

I am with my spiritual friend trying to get out of an office. We try through the window but it is locked. I then look for the key in the drawers but cannot find it and other people are coming. We then pretend to work on a computer but it is our old classmates. They can only recognize my friend.

I receive an e-mail from the organizer of an exhibition in the States. She is actually a female curator while I have replied to a male scholar I knew. There is a list of points I have to respect for the exhibition and I read that I should use advanced technology but I was not really thinking about it.

I am with my spiritual friend on a train and look for a place where to seat. There is one available nearby a dark hair girl. We seat together and she starts holding my hand although his mother is behind us with her sister. We even start to make out and I get afraid to be seen through the seats.

I am in an empty house holding my new born nephew. She is very small and I take her to the courtyard outside where I give it to a woman. She drop her and a small bird comes out as if she was an egg. As she tries to revive it an ugly crow is nearby and I try to warn her but she doesn't care.

I am walking with my Colombian student on a dirt road. I ask him about his teaching position in a small town and he tells me that it is not going well. I think it is because of the size of the town but he tells me that he prefers to teach in an even smaller town where a friend owns another school.

I get to my office that all my colleagues have left. I then walk to the bathroom but meet two students who are living there. On my out I meet them again and I start walking by bending my legs far down. One of them is behind me and tells me that I have so much energies that I could go dancing.

I am outside of a ranch and see a man in a luxury card throwing money to his girlfriend behind. I am quite indignant for the waste but realize that it is not his car and they are served food inside. I then see the waiter coming with a dish of pasta and try to reach through the window the prices.

I get out of a seminar and follow my colleagues down in a metro station. I there start to complain about the lady who just gave the seminar but they are not critical. As I try to tell them that she was only giving us a summary another woman professor comes. The latter is even more critical.

I am with my son in our old American house and walk down to the porch of another house. As I turn to the street I see my old Chinese boss driving down to his villa. I am sure he has recognized me and I take my son back to our house. I then look down again but find him looking my direction.

I am in a small car with my cousin and another friend. We are actually going over an alpine pass and they start speaking French. I then realize that we are making to the French side. As we drive down to a village I find it immersed in a black cloud but my cousin tells me that it is only the night.

It is getting dark and I am walking along a lake to reach an American neighborhood. As I am almost there I get in a big reception with many persons. It is actually a Russian colleague who is celebrating her dissertation. I comment on her thesis anyway although I did not attend the ceremony.

I am in a car with two old friends. My best friend has been driving for a long time and I admit that I want to visit my father in Canada. He then stops at the first village across the boarder but there is actually still more than an hour to reach the city where he lives. We keep it there anyway.

I get on a small slope and take a wheel chair to roll down. It is fun but I soon start to decelerate again. As it almost stops I realize that a dog is running on my side as if he wanted to bite me. I then get off the wheel chair and run to a small tree. I start climbing it up but the dog does the same.

I am in an old city on the water and follow a guy who knows a shortcut. He takes me and another guy over a plastic bridge but then starts going from boat to boat. I show him a path on the opposite side and we take it. There is a small pizzeria but the lady inside has a burnt arm and we get out.

I am in a city with my luggage and I realize that I am running late for my plane. I see the bus to the airport and run to get in the next stop but it goes on. It is too late and I even lost my luggage. My Greek friend is seating on a staircase and starts saying that my research is too complicated.

I get to a friend's apartment that is late in the day and look for food to cook. His roommate is still in bed and comes out. He wants to prepare coffee and takes out a jar with untoasted beans. I want to help him but spill them on the floor. I then put them in the haven but I need a bigger jar.

I am in a changing room with my new students and realize that I am supposed to teach them karate. Some of them already have the black belt but I feel confident and take them out in the corridor. As I print out the assignment I hear the voice of my other colleague praising me on the speakers.

I am running with some guys and come to a field. I want to cross it diagonally but they keep on a path in the forest to the side. I then wait for the others but they don't come and I go on alone. The path is very good but then I reach a newly renovated farm and the gravel gets too thick to run on.

I am walking over a small hill in the garden of my American condo and see that an old Swedish classmate from my high school has come to visit me. It has been many years we haven't seen us and I hug her. I then take her in my room but I only have the top of a bed while the bottom is rented.

I am with my stepfather in a mountain cabin. The owner shows us a picture of the track his father has done. It is on top of a big mountain and I can see small men skiing around. The edges are actually very steep and he tells us that. I then realize that a small man is actually falling off.

