

I am in an empty shop with two other musicians. I am actually supposed the singer of their band and we try to rehearse but the stand holding my microphone is way too high up. As we stop so that I can adjust it one of the musicians asks me if I ever watched any other singer performing.

I am on a bus with some guys with whom I have just attended a lecture on urbanization. I then ask one of them what he thought about it and he tells me that he is a graffiti artist and he was very interested. He also tells me how he does his graffiti making large posters and attaching them.

I am waiting for a girl to show me the profile photo she has on her phone. She finally shows it to me and I am shocked to see it was taken in the exact same bathroom of the photo my American assistant used as her profile. In the next picture she shows me that she was in fact with latter.

I am in an airport and realize that one of my former art students is also there. I then come close to him and he tells me he needs a ride after we land. There is also another guy who needs a ride but the town where he wants to go is far from mine and I propose them to sleep over at my place.

I am in a Canadian town seating in a bath tub. As I start thinking how I still haven't contacted my father who lives nearby the water starts pouring over the tub. I then realize that there is a congestion but I cannot do anything about it and have to get out so that the water stop pouring out.

I am in a big house waiting for my German artist friend to wake up. I get impatient and just wake him up myself. He is actually sleeping on the floor and I tell him to shower if he wants but he says he never showers and prefer to use a bidet. I am okay with it and just wait for him to finish.

I am driving to a very busy city and reach a giant public library. I then leave my car underneath and walk up carrying a very long aluminum stick. On the top I look for a place where to do some work but it is full of students and only to the end of the room I find an empty table with high chairs.

I am getting in a shop selling metal and find that my former colleagues are there refurbishing all the machines. They are really surprise to see and come to tell me how they have all quit their previous job and are working part time but one of them starts smocking and they have to get back to it.

I am at a small restaurant with an old friend. We are both eating a soup but of two different kinds. As I finish mine I realize that there is the head of boar even though I explicitly asked for a vegetarian soup. My friend tells me to eat it but I don't want to and in the end he puts it in his mouth.

I am walking with my youngest son in my parents' city. We are actually on the side of the suburbs and find that for a festivity they have installed a temporary bridge over the river. We then start crossing it but it is tight and it either way ends up in the water. Turning back I get my shoes all wet.

I am in the terrace of a mountain cafe and see that on the mountain top right in front of me there is a giant white lion. I then start to praise its beauty and he immediately jumps to me. I quickly make it inside but he follows me and we agree that we can get married so that he does not eat me.

I am walking up a mountain with some friends and reach a summit. There is actually the daughter of another friend who is not there and I realize that she is seating too much on the edge. I would want her to seat closer to me not to fall but feel like my other friends would find me a pervert.

I am biking on a road in front of other people. I fee I very strong and almost reach a village but an old friend starts driving his motorcycle right next to me. We then stop in a cafe and he gives me the business card he made for his new company so that we can keep in contact with each others.

I am walking down a path that is getting dark. I then use my camera to see if there are any animals around me but some other hikers arrive and I realize that I have left my backpack behind. I then ask one of them if they have seen it but he is very suspicious and I light a lamp against him.

I am in a school looking forward to spend some time with my oldest son. I then reach his classroom but the teacher is seating outside and tells me that the students are having a test inside. I then ask him when it is over and he tells me that they still have five hours but they could finish earlier.

I am all alone camping and get out of the van. There are some benches outside for also the other campers and I lay on one. Finally my sister arrives after having spent a night with a French guy. I then joke with them asking whether I should expect to be an uncle soon but they don't get it.

I am on a road pushing my trailer filled with second hand things I could sell. I then push it to a shop listening to a rock song but realize that the owner is outside helping his children doing their homework. Luckily the song comes to an end and I can start downloading but some stuff got dirty.

I am with my children driving at night and end up in a forest where a lot of cars are parked in the same direction. We also manage to park in that direction just on time before a song is played in the background and we have to use our engines to play it. The one next to us sounds like a flute.

I am inside a charity hostel with my best friend and decide to sneak out. There are actually some tables and chairs he instruct me to steal but I don't want to. We then go out empty ended and some neighbours tell us about the girl who was living there. She died right after becoming religious.

I am back I my mountain village to fetch the keys I forgot in my neighbour's house. She is actually leaving and I go in with my wife and kids to look for them. While I find them my girlfriend comes out with a box of things to throw but I want to keep my children old toothbrushes to archive.

I am in a cafeteria and see a girl I met once before. I then ask for her number but she gives me that of her office. I want to convince her to come with me for a walk and show her on my phone the satellite view of a natural parks with big hills. I don't see them and I have to move to the north.

