

I am in a basement and realize that my Italian artist friend works there. I am also working on an art project and bring a large metal disc on a table next to him. It is dirty and I need to polish it but my friend also needs that place and I just give up my idea and leave him to work on his project.

I am in a small car my wife rented instead of a big car. I am actually surprised I can stand inside but as I drive inside a tunnel I realize that the front seats and the back seats are too tight together. We are supposed to go camping with it and I wonder how we will ever manage with the children.

I am driving a cabriolet with the twin children of our Dutch neighbours. We actually reach a very old town up a hill and I try to explain to them the style with which the buildings have been built but soon come to a dead end. We then have to walk by a small river going under the main theater.

I am with another teacher in a classroom where we are supposed to give lecture. There are only very few students and they explain to me that all other students are extending their holidays. I then just give them some soup I made but it is too little and it is also too spicy. They actually like it.

I am in a city walking at night with a guy. The sun has just set but he anyway wants to find a bakery where to get some bread. I tell him that they are closed but we do find an open one. He then gets a lot of croissants to bring to his friends and as we do so the sun starts rising again.

I am on a beach with young people and see a group of soldiers throwing bombs out in the sea. They are preparing for an invasion and I also tell the young people around me to start digging shelters. Some guys manage to set up a sturdy cabin with branches and some girls just use an old closet.

I am in a gym and meet a guy who invites me to attend one of his courses. I have no idea what it is about and realize I am also a trainers. As the guy begins his class a girl comes to me saying she cannot attend my class. I then let her go and look at the guy teaching a very special type of yoga.

I am in a swimming pool talking to another couple when my old Austrian colleagues suddenly hugs me from behind. She wants to play as if she is my girlfriend but I tell her to try again. She then goes to the other side of the swimming pool and I go under water and emerge to hug her properly.

I am in a cave building a giant time capsule. I actually want to show it to a journalist and tell my wife to paint a sign on the road to show where he can land with his helicopter. As she works on it I walk with my mountain neighbour to leave the time capsule keys down to the church.

I am outside a restaurant and see my bad Dutch neighbour eating there with his wife and a friend. I then go in but he also stands up and spits on me. I get very angry and show his friend how his friends built their house on our property but he says I haven't asked permission to photograph.

I am in an office working on a computer game designed by one of my colleagues. I can see the files of the various objects he built for it but I cannot find the video demonstration. He then just tells me to render it again and I open the file of a shooting machine to see if I can do it from there.

I am laying in a surgery room watching how they are opening up my skull. I have a problem with my eyes and they need to do something with my brain but the surgeon tells me I have to wait for more than an hour. She then puts stitches on the open wound and I just go for a walk outside.

I am in a square with an old man who is telling a young girl about the war. They are both seating on a bench and his wheelchair is unattended. I then get on it and start going on the street but there is soon a downhill and I start going way too fast with cars coming my way and no way to brake.

I am outside a Swedish farm with an American guru and his followers. One of them asks him why he just shows them a building in the farm that it is no longer there. I then reply that it is easier to just create something temporary and then take a picture of it if you only care about the picture.

I am in a garden covered in snow picking pieces of black coal. It is part of a villa and hear people inside it getting ready for the speech of an important anarchist. I then also join them and watch the presentation he made about a performance with a lot of people laying naked on a harbour.

I am watching a film about a pilot. He is just the second of his team and I expect him to win but the first pilot has an accident over a bridge. The race continues and the second pilot instead of winning stops to help his team mate. His cars is completely burnt and he checks under the bridge.

I am walking with my wife on a forest path. There is too much vegetation to continue and I can see that we can walk up to a valley. We then try to follow another path but end up on a hill from which we can see a group of big deer. One of them is white and is about to make it inside a hole.

I am in a parking lot with ski teams from my native highland gathering. I don't recognize anyone but I bet that there are people with my last name. As I am about to ask the coach take me and some girls up the roof of a house where there is a bubble pool. It is warm and she gets in dressed.

I am at home with some guests waiting for an old family friend when he writes me a message that he is late. I then think we should start eating the lasagna I made but he actually arrives with his brother. I want everyone to eat but he just start looking at a photo album at my mother's house.

I am in a bike shop with a Dutch man and I help him picking up the folding bikes in needs for a trip with his wife. I actually take hers and bring it outside to open it but realize that it is a giant stroller. I conclude she must be paralyzed and just try to close it again but it is too big to handle.

