friend and I tease her. She has actually high fever and I open for her immediately. She comes in with a blond Russian girlfriend and I understand that she was lying.

I get in my old bedroom and find two American football teams competing on the loft bed. One player with a very defined body makes it to the top and scores. A player from the other team also gets up the ladder but the former player explains to him that he has to go on the bottom bed first.

I am driving a rented car out of a garage but the entrance is blocked by two security guards. As I drive towards them I can't actually remember where I got the car from. There is actually a tight opening between the vases they have used to block the entrance and I make it through.

I am trying to go out an old city and run but the small road is blocked by a dirty homeless sleeping. I then turn back and find a way by a canal. The road is blocked again by a highway and I go across even if there is allot of traffic. It is a toll station and I close my eyes to go through each booth.

My wife wants us to spend Christmas holidays in a city of the South and we pass by a Chinese hotel that is a large dormitory with small beds. As I am thinking of finding such a cheap hotel there we reach my mother's place. I tell her our plans and she wants to rent a car for us.

It is night already and I am in the kitchen with a new varnish I got to spray on my paintings. I then take them out on the table and start spraying but I can't stop it and have to put it out of the window. I then try again and the colour of the paintings fades away. There is too little varnish left.

I am in my apartment when an old friend shows up. He wants to go to another friend together and I introduce him my new friends in the bedroom. I then show them the pot I have prepared to bring to the other friend but they are disgusted by the meat. They start eating it anyway.

I am working on my step-father's computer and try to convince him to pay a trip for me. I keep insisting as I remove the white background from a large red letter. It is actually his first initial and I tell him that I can do it only if he pays for my trip.

I am with my son going down an abandoned ski lift when a man working there comes down plowing the snow with his skies. I want to ask him to fetch my ski poles higher up but he also wants us to go down immediately. There has been an accident but it is too late to see what has happened.

My step-father wants to seat at a wooden table outside even though it is winter. The owner comes and he asks for food but she wants us to move in. As she dances around explaining herself I notice a tea service on the wall but the pot is broken and the decorating flower comes out.

I am walking with an important professor in an old cemetery after we haven't met for a long time. I sent him and his wife my Christmas greetings but he tells me that she was actually incinerated by the communists. As he tells me the details I take my arm over his shoulders to comfort him.

I get in a class that the students have already made their groups. I then get in another class where they are still grouping and join an Indian and a Thai student. My old supervisor comes in and I read for him what they have wrote. It is full with mistakes but I improvise.

I am at a presentation of a gallery specialized in sculptures and seat by a famous artist. My son's teacher is actually presenting his work and I try to pay attention but as the documentary starts she seats on the floor in front of me. I then try to move but there is a column on the way.

I am walking with my wife by a road filled with autumn leaves. We are going to a party and have walked all the way from the other side of town to save the metro's money. I then tell her how I have been only eating onions to save more money and she makes fun of me.

I am walking along a deserted beach and come to the end of it where I find some ancient ruins. They are actually the cement structures of two modern houses and I go upstairs. As I look out of the window the enemy sees me and almost shoot me. I get ready to shoot back.

I am looking at a magazine and find the ad for a trip to a mountain up north. I climb to the top convincing my son to follow me and lay on the rock as it starts shaking. We then go down again and find our tourist guide in the church with the others listening his explanation of a holy sculpture.

I am going to my new house that is fully paid by my new wife. As I get in I remember that my old father is now living with us and he will start smoking. I find him in the kitchen and we start to write together a list of things I should buy for him. I suggest an instant coffee brand called cacao.

A friend and I go to the sea side that is still dark and walk up a hill to reserve a place for us. We will have to find it in the public area where the grass has been cut but see that a girl is already laying with her legs opened in the higher grass. She is actually tanning under the street lamp.

I am with a group of volunteers building an astronaut and the photographer calls us downstairs. We then group together for the picture but he wants us to pretend to hold a cat like the other groups did. We then hug together but I am too smelly and I would need to shower.

I am testing a commercial sample of clothes in an aquarium filled with liquor. A guy comes to check them and find a chain that can easily break. As I stay close to him explaining that I am still testing he kisses me in the forehead. A short Polish girl also comes to kiss me but I am not willing.

I am walking with a girl along an American road and reach a bank. She changes her dollars even though we still need them. I actually don't have anything left and she only gets the paper money. There are still the coins and they can be worth at least one dollar each but I give them to her.

I am in the bathroom and open the shelf behind the mirror. There I find a new deodorant that I got from my wife. It is transparent and has very good fragrant but I suddenly check if it contains any harmful aluminum. I don't find the entire word but do find its chemical element.

My homosexual Greek friend is spending the night at our place. He felt asleep on the side of our bed where our son was already sleeping. The latter is looking with his arms for his mother and wakes him up. My Greek friend starts panicking and doesn't know what to do.

Two fishermen are arguing about setting the sail of their small wooden boat and finally one manages to do it. They come close to a deserted beach and find allot of fish but it is half asleep. There is a wale nearby even if the water is very shallow and it has released its sporific hormones.

