```
I am seating with my old carpenter friend and his wife. The latter just started to work for the first time in her life despite the old age. She is healthier now even though she tells me it was a friend.
I am walking with a famous presenter in a house where her radio is based. She is guiding me as if I was a celebrity and we don't even keep on the ground floor to greet the rest of the staff but go directly upstairs. There the presenter kisses me but her mouth is full of saliva and I pull back.
I am at a fair and come to a stand presenting a new motorcycle. As I look into it I already understand that it can travel with only one tank full across the world. I cannot believe but it is also stated in the technical sheet.
I am in a big dormitory looking for my bed. It is taken and I decide to sleep in the one below it. As I put my feet under the blanket I realize that there is a black girl sleeping on the opposite side. She actually stands up and admits that she also took a random bed without checking her booking.
I am walking in a city and hear a famous artist talking to her sister behind me. The former admits to the latter that she has been trying to make art out of her dreams but she barely has any time to sleep. She actually started making up her dreams and cries saying that she can no longer lies.
I am in my mountain apartment and hear two men working outside. They are actually digging the neighbour's garden. I then try to place it there but there is no shadow and decide to place it in my garden with a beach umbrella.
I am on a big road of a big city and hear a rock song from my youth. I then get my phone ready to write it down but the sing is too long and I cannot hear the title. I actually start singing it in my head and look at the photos I took on my phones about my family and I on our last sea holiday.
I am on a small boat and go up to the deck when we suddenly enter a tunnel with a strange light. It makes all the passengers go crazy and I move away on time to seat with a nice girl. As the light shines again we kiss.
I am in a garage fixing the height of a pillow. It is actually for a sofa my Greek friend stores during the winter. I then mark the level and says I should always ask him to help me. He then takes one side up and we bring the sofa in his place.
I am in a disco getting quite bored and decide to walk home. It is actually on top of a hill and I just start running down. I get far but realize that I might have my car keys. I then start walking slowly all the way back up the hill to the car.
I am in a bedroom trying to get my daughter to sleep but she keeps on crying. My twin sister is outside with our old friends and takes her from me. I get very angry and decide to immediately erase my sister from my phone contacts.
I am in a big villa seating with my girlfriend and her friend living there. They actually made some rice for me but it is too little and don't even want to try it. I then go down to the kitchen and find some frozen bread in the freezer. It is soft despite being frozen and I start eating that instead.
I am at a party in a big garden when my Polish friend comes to congratulate me for a book I wrote. He then gets back in the crowd and I realize it is the first time he talked to me in years. I try to spot him again to also congratulate him for his book and see that he his inside a big greenhouse.
I am walking with a guy on a beach but the tide is very high and we have to start walking on a dike. There is suddenly a bridge and I follow the guy across it but it is too thin and I barely get on a platform from where a more solid Tibetan kind of bridge begins. I then run down the latter.
I am in a big city with a group of friends and my camera falls down. One of the friends is able to pick it up but then just toss it back to me. As the camera is in the air I see that it is on. I then keep filming while we seat next to a fountain improvising an old American song with people watching.
I am with my son walking behind a villa and see the owners kissing in the entrance. We make fun of them but realize that it is part of the previous villa. I paid very little for it but it is also very far from the city center.
I am at the foot of a big mountain talking to two tourist guides. They are actually instructing me how to make it to the top but I realize I will have a place where to hold myself. The older guide suggest an alternative path but it is even more difficult.
I am in my mountain apartment trying to fix my door. My old neighbour is out on the portico but then leaves and I decide to serve lunch outside. I then get back in the apartment to fetch the tortellini I was cooking but they are all broken and I just serve the meat inside them. It looks uncooked.
I am walking in a village by the sea and cross many young people holding signs. They are promoting last minutes offers in local hotels and I find a cheap one for one night but then remember that I already have a booking. I then finish to cross the village and seat on the beach by the harbour.
I am on a small boat anchored in a bay. The passengers are snorkeling but I don't find it interesting and I just wish to move to the next attraction. The captain announces that we are moving and everyone gets in but it seems there is no longer time to stop in a small island I wanted to explore.
I am in a dormitory and get ready to travel outside the city and in the countryside. I have way too much stuff I won't need in my journey and decide to hide it in the room. I find a spot above the door and start putting everything I don't need there although it might fall down at some point.