I am watching a football game with my stepfather. The national team is playing against the English team. They are even and the game is ending but an English player scores. Soon after an Italian player scores with his head and I get really excited but my stepfather seems very indifferent.

I am taking my director around an American city to buy gifts for his family. I can't find any good shop but we pass by a second hand he likes. We get in and he already knows what to get. He then gives the shop assistant his credit card but it is very slow and bills come out one after another.

I go up to my flat after a long time feeling depressed. My African roommate is one staircase higher with a friend and I ask the latter how long he will stay. He tells me that he will be with us for a month and I feel quite disappointed. As I get in I see that my table has been moved to the kitchen.

My Polish friend is sorting pictures on his computer with my son. He just takes a few at the time and I show him how to select them all at once. As I do so I see the picture of my ex wife's legs in a kitchen. She is wearing jeans and I remember that it was right before we finally separated.

I get to an airport and realize that I am late. I don't even have my ticket print out but I show the security the one I have on my laptop and they let me pass. I then see the clock and realize that I might still be able to get my flight but when I get in the terminal I realize that it is half hour too late.

I am walking in the downtown of an old American city and decide to go home to chat on the Internet with my girlfriend. I then cross a small bridge and make it to the other side. As I start walking there I realize that I am actually reaching her house going through the Dutch town where she lives.

I am flying over a beautiful coast by the sea and pass bye a road where I once rode my bike down. It looks dangerous but I move forward and come by a playground on the beach. There are a few kids playing and among them is my son. I wish I could stop to play with him but I keep on floating.

I am in my vegetable garden and see that there are some pee plants growing. I then decide to start cleaning it again but remember that my father-in-law will anyway go over it with the trimmer. I then walk back to the house and hear my mother-in-law saying that they are going on holiday.

I am walking with my relatives up a mountain and keep behind them. We come to a very steep precipice and they start deciding while I keep to the top to film. As I look in the screen I realize that a woman is swimming my way and it is filled with water. She comes out and wants to see the film.

I am with two of my old friends in a restaurant and one of them goes to the restroom. I then look with the other what kind of food they have but he finds it to expensive. A lady is selling buns and I select one for each but then also asks if she has anyone salted. She has one and I buy that too.

I am at a presentation of a Russian colleague. She is talking about a Nordic lake and our Swedish professor tries to correct her. She then understands it is actually a sea and move forward to present the Armenian people living on that side of Russia telling how kind they are with foreigners.

I am in a church having a meeting with other people but we all find that the air is too stuffy. We then try to open the windows but still too little air comes in. I then follow a man and a woman to the entrance and they keep the doors open. It works but I start feeling way too cold.

I am with my Polish friend in a bank and decide to ask an employee for a big loan. I then warn her that they have always rejected my applications but she says that it is fine. She takes me to an empty office and tells me the interest I have to pay every month but it is already calculated.

A young man is up on a highland and he is told to drive his car to a miniature house to smell it. He drives too fast and crashes against it. There are no humans inside but only many chickens who starts running loose. The young man then goes to ask the farmers to help him catching them.

I am going to a party pushing a chart through the woods. A girl is with me and she puts her hand on the handle close to mine. I can feel her index finger but I don't respond because I already have a girlfriend. We then come to a parking lot where my old Dominican landowner is giving the party.

A girl is driving a cabriolet in an American neighborhood to promote a non-existing university. She soon realizes that she has to dress up like a young student and seats on the trunk with a mannequin. They reach the house of a black and white girl who shrinks and gets in the trunk.

I am walking with my Greek friend over a bridge and he tells me about his Japanese colleague. They have recently lost their job and he tells me that she cannot find any more work. He then explains to me that it is because she had started to focus too much on experiments and not real projects.

I am on an airplane but it is too windy and the captain decides to fly really low. We actually go over a railway bridge and I realize that we are in Russia. I then ask a woman from there if I need a visa and she tells me that my identity card is ready to be picked at any post office.

I get to a beautiful valley by the sea with allot of well kept fruit trees. I realize that the land closer to the water is actually from my family and that the fruit trees have not been pruned. I then ask for a saw to prune them myself but my sister does not allow me even though I used to do this work.

I am walking with my kid to a party for the parents of his classmates. They are all rich but we meet a poor one and start to follow him. He is going across a big road but my kid stays on one side and picks some snow to eat. I complain that it is dirty but he shows me that they are chewing gums.