I am in my mountain village talking to my neighbour. He is telling me about his machines but then says that he became famous using the sickle in a field higher up where he could not use them. He wants me to come up to his study to help him check on his computer for new articles about it.

I am on the hills shooting a film in front of a barn. The cameraman wants me to put a little girl with her pants down in front of the camera but I protest. I then tell him I will find another cameraman and keep the little girl in my arms but she pees and I either way have to keep her without pants.

I am at the beach and take some of the wood I have used to light the fire for a group of people. They are still there and the fire is still on but I either way manage to pull some good pieces out and then make their fire even stronger by blowing underneath it. The people are really grateful.

I am walking at night with my family on a beautiful coast. My wife is very impressed and as I check out the blue sea below us she looks above us at some people praying but fells down. I then manage to grasp her hand just on time and pull her back up but then get worry about our children.

I am driving on a highway with my family when there is suddenly a line. I drive on the side to avoid it but end up right in front of an accident. A truck has capsized with a lot of flour bags and I start using them to make a new road across it but soon they manage to remove it and free the traffic.

I am in my mountain village and see how beautiful a climbing plant is growing over a staircase I have built. My neighbours are about to watch a film but I ask one of them if I can put an identical plant on the side of his property so that they can join together but he tells me he doesn't like it.

I am walking with an Argentinian artist on top of a hill when my old art teacher reaches us. He got very old and I wish to introduce him to the artist but I forgot the name of the latter. He anyway asked me what I did with all his writings and I explain to him I am trying to publish a book.

I am driving my old car on a small country road and end up on a path. I anyway park there trying to be as much as possible on the grass but the right side of the car keeps on being too much on the path. I then try to move the left side even more towards the edge but there is a big crack there.

I am with my twin sister visiting a big tower in the middle of our native highland. We walk all the way up and find ourselves on top of a small platform with a lot of people. I feel the platform is bending and cannot even look down. I then convince my sister to leave saying that it is a tourist trap.

I am with my wife on the street in front of our Dutch house when a truck arrives. It cannot go any further and the Moroccan driver asks us to deliver a package for him. We then get some very long boards and realize they are from our mean neighbour. We even almost scratch his car with them.

I am walking in a city with an American student and reach a square where some middle age women are doing aerobics. As we walk in a different square we find some young guys doing a very slow meditation technique and I joke with the student that they should have swapped exercises.

I am in a casino looking at an Indian family playing games. They first start with one game even though the younger kids want another. They are too many and it is too hard to see but then find a screen on my right showing what they are playing. It is a video-game of a Hindu god killing people.

I am on the side of a road checking the engine of an old sport cabriolet I just bought and find it perfect. I then start driving it and give a ride to my spiritual friend's mother. I decide to drive her all the way home but there are too many tuns and I have a lot to stir with the old wheel of the car.

I am in the basement of a supermarket doing grocery with a guerrilla fighter. The shop assistants suddenly disappear and I can see him resting on the staircase. I know he is going to get killed there but I either way start singing opera so that a shop assistant comes and I can pay the bill.

I am on the phone with my old mountain neighbour. There has been a lot of rain devastating large areas below the mountains and I ask her if there was any damage in our village. She doesn't reply and I wonder what is the problem with her. I then realize she is making me listen to the rain.

I am in hell trying to rescue my youngest son and his new girlfriend. They have been transformed in two monsters with long tales connecting with one another. I can see that the connection is getting rot and I manage to repair it just before a devil underneath it flush the entire hell down to him.

I am watching a movie about an Indian man standing in the terrace of his villa at night. With him is his new American lover and she tells him to watch the fireworks together. They are from a TV company he hates. He then proposes to seat down with her and write a letter to his old lover.

I am in our living room with my wife checking on a big screen some bills we have to pay. There is one we had to pay earlier but it is now too late. Another one pops up and we get to watch a minister explaining to us how it is based on the amount of smoke we produce from different appliances.

I am in a supermarket and wait in line to pay at a cashier. I actually already have some vegetables I bought in another supermarket and when it is my turn the man at the cashier discovers that I have walnuts hidden inside a cabbage. It is actually a way to get a discount and I pay very little.

I am outside a French university with a girl who is suggesting me how to visit other departments. I just want to go away from there but keep silent and nod my head. She finally leaves and I am about to bike on the road but there is too much rain and I either way have to make it back inside.