I am going fast with my electric bike over a big bridge but then turn to the right and it gets very narrow. There are even steps and I decide to walk but end up in the sea. It is quite shallow and I can still bike but as I go out of a bay it gets much deeper and I have to turn back not to drawn.

I am in the garden of a villa talking to a girl seating on a bench inside a tunnel of trees. I have a feeling we could fall in love and get more intimate when suddenly she stands up and I realize that she has another girl seating behind. They are actually lesbians and just walk away together.

I am on an island with my wife following a man and his father. They are supposed to sell us an apartment but we realize it is on top of a very steep hill. We then start walking up but I am very afraid of falling. There is actually a chair lift and I manage to hold a cable to pull me all the way up.

I am in a hostel leaving my room to go out for dinner when I get a text message from a girl. I met her a long time ago and she now wants to see me but I am traveling. I anyway remember her to be very ugly but then she sends me a video of her with her friend and they look quite okay.

I am up a mountain when I get a message from my best friend. He is actually celebrating in a hotel down the mountains with our former classmates. He even sends me pictures of them together and I first reply positively but then call him to tell him that I should have also been invited.

I am taking an escalator going out of a train station. It should take me to an airport but as I step out I realize that I have to walk back to another entrance of the station. As I do that I see a guy pointing a rifle on the people of the escalator. He is so still that no one is even taking notice of him.

I am watching a movie a serial killer hiding inside a hotel. He is randomly beating costumers to death but killing two Japanese guys he gets all bloody. He then enters a closet and gets out again with a nice suit. He then makes it in a room where there is a woman he starts making love with.

I am in an American park with a string attached to my pants. I then can't move and have to be careful about a black girl playing softball but ending up throwing the ball all the time against me. I manage to move behind a truck but on top is another black girl who wants to know all about me.

I am watching a television program about a designer who lives with her children in the mountains. I can actually see her skiing and I also get ready to do so but it is too steep. I then just walk back and reach an outdated playground where her husband is playing with the designer's son.

I am in a small public bathroom and find that there is a mirror made of metal. It is actually very sharp and I can see myself in detail. I then notice I got very old and that I have a wrinkle cutting straight across my forehead. I have never seen it before and it also keeps there when I try to relax.

I am in our Dutch house checking two workers fixing the attic with a special machine. As I walk down I find that the Asian girlfriend of my German friend is there working on his laptop. Behind her the television is showing a video with another of his girlfriends but she didn't know about her.

I am in the mountains and walk to the apartment I rented inside a chalet. A young couple also walks with me to an apartment upstairs but mine is on the ground floor. Inside there is another couple cooking and I pretend not to be surprised. They anyway reassure me they are going to camp.

I am in a supermarket and get to the fruit department. My Neapolitan friend is there with his new girlfriend and I really wish to say hi to him. He also starts walking in my direction and we are about to hug but then he gets a phone call. He checks the number and says that he must answer.

I am outside a university campus with a group of protesters. We manage to break in and walk to a stadium where we start waiting for the cops to come and get us. We actually seat very tight in the upper row and I start feeling too claustrophobic. Our leader tells us not to move but I have to.

I am in a public toilette with also a girl peeing. I actually realize that I am peeing on a column and just walk out. The girl also follows me and we start talking. She wants to show me a drawing and we seat down on a bench. I then put my arm over her shoulders and I can feel her hanging breast.

I am watching on television an actor who gets an important award. He is actually bragging on how handsome he is and I realize he actually been trying to flirt with me once. I check on my phone a video in which he clearly tries to kiss me. I don't want anything to do with it and just erase it.

I am with my children seating in the cart attached to the bike of a baker friend. He even has his own children to carry but manages to make it on top of a bridge. We then start going down and I realize we are way too fast and have no idea if he is going to be able to stop before an intersection.

I am inside an apartment and hear a parade outside. I then stick my head out of the window but it is gone. There is only a man throwing the leaves of a cabbage he just bought on the ground. Another man sees him from his window but the first man pretends the leaves are from a flower shop.

I am walking inside a supermarket looking for a place where to sleep. I can hear other tramps at the very back and climb over a wooden fence to see where they are I just cannot see them but find a room with a bed. I lay down but my Dutch nephew comes to me and then a Romanian lady.

I am at a small pond with my family. It is full of big mosquitoes and I don't dare to swim. As I look at them bathing I notice that the group of people that were standing on a dock on the other side are gone. I then realize they could have been thieves and look for my bag but find it on the dock.