I am crossing a big road but see a truck approaching. It is quite small and slows down. I then cross before it reaches me and find that I got a message on my phone. It is a love message from my old Brazilian friend. I can't believe that I am in a relationship with him and I decide to avoid him.

I get in a school and look for a document. I then see that my shelf has been removed and my camera is hanging. The janitor hits it by mistake and comes to help me looking for my document in the trash. I find a bunch and see that they have all being graded with the name of my girlfriend.

I am in my kid's old American school and go to the top floor. His old teachers are there and I take him up to meet them again. There is only one of his classmates left and they tell me that they went to another school. I then remember that they must be now in primary school.

I am with my girlfriend in my room and she tells me of a party her friend is giving. We are supposed to dress blue and I ask her what kind. I have a light blue t-shirt but she actually means a deep blue.

A famous actor is flying at night over to a gigantic industry suspended in the sky. As he flies between the tanks some space soldiers gets on top to shoot him with laser guns. One of the manages and the actor can no longer fly but has to use a rope.

I am with my relatives waiting to eat at a restaurant. There are actually several buffets and a man has to inaugurate them before we can start. As he is doing it for one far from us we realize that the one behind us is open and I ask my cousin to give me an omelet but it is a stake.

I am walking with my kid down a china town and realize that they have hanged spiral irons on the electric cables over our heads. My son asks me what they are meant for and I explain to him that it is for lightings. When they strike there the irons makes them into fire works like sparkles.

I am at a refreshment with my relatives when my uncle shows up. He has been under treatment for cancer and I can see it that from his face. He actually approaches me to ask me if I know what happen to him and I let him speak although I know that.

I get in a park that they are setting up a baseball game. I also start playing and get the ball but I cannot throw it because of my shoulder. They then put me far in the back but I tell the manager that I am very fast and cannot throw too far. He then puts me in the second base and I feel moved.

I am walking in an ancient city on the water and end up in a restaurant. There are many people inside and even girls making out. I get in but I have no reservation and the waitress see I have a badge with my name and can tell that I have not booked.

I am showing my kid an image of an exploring approaching a penguin. I then tell him that it is not possible but I am also on a beach with allot of penguins. I want to drink from their gold egg but too many people come and they disappear. I then find a glass but there are no longer any eggs.

I get on a train with my dead grandfather. He explains that my mother and sister will take the next train and wonder if I have any food. I don't but I tell him that I can go to the restaurant wagon and try to bargain for a loaf of bread.

I am my ex wife's parents' place in the country renovating the old cottage. I am actually putting allot of work but then I find her in the living room drawing a map. I see that she his highlighting the cottage in red and realize that she wants to get rid of it. They will build a new one elsewhere.

I am with my girlfriend on a speed boat. A senior military is also there and we are actually taking him to the hospital. He then tells us how he got in an accident on another boat and he was incriminated. I then realize that they do have hospitals in military camps and he must be laying to us.

My mother takes me to a shop in my native village. They are selling expensive sweaters and I tell the owner that I only want stockings. He sends me to his assistants and she gives me a whole box with stockings of different color. I don't know whether they are the same size but I try the red ones.

I am driving along a cultivated hill with a man working for my relatives' old farm. I ask him how are my cousins doing and he tells me that the females all live together but not the male. He is always alone and decided to plow the fields even though there were still the vegetables to pick up.

I am walking with a guy in a nice valley with steep mountains on both sides. We have similar walking sticks but he notices that my handle is broken. As I tell him not to be so picky we reach the entrance of a tunnel. The door opens and closes automatically to let the air in and I am not afraid.

I am supposed to give a lecture about electronics to a class even though we just had the same lecture. I stand in the middle with my suitcase but realize that my old Japanese friend is there with a prototype of magnetic balls. I then ask him to demonstrate it but the balls spin out of the basin.

I am by a football field when the American president's old wife approaches. I know that she is getting an envelope with money and I let her know. I then get a message from a security guard and start running away. Policemen start chasing me but they are also in front of me and I get caught.

A group of investigators are testing a metal net. It was used to imprison a man but he managed to push his head through it and escape. They don't see how it can be possible but one of them realizes it that it is very easy to cut through it with the small scissor of a little Swiss knife.

I am on a bus to a big American city. My girlfriend is seating with me and we discuss about a present to an old curator friend who just hosted us there. I did buy a card gift for his e-mail account but I never received it and realize that I gave him an empty envelope without the card inside.