I am in a Chinese shop selling melons but I don't feel like eating one. I then go out of the shop but forget how to greet in Chinese. The shop assistant also comes out and I want to give her a kiss before we depart but her boyfriend is a gangster and he starts running after me with his gang.
I am walking to an Irish airport so that I can take the train to the English capital. There is actually a lot of snow and I end up crossing a forest next to a suburb. I have my boots on and realize I don't have to flight to a city but can just keep walking and explore the beautiful landscape there.
I am on a new speed train with one of my twin cousins. We actually stop in a city where we usually change train to go to our destination and it might just reach our destination but the crowd pushes him outside and I stay inside.
I am in a garden of a small villa and walk back inside. Through the glass window I see a friend standing without t-shirt in the kitchen with my girlfriend. I then ask ironically if he is too warm but he tells me that he suffers from hypothermia and needs to keep almost naked after every training.
I am in a fast-food with my Swedish artist friend and we both order an hamburger with only bacon inside. We then seat at a table to eat but then I notice two guys seating on the other side of the restaurant. They are the ones who parked their big motorcycle outside and I want to beat them.
I am watching a video about a new feature in a popular Internet browser. It gives the example of a man who has now a very low reputation falling but then a monkey shows how he can get back to his original point.
I am in a villa and get in the backyard where there are some ladies by the swimming pool. There is a young one among them and I think she could be my best friend lover. She actually leaves in a different villa and I am about to go there but then meet my friend and he confirms she is the one.
I am getting in a classroom that the lecture has already started. The teacher asks us to make cigarettes with paper. I then see that another classmate has managed to make paper balloons. I then make a big salami.
I am in a forest with my son and we try to understand how to cut some pine trees. They are all in the same spot and I decide to start with the smaller ones I realize that there is a train passing nearby and that people might see us cutting illegally.
I am checking the site of my mountain installation with my small daughter. All the ground is frozen and I cannot determine whether it is leveled. As I try to stamp on it with my feet I hear my architect nearby talking to his secretary on how late they are with granting me permissions to build.
I am watching an horror movie with my girlfriend. I am actually feeling tired and want to go to bed but she has already watched it and promises me it is about to destroy the world with small air balloons and it doesn't seem to be over any soon.
I am in an apartment dressing like a woman. I actually need to deliver a message outside and a guard asks me and two other women to check the mailbox. There could be a bomb inside and they don't dare to do so but I take the opportunity to go out and deliver the message I hide in my bra.
I am visiting my best friend and his family in a garden. I actually realize that it is private and I see the owner spying us through the door. As I am about to throw her a small stone another woman calls me. She is the neighbour and needs help to lift up her handicap son from the garage.
I am in a compound going to my apartment when I meet my old neighbour. He is pushing a wheelbarrow filled with cement and tells me that he has prepared his kitchen walls to be plastered. It is already late and I ask him where he can sleep then but he has an extra room in his apartment.
I am in a big classroom and realize that I have to make a concert with all the students. They don't have any instrument with them but I force them to imagine they do and we start walking around playing as if we were an orchestra. I am actually directing them and start mumbling a symphony,
I am walking in a pedestrian road wearing a long scarf of a football team. I actually start hoping I don't meet anyone from that city. She doesn't care about the scarf and shows me how she has to go up and down a long slide earning very little money.
I am in a condominium where I just moved but forgot my keys. I then ring the bell hoping one of my flatmates is inside but no one answers. I actually have the keys and get in only to find that one of my flatmates is completely depressed after starting a new business. I tell him to get a secretary.
I am sleeping in my car when a Polish girl wakes me up. She tells me that all her small nephews are missing me and keep playing as if I was with them. I then get ready to go meet them but realize she is there to make love with me. I then tell her that she has a boyfriend but she doesn't care.
I am driving through a field up north and see that they are building several highways. I actually reach a playground where my son and his Italian cousin are playing. I want to bring him back home but he insists to stay there even though they are resuming the work with the highways.
I am with two friends walking in a city. It is still daylight and we decide to go to the movie theater to buy tickets for the evening. My friends go first and I followed them but find a booking ticket already printed from the machine. They can only book a seat for the night and I get a new ticket.