I am in a museum mixing white clay with earth in two buckets. I actually want to use to plaster an old wall and as I get ready to do it a carpenter from my mountain village comes. I think he wants to suggest me another plaster but he only wants to help me in setting up a scaffolding to work on.

I am in a hotel room getting my children ready to go out. There is a lot of sun and I get back in the bedroom to fetch some sun lotion but a Dutch family is now occupying one of our beds. The mother is standing on the way and I have to squeeze myself against a closet to reach our suitcase.

I am on a Spanish beach and meet my Galician musician friend. She wants our families to hang out together and I tell her that we are planning to go down a dock where there is an amusement park. It looks quite wild there and she suggests me to go down another dock that is more for families.

I am at a conference and listen to a radio presenter interviewing two young residents of an Italian city. They live right at the coast where I also had my apartment and the presenter asks them what they think of the possibility of being flooded. They really don't understand the question.

I am in a kitchen with my old friends. On one side is a young boy and I wonder whether he is the son or the brother of one of my friends. On the other side is a young girl and I can see my best friend harassing her. She is quite okay with it even though there is a big picture of him and his wife.

I am walking in a building for a meeting with my Danish curator. Everything is new and the receptionist tells a boy to guide me. He then takes me inside an elevator and we reach my curator. She is very happy to see me and I notice that her office is a big installation resembling a camp fire.

I am in a museum meeting the director to discuss a new exhibition. As she calls up all her staff to listen to my proposal I look down the window at some houses built on mountain cliffs. Everyone arrives and I keep looking out while telling them about redoing the last exhibition I did there.

I am walking with my Polish friend and his Jewish girlfriend on a road but realize we have to walk the opposite way to pick their daughter up from school. We end up walking on a new small path over a building site. It suddenly ends and I walk back but it is too thin and I am afraid of falling.

I am below a mountain getting ready to walk up. There is an English couple there and they encourage me to take a path winding up above us. I am willing to do it but have to tie my boots. As I do so I realize that my youngest son is with me and is keeping the walking sticks I need for the climb.

I am walking in a dark cave with my wife and come to the end of it. As we turn in a passage to the right we find a lot of orange balls signed by the entire Dutch national team. My wife has also ordered one and tells me to go pick it up together with an outdoor sofa she has ordered in a town.

I am running on a river with another guy who is looking for clean water to drink. He could stop anytime but he just keeps on running and I can see that there is a white cliff in front of us. I then warn him that the river could stop but he keeps on running and I realize the cliff is the ocean.

I am in a garden looking at my daughter pushing herself on a moped with her brother in the back. The moped is too small and she has to keep on turning back and forth. I then manage to get the moped up a staircase and on street. They start driving with the engine but they are way too small.

I am watching a program about a rich American industrialist visiting the Chinese capital. As he gets in a fancy black car a group of activists try to hit him but the fire brigades are there and manage to keep it away. They then chase the activists up to a wall and destroy it trying to punch them.

I am walking with my oldest son in a city but come to a river that splits it in two. We really want to make it to the other side but there is no bridge crossing it. We then keep on walking until we reach a working site where the new city hall is being built and manage to cross on the some boards.

I am in the garden of our new house getting changed when I see that one of my neighbours come in. He is carrying his daughter with him and I tell him that our children our with the mother in another playground. As he leaves I notice he completely shaved off his long hairs and looks skinnier.

I am on a kayak in a wild river and hear some people also rowing my way. I then make an effort to row faster but realize that my pants are loose and they could see my underwear. I then row far too the side even though there are a lot of branches sticking out of the water looking like alligators.

I am in a house talking to a girl who has to go up to the mountains to visit her parents and then back down to catch a plane. I then call my parents to see if they can help her but they also invite me up to the mountains to hear the speech of an Icelandic scientist I am not interested about.

I am reading a newspaper and find the photo of a young and handsome Italian artist. He is asking for donations to support him and other artists who moved to a Spanish commune when I was born. I then realize that he must be older now and all these artists cannot have many years to live.

I am watching a film about a guy searching for a secluded piece of land to buy. He finds one among many other farms and he starts digging a giant hole. I then watch him while he drives in an old bus he wants to use as a time capsule even though it is not going to last with all the earth moist.

I am in a mall and find my pouch under the bench of a cafe. I then realize that someone stole all my credit cards and go to the security to ask for access to the surveillance camera footage. As I wait for them to help me more Italians queue in front of me and an old one starts chatting with me.