I am seating in a bar with an older man and his young daughter. They are very enthusiast about my own country and they want to drink wine from there. I don't drink but accept. The waiter brings me a glass and I actually try it. It is very good and I drink it all warning that I will get drunk.

I am in an American city and meet another Italian but from the South. We then seat in a restaurant together and I order two pizzas. He also orders one and we are served very quickly. We then eat them and go out but realize that we have not paid. I then point at a path where we can escape.

I am with my best friend and reach a café where an half Italian guy works. We get in and find that there are other half Italians. My friend then asks them for their Italian names and an American girl tells him that of his ex girlfriend. He then tells her the meaning based on the latter's character.

I am in my apartment that is early in the morning and I have to go to a conference. I then pull some shirts out of my backpack and choose a green one to wear. I quietly go in the closet to wash myself and realize that my parents are living in my apartment without paying any rent.

I am in my parents' old place and walk through the neighbours' garden. They have a box in the trash and I look inside. The wife is actually behind me chatting with another woman and she tells me to go ahead. I cannot stand her voice and there are only purple tulips inside that I leave there.

My mother is in our old garage fixing her bike. She then tells me that her new husband is now going biking by himself. I then take out my bike and put it outside to wash it but our neighbour comes. He is black like an African and I am really impressed but then realize that he is dirty with oil.

I am with my son in a small wood that I just bought. I want to make space for a tent but it is too close to the road below. I then go more inside and find allot of small trees I can remove. The properties continues and I look for another place but end up under the intersection of a big highway.

I find a basement in my new property but it is made of cement and there are no windows. There is actually a toilette but it is also very dirty. As I go out I realize that there is another room and there is a big bed and a kitchen. I then open the fridge and find some food from the previous owner.

I follow my stepfather down a tunnel to an old hospital. There are several arrows and he tells me to follow one with a strange name. He wants my head to be examined with an helmet and I am afraid they will use radiography. We then reach his colleague but he is busy with another patient.

I am with my son and reach the grave that a French postman built for himself. It is very beautifully decorated but they have constructed a cement cupola to protect it and there are small solar panels around it. I pick one and go in the darkness to show my son how the sensors makes it light up.

I take a bus to go to a small village and ask the driver where to stop but we have already passed it. It is too far to go back but he tells me that I can stop in the next city center. I then wonder if it is an historical center but we reach a very ugly suburb with allot of young immigrants.

I am at the a university and talk to an important art historian. He is organizing an exhibition for one of my colleagues and I also show him a catalogue with my work. I explain the kind of exhibition I want to do and he tries to organize one for me in a gallery. He then tries to call the curator.

I am in a dining room preparing the table for two guests but I miss two forks. My little nephew is playing on the floor and I remember that she has two inside her teddy bear pouch. I then try to take it from her but get a sharp knife out instead and almost cut her hand. I try again and succeed.

I am watching a football game with my national team and get really excited about a black player. He almost scores but they have to go for the penalties. As a woman walks with balloons in the middle I seat next to my dead grandparents and pick some grapes from a man sponsored by an Arab.

I am in a collective farm and get assigned a vineyard. I then start to put the branches around a cement structure and see my supervisor coming. I then turn to a tree but we anyway meet and he tells me that it is a good place. There is a swimming pool on one side and a property on the other.

I am biking with an old university friend through the historical center of an Italian city. He actually lives there with his mother and stops at a door. I continue anyway although I wanted to greet his mother. I actually live in the suburbs and have to bike across a busy road on the zebra crossing.

I just got a new motorcycle and I drive slowly around. There is another guys on a Japanese motorcycle looking much faster. He actually passes in front of me but I don't care and feel happy of my France styled motorcycle. As I reach home my uncle is there and I am afraid he wants it from me.

I find a long path in a valley but decide to stay inside. I then go in a house but realize that we are being surrounded by Arabs. They halt to look at a miniature girl surrounded by big snakes in the basement. One of them stuck a long teeth through her body but her mother comes to remove it.

I am with my mother in a clothes shop. She wants me to try an expensive sweater with a rumble but I don't like it and the shop assistant tells her that it is from the last season. She gets it anyway and shows me some underwear. I go through them and find some I like with an imprinted penis.

I am in a cathedral with a guy. I have my camera on an stone engraved handrail and wait for him to place his camera. He places it on an opposite corridor and I wait for him to come next to me and take a picture together but the camera is bending down and we have to do everything all over.