I am with my high school swimming team training and get assigned to the slow lane. I then let the swimmers come close to me and get ready to start off in full speed. I really want to show them how much stronger I am but one of the guys gets very fast and passes me.

I am attending an electronic workshop but there is allot of confusion among the participants. I then go up to the board and tell everyone to make a common choice. I draw three cables and ask them what colors we should use for them. We then decide to use single wires that are less expensive.

I am on a dark stage getting ready to perform an ancient martial art to the public. I try the first positions but get always stuck. My German teacher then tells me to move my weight to the front. I try that and realize that her two little kids can already stand on their hands.

I am locked in small storage room with two American ladies. One of them is very excited about her boat outside but the other tells her that it is on their private dock. She then asks her if they can share it but the latter tells her that soon there will be an Antarctic breeze and she better move it.

I join my step-father and two sisters eating under a highway. They are expecting a third sister who is actually an old friend and my bigger sister tells us how the latter wish a kid with a Moroccan. She keeps talking and I wish to put her head in the pasta but then talk to my small sister.

A boy reaches a witched castle at night and place his sleeping friend under a tree. He also plans to sleep but the evil wizard comes out riding his flying car. The boy can't sleep all night and the day after goes exhausted to in the castle to kill the wizard but the latter has already become immortal.

I am talking to an old classmate about our year together in high school. I use to be very good with algebra but got a low score in the end because of a surprise test given by our teacher. I couldn't think and got a even worst than the classmate who copied the results from me.

I am in class and throw a chewing gum to a friend's nose. As he throws it back the teacher catches him and the lecture finishes. I then help an elder teacher to walk out holding her under her armpits. As I get back the young teacher asks me if I got her message to be careful with the former.

I see a man highlighting some passport pictures and I ask him to show me how my device works. He places the picture inside for me but it is still dark. I then ask another man and realize that many of my drawings are still inside. I remove them and the picture lights up very well.

I am on top of a hill by a church and notice the engraving with both the date when it was founded and the date when it got destroyed. I then realize that the previous church was constructed out of the volcanic rock underneath. There are even stone sculptures attached and men seating on top.

I am in a park photographing my own foot-print. I do it with one foot and try to have my shoe wet to photograph the other but then an old photographer friend comes. He tells me to just take a picture of the many footprints left by other people and wants us to get ready for the football game.

I am doing yoga with my old American girlfriend following an Indian book. I then start a new exercise so that I can eat but she gets angry and tells me that we should do it together. I then wait for her and she soon starts eating Jasmin rice with curry.

I am walking up the old staircase of a technology college after I told the secretary to reactivate it. There is a big pipe going through it but it doesn't do anything. As I get to the top it actually makes music with many gears and connections. It is painted where I should walk but is very dangerous.

My son and I get flying on top of an ancient castle. I then ask him whether he would like to live there but he is not interested because it is too dry and flat. I then take him over the ancient walls where there is a sudden cliff. It is very beautiful and he now wishes to live there.

We just got a tiny squirrel in a plastic package with nuts. He has found a tiny nut to eat but I can't close the package because the tape doesn't stick. He actually goes out and manages to jump around the apartment. We get ready to catch him but he bounces on me and back in the package.

I am walking in a Jewish district and find a video of Palestinian student coming up on the public TV. As I wait for it two Spanish girls comes to the traffic light with two wild horses and try to photograph them as they gnash. A military jeep pass by and the girls jump in to get a better picture.

I am walking with a bunch of friends on the grass by a sidewalk and walk pass a bridge. On the opposite side one of them meets a very fine blond lady and she kisses them both. She is actually an important minister and I also get ready to get kissed making my cheeks wet with saliva.

It is afternoon and I am in my apartment with my son checking his mother who is still in bed. I actually find my small laptop running on the floor and see that she has tried to use it to stream a film. I am about to get angry but then see that she first tried with her own laptop and didn't work.

I am walking to a contemporary museum for a meeting but feel hallucinated. I barely walk through the store and make it to the café which is actually the staff kitchen. The curator who I am supposed to meet is with the main curator and I take my laptop out even if I mostly blind.

I am out in a street that there is allot of snow and see my uncle buying a sweater for my son. I then walk towards him but go too far. As I walk back an iron ball rolls right in front of me. They are some Jewish kids and I scold them but they keep playing and actually use it as a volleyball.

A bad guy stops two other bad guys to mob them even if a black policeman is right behind them. As the latter gets in a cigar shop the bad guy wants the two others to start the policeman car from the open window. He then drives away while the two puts their hands up to get arrested.

I am with my son at the bottom of a small sky slope and see a very fast skier going down and then up again. I then remember that there are allot of jumps there and wait for the next skier. One comes but there is a hole and he falls down on a side with his skies keeping straight.

A super hero boy is out on a space station defusing one of the atomic bombs that humans have placed against the earth. He then digits on the window and gathers all the information. As he is about to go an employee rips his face off but a new appears. He then gets swallowed in high grass.

I am in the back of a yacht among a small crowd listening to a left wing politician. He explains how the way we have marched to the buffet is very right wing. As he leaves I ask his name as I want to vote for him but another politician from the green party explains their union with the fascists.