I am on an airplane just about to take off when the woman pilot land again under a big bridge in the water. She actually has a secret meeting with the Russian president and we wait for him to arrive. He soon joins us with a small submarine and I realize that the woman is his secret lover.
I am up a mountain with my girlfriend and my small daughter. We actually see a weird looking penguin and we let her play with it. The penguin suddenly attacks her and I immediately push it away but our daughter is no where to be found. I then realize that the penguin must have eaten her.
I am walking up the staircase of a university building and notice that a lot of girls are looking at me. I then get back down the stairs sliding on the handrail. Outside the building I start jumping over benches as if I could fly.
I am in the car with my mountain neighbours' son and he tells me that he doesn't go to the local pizzeria anymore. I don't understand why and he says that it is because they make the same kind of pizza. He then takes me to a different restaurant but they only make pasta with chocolate.
I am with my son in front of a big gym where he has to train. I then follow him inside and see that there is also his best friend there. I then pretend not to see him and say that I can smell someone from his rich neighborhood. He doesn't care and start chasing my son with a stick to beat him.
I am in a classroom making an exam when a guy hands me all the answers. He gets arrested and the teacher explains that he got the answers in advance from his lawyer. We suddenly realize that the teacher has been using a sausage outside the window to send our classmate to the butcher.
I am at a party in my mountain village and realize that the person seating next to me is the hunter trying to block my art installation. I then turn to him and ask him whether we can try to be friends again. He agrees but then we try to come up with an agreement and he wants a lot of money.
I am showing a house to a fat girl. As we get to the second floor she meets two Swedish guys and one of them takes half of the girl down while the other keeps the second half upstairs. As they start talking to each other I suddenly start speaking Swedish and the guy is very impressed.
I am at my former Swedish university when a colleague offers me to work at a vending machine. I accept and test that it works but I get a salt dispenser that it is all broken. The salt is still all inside and I then try to look how I can fix it and figure out a way to put the plastic lid back on.
I am with a Polish guy showing me the map of his country. It is much bigger than I thought and he tells me that we will have to drive all the way south. We will just go to a party and I ask him whether I can drive home from there. He agrees and I ask him whether they serve alcohol free beers.
I am crossing a city with a group of rich American women and one of them tells me that she has been checking my website with her son. She is actually one of my sponsors and I ask her what month file they viewed. She then tells me that they downloaded a file where I listed all I wondered.
I am walking with my small daughter through a forest and come to a smaller path. I actually wanted to walk with her on it but realize that a big rock has recently hit the first part. I can still see the fragments and how it has rolled further down the valley. I then decide to keep on the main path.
I am in a cafe and take a seat in a sofa. I then go to the buffet to get something to eat but there is a guy in front of me waiting for his drink. I also get a cup but realize that it is already filled with tea. It is actually his cup and I apologize getting back in line waiting for my turn to make an order.
I am at a post-office waiting for my turn to hand in the manuscript I have translated to pass an exam. One of the three ladies at the counter calls my number and I give her the manuscript. She quickly looks through it and makes me pass the exam even though the translation is too literal.
I am seating in a park working with my laptop when a girl comes to look what I am doing. She seems quite euphoric and I suggest that for five minutes she can act spontaneously. She then starts to pick white flowers from a tree and disappears. I want to fall her but she is no where to be found.
I am walking on the sidewalk of a big city and turn into a portico filled with backpackers. I then notice a local guy standing in the corner under a commercial sign. He is helping three Korean backpackers to put small wooden beams all around the scaffolding to create a shelter where to sleep.
I am driving in a parking lot and wonder if it is for free. I see that some cars are parked on a field and I start driving there but the tree branches are too low. I then get back to the main parking lot and realize that a car has several fines. I try to read what they say and find they are expensive.
I am in my mountain village searching for a toilette and realize that I am naked. I hear one of my neighbour's daughter and hurry to a bathroom below her house before she can see me. As I finally lock myself inside I start hearing the other neighbours talking and I realize they are also inside.
I am in a villa with my aunt who came a long way to just spend a few hours with us. I then propose to take her to the airport by car and I tell her to hurry but then my aunt says that her flight is anyway late at night.
I am in a post-office waiting in line when an old gypsy woman gets in front of me. I then remove her by force but notice that her husband is actually the first in line. I then think he might revenge but he doesn't seem to care and I manage to get a bill I need to pay in a different post-office.