I am in a Swiss small village waiting for a train to depart. There has been an issue with it and we will have to take a different route. We will also need to make one change and I get in the train to ask where. I find a very tanned guy that looks Italian and ask him but he can only speak French.

I am checking the internet and find a news article about an old friend who became a famous tennis player. As I look at the pictures I find that my sister is also watching the game. She has lost a lot of weight and has coloured butterflies tattooed all over her body and going even on her face.

I am biking in the countryside and reach my Neapolitan musician friend who is also biking. He is actually seating in the back and has a friend seating in the front but no one is stirring the bike I then manage to pass them but realize I also have no access to the stir and start going downhill.

I am in our Dutch house making a phone call to figure out what to write on a document. The door is actually open and I see that a lady is picking up her phone outside. I then realize she is the person in charge and I invite her inside to help me fill up the document. She does it in no time.

I am in an old factory and learn that I am obliged to put a tool storage outside. The authorities are coming to check any time and I ask two old guys to follow me. They are reluctant and I either way realize that the roof I plan to take from the attic is way too heavy and it is even missing one leg.

I am standing next to a metal stable and come close to the cows inside. They all get afraid and start running out through a back passage that leads them right in front of me. I then start spank them in the butt but see that they have women faces and one of them keeps on coming back to me.

I am walking down a mountain with my children when my youngest gets his feet in the mud. I then take him on my shoulder across a stream but end up in a tunnel. As we walk inside it the passage starts turning to the left and get increasingly narrower. We can still pass sliding to the bottom.

I am in a swimming pool without a swimsuit and wait at the edge for the right time to run in the changing room to put it. As no one is on the way I run in and put it on. I then search for a free lane and show a coach how fast I can swim and grasp a fist of salt at the end without melting it.

I am in a small kitchen with a blind man and his wife. They have a friend visiting and I notice that the latter is actually touching the legs of the blind man who is holding a sketch book under the table. I manage to look at it and find that he has sketched all his lovers there and he is not blind.

I am next to our mountain barn with a woman seating with my youngest son in the back of the tractor. She is volunteering to help me out with my museum and I am ready to drive her up but realize that there is a big flame over the gas tank of my welding machine. I then tell them to jump out.

I am in our Dutch house kitchen about to eat a soup when my old Polish friend shows up putting his hands over the window that is a bit open. I then let him in to eat the soup with us and I am ready to hug him but he keeps his hands up and tries to punch me. I then understand he is drunk.

I am on a train getting get a pots from a shelf but a lady has put her stuff there. I explain her she should use her own shelf and we go to the kitchen. As I tell her that my grandfather was an astronaut I meet my other grandfather but he wants to cut my throat after I called him with his initials.

I am walking through an old city and reach a square where a small carnival is taking place. I then immediately put myself in one corner to film the whole event but a lady on stilts lower herself down thinking that I want to take a selfie with her. I want her out of the way but she gets even closer.

I am with my children in the terrace of a restaurant. They want to sit on the ground but I find a free table. We walk to it and I notice there is even a basket of free bread. As I think to sit down and share it with my children a waiter comes to tell me that we can only sit there it we eat a full meal.

I am in the pavilion of a park and meet an Italian girl who actually attends my weekly theater classes. Her mother is also there and I try to hook her up with my wife to see if we can become friends. After boosting up the moral of the girl she leaves and my wife tells me she didn't like them.

I am outside a train station with my Neapolitan musician friend and his daughter. We actually need to walk up to their apartment and get ready to go with them but realize that they are actually waiting for another girl and her father. They arrive and we start going uphill but it is very steep.

I am working in an African mine digging on the side of a road when I see an exotic fruit on the ground. As a local girl tells me that it isn't edible a local worker reproaches me for not working hard enough. I don't care and walk to our boss to demand mattocks instead of the shovels they provide.

I am in a night club when a girl kisses me. She leaves with her friends and I try to follow her upstairs but instead of walking I try to climb. I am actually too weak around the spiral staircase. I am actually too weak and a bodyguard has to lift me up. I finally reach the girl but she is a lesbian.

I am seating on some high up benches of a stadium looking at a rugby game with a friend when some hooligans run towards us. They are very scary but only wants to talk to my friend. They then take us in a car and put the blinders down to convince him to get back to his previous girlfriend.

I am in the room of a big building after it caught fire. There were a lot of Swedish people inside and I look after some of them who are kept in special boxes for reanimation. As a limping doctor leaves me alone with them I realize that there are even a few on the table with tiny humans inside.

I am in a small van going up the mountains when an old cousin comes to seat next to me. As he asks me about another sculptor from the mountains the van comes to a gate and I have to go out to open it. Running back to the van I feel I have dropped my camera. My cousin finds it on my seat.