I am with my son's teacher walking in an old town and she tells me how her second son just died burnt in bed. We then go to a pizzeria and she tries to get reheated the slice of pizza she was eating then. The pizza man finds it too burnt in the back and gives her a new slice.

I am in a square with two dogs howling like humans. I then walk up to a building and find many wax sculptures of a saint. As I seat to film I realize that the dogs are still around as my step-father is eating meat and talking about my wedding. He doesn't give them anything and he gets bitten.

I am having dinner and two drunk Americans starts telling me how I should go with other girls. I then tell them to shut up as my wife may get offended. They then want to beat me and drink more of a water like liquor. I don't know how to get rid of them and try talking to my friends.

I am with a group of Orthodox Jews going with a rifle in the back to pick wood in an evacuated area. We then hurry to walk back along the sea but my bundle of wood is loosen and I can't go so fast. My Polish friend has actually a very well fasten bundle and tells me of his Jewish descent.

I am in a street that the sun is rising and see an old classmate going out of the swimming pool. I then wave at him but I realize that he is another blond classmate. He is offended because I said that his face looked ugly in a picture taken when the sun was high but now he looks handsome.

My son and I are at my relatives' farm and I am on the table cutting a long carpet of grass where strawberry plants are growing. My old aunt then tells me that there use to be a strawberry field where we are now seating. She is so charming that I want to hold her hand but refrain from doing it.

I am in a building and a friend tells me of a monitor that is big like a man. I then go to check it but it is smaller. In the next room there is a wall with monitors of different sizes. I seat by a cute girl to watch it and realize that she is my old student. She then asks about my family but is traveling.

My son and I are with a Southern Italian couple going to a large cinema. As we are almost inside I realize that we need tickets and tell them to wait us in the middle. They are actually going to seat on the top and we look inside. There is a big lion being projected in three dimensions.

I am walking with my son down a road with snow and come to a tree with two American guys and a girl on top. They are homeless and are trying to saw some firewood. They demand my help but I explain how I have also tried that when I was young and broke my back.

A super hero is escaping with his car in the night but the energy runs out and he has to stop in a dark road. He then waits for the bad guys to pass him and checks his broken bat wing. The wheels of his super car automatically rotates and park in a small spot where it will close up in a shield.

We are leaving our apartment to go for a small holiday but I realize that there are still dirty dishes on the table. I then tell that to my wife but she tells me to wash them when we get back. There is even a large pot with food that can go bad and I set to do the dishes anyway.

I am in the car with my mother and my step-father who are going to get married. The roads are muddy and we park the car high up. We will have to walk down and my step-father toss me a big camera bag. There is actually an expensive camera inside and I will have to take pictures.

My wife is still laying in bed and I go to ask her about her project abroad. It all turned out well but there was no one to document it. She then tells me that the guy who took pictures in the previous project had them all publicly available on the Internet and made a big scandal.

My son is now hosted by another family and I look through the glass of a cabinet where they have prepared the Christmas presents. Each of their sons has a dedicated shelf and even my son. Many of the presents are half used and I realize that the paper wrapped around them are my pictures.

I walk with my family around the second floor of an old mall looking for a shop selling watches for my wife. They seem all closed and we stop in the end of the corridor at a Turkish café to have a tea. I actually don't want black tea but the Arab owner is actually preparing a night chamomile.

I get an mail from a University but it just to thank me for my submission and send pictures of their college. In another mail I get the next thirty years plan. I then look out of my window at the college where I am now living and think how unpredictable is the future with upcoming innovations.

I am in my room and notice a device blinking on the wall. It actually tells me how much is my energy bill. The total is not so high but it is calculating a new total based on an outrageous amount. I then wonder how I could have spent so much money.

I am at a dinner with the parents of my son's classmates. The ones in front of me are actually German and I tell them that my son is half Swedish. The woman is also originally from Sweden and we start talking till also my wife comes and I introduce them to each other.

I am showing an old friend the pictures of my last show. In the same installation where I had my photos there are my large drawings. He is very impressed and I show him another installation where all my thoughts are continuously scrolling on many screens. There is actually an interruption.

The black American president is hugging his Scandinavian secretary after they have won a money award. The head of the jury is actually a dentist and the president leaves but will have to come back with his private jet. He has many cavities and she has already started to fill a few of them.

I am walking with a dead friend in an old city and find an open palace. We then go in the courtyard and an homeless shows us the direction. We start following a path of stones but the water is too high and with too many fat fishes. I have my boots and I hold my friend but there was an elevator.

I am with my best friend in a museum and I start watching a movie on some special goggles. He then comes forward and try to get a soda can by putting allot of money into a vending machine. They all get accepted and we get allot of cans but I don't feel for it and he offers me some old cheese.

I am walking on the side of a big road when an old van starts driving very fast. It has a siren and I understand that it is the police. They are ceasing another old van that stops on the other side of the crossing. It is full with people coming back from a wedding and the groom tries to excuse them.

I get to do another exhibition in the same museum where I did it before. As I am thinking how to install my work I realize that I can reuse the same format including newer pictures. I will just need to borrow a car to transport the old pictures from my parents-in-law's farm where they are stored.