I am in a city-hall looking for a place to register myself. I then see the same lady who has helped me previously taking a break and decide to ask her. She tells me to go to another lady whose office is right above us. I then take the elevator and go outside but end up walking behind a stadium.
I am with my old Austrian girlfriend in an elevator. We are actually supposed to drink coffee together but realize that the cafe we wanted to go to is full. I then ask an old man where to go and he tells me to walk to the right. I do so but loose my girlfriend and end up in a hospital basement.
I am with my son on top of a big villa. We are actually running around and he is trying to catch me. As I get close to the edge I wonder what the neighbor will think of seeing a black guy like me in such a villa. It is actually not ours and the gravel in the ground got completely messy for running.
I am on a small boat on the way to a big airport. My old Gambian roommate is with me and worries about loosing his plane. He then calls his aircraft with the boat and without having to go through the security check.
I am talking on the phone with my architect asking him if we got any permissions to build my installation. He keeps mumbling and I don't understand what he is saying. I then ask him if we had to measure a straight line from the hunters' hut or the terrain. He then tells me the former.
I am with my girlfriend driving our car at night. A we are about to get in a German highway we read a sign that there is going to be one hour queue. I first think I don't have any alternatives but to wait in the queue but then my girlfriend shows me a guest house on the side. It is too late to turn.
I am in the modern square of an old city talking with my girlfriend's mother and her boyfriend. They are actually upset with me about an airport that didn't let their luggage go through. As I try to listen to them I see a car driving around the square. It is an old friend seating with many girls.
I am in my old Swedish institute watching a movie. It is shown on several screens and one screen can even duplicate it. As I try to figure out which screen is best to keep watching it an old colleague comes by and ask what I am doing there. I then realize I am trying to get employed again.
I am walking in a church and leave from a side door but end in another church with no light. It is actually quite impressive and I am about to leave from the main entrance when a procession comes. The priest then starts praising a sculpture right next to me but it looks like I am being praised.
I am in an old truck with my parents and reach the fruit shop of one my stepfather's patients. We then send in my son gets to stand on the counter and comes back to tell us how much it is. It is little money and I gave it to him.
I am in a market with a group of homeless and look for something to eat. They only have artificial food and we get back to the metro to search for another place. On the train I meet my Polish friend who tells me that he is working as a volunteer for a charity association serving Asian food.
I am in a forest where a famous band is filming a music video. One of them has a fake penis sticking out of his mouth. It gets very long and he uses a metal tool to clean the tip. As he then puts the penis back out.
I am in the atelier of an artist where I just spent the entire night reading. She actually comes back but goes to sleep in the next room. Her assistant also comes to give me a lollipop. I take it but she kisses me and lays me down on the table. I find her quite ugly and don't feel any excitement.
I am walking with my girlfriend and my dead grandfather below a mountain. I decide with the latter to walk to the top but my girlfriend is too tired and we take her in an ice-cream shop. It is famous for its blackberry ice-cream and I order that and then another one made with spaghetti.
I am watching a movie about a gang meeting a big gangster with the excuse to celebrate his grandson's birthday. They actually have rifles disguised as cucumbers and the gangster finds one on the floor. The others then start shooting him but in the meantime the birthday cake is delivered.
I am in my mountain village ready to drive with a small car to another village. My girlfriend is already inside with our daughter but I can tell that the wheels are too flat. I then tell her to drive alone and ask my neighbour's son how to use my air compressor. I also find a plug to connect it.
I am up a hill with my old friends discussing about doing a picnic there. It is already getting dark and we plan the picnic for the food and I start doing that but one of my friend doesn't seem to trust me. He pretends not to have money.
I am in a villa when an Neapolitan friend's son comes back with my flying suit. He has consumed all the battery and I immediately set it to recharge. As I do so the phone rings and he answers but it is a man who needs to book an appointment with my stepfather and I don't know his number.
I am in my mountain village when my neighbour shows me smoke coming out of my barn. I tell him that everything is okay and that there is just a machine blowing the dust out. His daughter is actually operating her and I tell her to stop. I then ask her to tell me how many hours she worked.