I am in a new apartment we just bought and realize there is even a blue room filled with my old friends. We even got a pond with big golden fishes and I ask who wants to go buy some food for them. One of my friends agrees and I go search for some money but when I return everyone is gone.

I am with my father in the square of my native village. We haven't been talking to each others in years but he anyway wants to make a video portrait of me. He makes me seat on top of the fountain but the stone is only attached with silicon and another guy also seats on top making it sink.

I am with my kids in a courtyard checking out a brown husky. We come quite close to it but it suddenly tries to attack us. We then rush back until it is hold back by the chain on his neck. We feel very lucky but in a second attack I realize that the chain is even longer and we have no way to go.

I am talking on the phone with my spiritual friend and he tells me how he just managed to find two young girls with another friend. He then tells how I should also be there and I start walking to him but then talk to his other friend and he tells me how the girls thought they were too old.

I am driving on a French road and pull over on the side of a big street. As I back up I gently hit the front of another car. I check what happen and see that there is a very light bump I made. The car owner wants money from me but I find it ridiculous and drive through a crowd of bird watchers.

I am in the kitchen of our Dutch house printing the last tags of my project museum. I have actually got much more elaborate then when I started printing and even use a dough with flour to cover the tags with prior to putting them in the machine. I then realize I should also film the process.

I am with my family driving on a narrow road down a mountain. We finally reach a very modern city and I decide to stop there even though there are only big shops. I actually follow a parking sign and also end up in the shop but the Chinese owner wants too much money and we drive away.

I am building my project museum in a new field and quickly start setting up the nets around it. I am very impressed how efficient I got but soon realize that I haven't kept the numerical order of the nets. The ones that should have gone upstairs I install them downstairs and they are too short.

I am in the changing room of a swimming pool getting dressed but a shower is dripping on my clothes. I then try to turn the handle one way but the dripping increases. I turn it the other way and it finally stops and I can concentrate to listen to a guy complaining that he doesn't like to swim.

I am in a campsite with a lot of other guys packing up their stuff and getting ready to leave. I then go ahead but one of them is throwing rocks at another guy and I am on the way. As we get in a tunnel I find an abandoned mountain bike and manage to cross it fast and reach a small village.

I am in a parking lot looking for a bus to take me home. I actually find a black one that is not too big and realize that my daughter is seating inside it with his classmates. I find her in the front seat between too guys and I start teasing her while waiting for her teacher to assign me a seat.

I am in a restaurant with a couple and look for a special tea the can use in a cup I gave them as a present. There are many boxes and find one with mushrooms. I buy it for them for little money but then we eat a nice soup and I decide to pay for them again and it turns out to be very expensive.

I am checking an email my American artist friend sent me a long time ago. I realize there is also an attachment with the authorization code I can use to access a software he built. I can use the latter to build a virtual reality world of my project and I immediately write him back to thank him.

I am in the garden of our Dutch house putting organic waste in the container. It is quite empty but there is a lot of other waste stuck underneath it and I realize that there are blades I can use to blend them. As I use them to make the waste liquid my wife arrives with a colleague to work there.

I am outside a condominium looking at a guy pulling out his old car from a garage. He drives in the car of another guy pulling out of his garage and the latter goes also against him to revenge. They actually start fighting very hard but when the police arrives they pretend it was an accident.

I am looking on my phone at a map to see where one of my daughter's classmates is living. We are actually waiting for the parents of the latter to bring her to us but I have no idea what is taking so long. I then see on the phone they live in a rich residential area in front of a lake with yachts.

I am in a village making holes where to put the poles I need to stretch an electric cable from our house to our vegetable garden. I actually start digging in front of a house and I ring the doorbell to ask if it is okay but then realize the hole is right in front of the entrance and I decide to run away.

I am in the apartment of a rich couple and the wife makes me choose from three different soaps. I pick the first one and she washes my hands with it but it is a strong chemical solution. I can then shake hands with her American husband and seat on the table with him but I soon start reading.

I am next to a cliff in an Irish sculptural park made of two circular fields touching each. Below it is the sea and I would really love to build an installation there. I actually meet the owner and he is very happy to tell me that I can pick a spot to build my installation and search near the cliff.

I am with my family on a mountain covered in snow that is so high that we decide to dig a shelter but as we dig we find that underneath it is an actual cave. There is a grating on top and I remove it to see how deep it is but it is way too deep and I put it back on so that the kids are safe.