I am with a friend and two immigrant girls walking through a mall. My friend is actually going with one of the girls and I am expected to go with the other. They take us in a small bedroom but I start writing. The girl gets undressed but her body is really ugly and I have a girlfriend already.

I am in the kitchen washing the dishes with my African roommate and his friend. They are knelt on the floor praying their Muslim god and I realize that my roommate's head almost touches the fire on the stove. As I am about to tell him he backs up a little and just starts to hit the handle.

I am at a gallery looking at a successful artist painting a tropical sunset on three canvases. I know I can do better and start painting a tropical landscape but with only a thin stripe of ocean. As I make some dots with silver paint allot of kids comes in the actual landscape with my art supervisor.

I wake up in a bedroom and get ready to go for a hike with my old friends. We are supposed to go up to the mountains but I try to think of an easy path not to get exhausted. My trousers are actually all broken and I decide to toss them and just use another pair that is also for outdoor activities.

I am in an American city and see some kids in the water with a remote controlled jeep. It has another platform connected to it and a kid is surfing on top. He falls down with all his clothes and my kid also come fully dressed but walking on the surface. I try to call him but he starts drowning.

I am driving up a pick in the alps with my girlfriend. As we drive down we reach another pick and I read that it is for people to catch breath. There is actually a beautiful beach there and some swallow water where people are swimming. It seems warm and we stop behind a store to get changed.

My son and I get in a small theme park. He shows me a ride he just took and tells me how sick he got in his stomach. It seems actually quite okay just spinning around slowly but suddenly it starts rising and people are swung around in the air much faster.

I meet the inventor of wearable computers in a small lab on the street and find him really young. He starts talking about them but I want to film him. He accepts but keeps talking while I set up the camera. He is curious about it and I tell him that it is okay but the audio is not so good.

I am with my son embarking on a small ferry. I get a seat for us on the sea level and he falls asleep. As I think about how good it was that we have taken the boat instead of the airplane a steward comes. He is busy for the departure but I anyway ask him some water for my kid and he accepts.

I am on a train going slowly through a suburb. My relatives are there and my aunt tells us that she just bought a jet plane from a cousin. My mother tells her that she is crazy and there will be allot of expenses like tax and fuel. My aunt doesn't say anything and my uncle is not worry about it.

I am with my girlfriend walking up a Canadian mountain. It is getting very steep and we start riding a small train together. I don't want to look down and I keep on kissing her until we reach the last stop. There I look for a path to go down on foot but we end up on a staircase that is very high.

I am with my parents at the bottom of a ski slope. We are actually waiting to get up on the ski lift but see our mountain neighbour by bike. He is going on the snow and even carrying his little son. He does not stop to say hi to us and just starts to ascend the mountain right on the ski lift track.

I am walking with a friend on a parking lot and hear a band playing. There is a cake on the floor they should get as a present and I pretend to pick it up but then realize that they are actually good. We go inside a bar to congratulate and one of them shows me that they even have three fans.

I am at a park and seat on a big bronze hand but there is too much sun and I go to seat on the opposite hand in the shadow. I then try to relax but there is a black guy with a friend seating next to me. They are listening to an African football game on the radio and they get really excited.

My kid has just finished karate school and the Chinese teacher lays him on a little bed. He wants to fix his feet like a geisha and I keep on his side. He actually starts pulling his legs and my kid feels pain in his neck. I hold my face next to his and notice that the teacher is using a special device.

I am in a desolated mountain and feel very lonely. The sky is dark and gray but then I see that my sister is going into a forest to the side. I follow her and we actually start skiing together. The snow is much softer than the one I am used of up north and I really enjoy skiing behind her.

I am with my girlfriend in my new property on top of a small mountain in Andalusia. I am actually with my thumb in her but there is another couple and I want to take her away. I then lift her with my arm and leave but there is a rock to climb and there are other Dutch people seating there.

I am walking with my girl on a small mountain path and cross some Romans. I am actually a centurion and turn in a village to show her my property. It is a bakery but the two assistants I have always burn the bread. One of them has baked a perfect muffin and the other also gives her one.

I am with my kid in a theme park and look at a small roller coaster. There are two looking almost identical and one of them seems okay. I decide to go on that but all of a sudden see that the people are thrown into the other roller coaster. My son throws a toy there and it gets really dangerous.