I am outside a restaurant waiting to go in when the brother of an old friend arrives. He looks like a drug dealer but we anyway hug. We actually keep hugging and almost get aggressive but then we manage to separate and go inside where our families are all seated waiting for us to start eating.
I am in a car driving through the Tuscan landscape. It is not as pretty as I thought with only cut wheat fields all around. At the end of a slope I actually see two old houses and I realize that the first one has a small flag of the Venetian lion. I then wonder how the Venetian owner ended up there.
I am with my small daughter in a bakery and order a sandwich for each of us. I then give the shop assistant a big bill but it is not fake. I then give him a smaller bill and a make a good wish for the new government.
I am in a car with a local girl driving through a very boring landscape. I pretend to be interested and soon come to a big castle I have already read about. I know that there is an interesting church built within it but the girl is not interested and we just drive past that into a boring forest.
I am in a park just outside the forest and see a meeting between very important people. One of them is in a wheelchair and when the meeting ends he is brought to an expensive car and put in the back with two servants. I then realize that he is a monarch and was there for a secret meeting.
I am at a bus stop at night looking at some American soldiers playing basketball. They also decide to go home and reach the bus stop. I then present myself and they tell me that they are only civilians working for the soldiers. I then ask them if they like to be abroad but they don't like it.
I am in a car with my stepfather driving to my native highland. I suddenly see a round hill where I could place my installation but my stepfather is going too fast and I loose track of it. We then reach my village but he doesn't seem to slow down and I can see another car coming fast towards us.
I am walking down a mountain and end up on the road at the end of my village. I then announce to everyone that I am angry with the hunter who managed to block my installation and that I will seek revenge. They then inform me that he is also preparing to attack me with the other hunters.
I am in an office preparing an application on a notebook but realize that there are a lot of used pages already. I tear them off but the notebook doesn't hold together anymore. There is actually an Italian friend there and he show me how he can print the application on a good quality long paper.
I am in a restaurant with my parents seating outside. I actually want them to try the local cuisine but they did not like the fish they just served us. It was too fried for them and I then order a local kind of pastry but they bring us a friend cinnamon roll for each of us and they also refuse that.
I am in a room and get a message from my old Austrian girlfriend. I then seat in a corner to write that I will be traveling through her city and it could be nice to meet. I then realize she doesn't speak any English and can only send me emotion icons. I also try to send one but select a mushroom.
I am visiting my best-friend in his new villa and he takes me to the terrace delimited by a small stream. There is a mother making her fat son pee in it and my friend takes his bike and manages to crash against their car before they leave. He then realizes it was a too harsh reaction for so little.
I am with my girlfriend's mother and her boyfriend walking up a mountain. There are the ruins of a Roman emperor's palace on the landscape was exploited to find the sand to mix the cement for the construction. As we go further up we find a whole portico.
I am in a parking lot looking for my car but see that a small gypsy girl is constantly on my side. I then understand that she want to rob me and I scream aloud. She does not move and keeps next to me. As I scream again three young gypsy women arrives and I realize that they are all pregnant.
I am in an old city walking through the main square but realize I am wearing no shoes and my feet are very dirty. I then plan to go inside the main church to wash them in a dark corner but when I go in I realize they have a service. The church is full and I try to walk to the opposite side.
I am walking with my daughter up the staircase to my family villa. It is all abandoned and I think how great it would be to turn it into a residency for artists. Some of my relatives are actually there discussing articles showing how all their initiatives have been blocked by the local politicians.
I am with an old uncle I have never met and he takes me inside a newly renovated palace. There are apartments built on every floor and in each of them lives a poet. I really have a feeling I want to meet the one living on the third floor to the right but as we go up the poet on the left comes out.
I am driving my car in a city but do not know what road I should take to get out. I then try to look up the map on my phone but I can only see my location of a friend that is also driving out and I try to follow him instead. He is in a parallel road and I try to drive there.
I am with my girlfriend in an Italian shop. I actually need to ask if they can wrap a present for us but everyone seems very busy arranging the food they just got delivered. We then go to the shop next door where only a guy works. He wraps us the present for free even though he has little to sell.
I am in a cafe in the Swedish capital and order one of the last sandwiches they have. It is with an entire fish inside but I decide to eat it anyway. I then give my card to the owner and she uses it but cannot see if the transaction works. I then get angry and say I am not going to pay twice.
```