I am in the living room watching a film and hear my stepfather walking down. I then realize that there is a sexual scene and I want to turn off the TV but the remote doesn't seem to work. I manage to change channel but by the time my stepfather goes back up there is also a sexual scene.

I am walking with my wife at the seaside and find a cafe. We then seat in the terrace to share a cake together but then I go in to pay and realize it is extremely expensive. As I get back out I find another couple from our camping sharing a cake and I warn them that they are going to be cheated.

I am in the tiny sleeping room of when I was a teenager. I actually kept my phone off all the time and I turn it on to see if a girl has written me. As I do so I find that I have managed to bring my mother's small car in the room but I have no idea how and have no idea how to bring it back down.

I am in a garden full of wooden boards. A guy wants to help me sorting them and as we bring one on a rack I realize that it is the entrance door. We then try to put it back and I manage to squeeze a button to let it slide in the top hinge but the guy does not manage to put it on the bottom one.

I am walking in a very boring landscape between the Austrian and the German boarder. There is actually a guide in front of me with a group of people and I get closer to hear if there is anything I am missing. She tells her group to turn around and look at the mountains but they are boring.

I am in a warehouse with my parents and wait for one of their friends who is turning my genetic code into a plant. He finally comes with it and start reading a leaf. He can tell that I am a male and that I spend my life as if secluded in a castle. I then tell him that I am very regular with my art.

I am in a supermarket and see a black guy at the cashier paying for a bottle of alcohol. He only has a penny to pay for it and just gives it to the lady at the cashier and then pushes her aside to make it to the door but all the other employees start running after him and he stands no chance.

I am at a concert waiting for the presenter to introduce a new singer. The one that has just perform doesn't want to leave the stage but then a blond girl starts walking through the audience. No one stops her and by the time she gets on the stage she turns around and I realize it is a gay guy.

I am walking on a road with a German man. There is a strip of land next to us and I see some hypericum flowers starting to blossom. I then tell the man how to make oil from it and he picks a fern blade to show me how to break it in smaller pieces resembling the big one but I already know it.

I am in a small restaurant with another guy and the waiter asks where we are from. I then tell him that I am from a mountain village and then the owner also comes out and the guy seating with me gives him a small crocodile head. I also have one on my plate with many dead small humans.

I am in a dining room with some old family friend. The mother of my dead friend is actually serving us even though she is rich. As I wonder what she is doing there she starts complaining that she is getting very old but her bubs have become much bigger after taking a type of medicine.

I am in our mountain apartment when my wife gives me a catalogue showing that my old neighbour is finally selling the other half of the barn. We are very interested and I go talk to him but realize they are also selling all his other properties. I then look at a catalogue but don't find the barn.

I am watching an advertisement promoting a Mediterranean island and realize that I am part of it. I am actually standing on top of a hill and I ca see a white wolf below it. As the camera closes in I realize there is as a whole flock of wolves and I don't understand why they are not attacking me.

I am in a small shelter for homeless people and talk to the priest running it. He shows me the different books he is using to educate them and tells me of his teaching method. He makes an example using a strawberry for teaching mathematics but also to know the science behind it.

I am on a square turned into an amazing installation by a Japanese student. He is also there and I tell him that I have never seen anything like it. He then tells me of a Colombian student who got a much more intersting idea but he only drew it on paper and never came to realize it.

I am on the coast and realize that my spiritual friend is out at sea. He really calls for my help and I take a wooden boat I was building to reach him but it the water starts getting inside and my friend comes to show me how to treat it with black pitch. He melts a cube and it turns into a sponge.

I am walking with a friend up a road and get in front of a cinema. There are actually billboard outside each theater showing the movies they are projecting inside. The first two are off but the third one shows an Asian woman opening up her womb and showing another organ inside her vagina.

I am in a cafeteria seating on a long table with other people and looking at the graffiti a German guy made. It is promoting three books he wrote and I talk to the guy next to me saying that it is very sad that all artists have become writers. He then tells me that the same has occurred to him.

I am in an abandoned garden with a friend. We are actually welding a big table together. It is turned upside down and we are making it very fast even though it is all rusted. I then tell him how much easier it is two work in two persons and realize we should always work on projects together.

I am watching the installation of an Italian artist friend. He installed some golden balls rotating around a castle. Inside he has more works but I am told to wait for the opening hour. I actually see him and he tells me to join him anyway. As we walk down a corridor we find his family house.