I am in the new clinic of the daughter of one of my neighbours. I am actually under her desk and ask her if I should pass in front of her. She allows me and I make up again only to find that she is talking with a lady selling different kinds of pills. The latter also supplies my sister's clinic.

I am walking out of my garden and realize that the walnut tree has fallen down. There is much more space now and pass by some guys playing football. At the very end of the garden is my sister playing with her daughter and I am glad we can spend some time together but they want to go in.

I am in a big square with my wife and go in a museum to look for my son. It is actually a mountain and I climb it with other Italians and reach a castle on the top. I then try to call my son to see where he went but he tells me that there was another museum at the square and he went there.

I am walking through a big bicycle shop and come in a small room with an amazing view over an Austrian landscape. There is an old man there and I tell him how I also enjoy a similar view from my Italian barn. He just leaves but a girl wants to know more about is and we sit down on a sofa.

I am biking on a dike thinking how I was about to get a job as a researcher but my Swedish supervisor screwed up. As I bike on a small roundabout I realize that she told the recruited that I haven't completed a course. It is actually a lie and go in a cafe to write her an email to protest.

I am tied on a sidewalk and cannot move. I just have to wait for my kidnappers and there is no way for me to escape. I then realize that the shop is front of me is selling books and on the ones on the tops shelf are about a faraway country. I mentally open one of them to look at the landscape.

I am in a dark apartment and make it to the laundry room where there is some light. I can then check the messages I got on my phone. They are from my wife's aunt and her daughter. They are both thanking me that I told them not to use their phone when they visited my native country.

I am in a gym using a machine for my back. I am actually surprised how many kilos I can lift and just let another much bigger guy to go after me. He lifts far less kilos but for many more times than I did. As soon as it is my turn again I keep the same weight but try to do more repetitions.

I am in an office trying to work on my computer when the girl seating on the other side of the table proposes me to go out together. She is quite pretty but I actually don't want to and just tell her I cannot. She keeps on insisting and even asks for my number but I tell I am really not interested.

I am at a station with an old friend waiting for a bus. As it finally arrives we go in and find that the seats are placed in a circle. I sit in a corner a keep a spot for him but he goes sitting on the opposite side. Two girls sit on my side and I tell him to come and eat together but he doesn't want to.

I am walking with my son through a neighborhood in search for a grocery shop. There is one that is still very far but I realize we can take a shortcut. We do so and get there immediately but the only lady working inside is busy sorting a big delivery she just got and we have to wait.

I am having dinner with my former Swedish colleagues and talk to a girl in front of me. I tell her how in my opinion the people advocating for gender equality are now the new ruling class dictating over others. She gets completely scandalized and I have to follow her out to better explain myself.

I am walking through the corridor of an institution looking for paper where to do my drawings. I enter one office but they only have a thin recycling paper. In another office I only find a lot of envelopes and I realize that people might thing I am a thief. As I am about to go out a man enters.

I am in a cafeteria talking to an old friend when her gay friend comes in with a pony. He warns that it bites and I stay away from it while he pulls its blond hair up saying it really likes it. He also dares to put his hand in front of his mouth and he is quick enough to remove it before it bites it.

I am in my study showing my painting to a man. He is not interested and only talks about how his wife does his painting listening to the news. The painting then is not about her but about society and I tell him that it is exactly like with me. I then show him how the brush strokes prove it.

I am in a video meeting with my German artist friend and he shows me a very nice field we could use for an art project. I can see it is also closed to the ruins of a cathedral and I am very interested. He the shares with me the name of the nearest village and I immediately check it out.

I am in a living room with my old Russian friend. He wants to show me something on his new phone and I realize that the screen is of a new generation and doesn't make any light. He also has not keypad and just manages to whisper in Russian the page he so desperately wants to show me.

I am siting on a but with my wife. We are actually going up a very steep road and pass by a guy biking down. I actually realize he is an old friend and as soon as the bus stops I go out and call his name. I can see that he is in a small bathroom but when he comes out he hears me and we meet.

I am in my parents' apartment and realize my Polish friend and his girlfriend has just spent a few days there. They are about to leave and left some orange juice for us. I then drink a glass while calling the hotel where they want to spend the night but I don't manage to make a reservation.

I am in my native highland helping out a guy who wants to reach the higher plateau on top of it. It is already quite late and I try to dissuade him but he is determined to go. I then show him on my phone that it is very far but my phone shows that it is quite near. The starting point is wrong.

I am in the landing station of a chairlift and try to make m way through the crowd. As I turn around to watch for any empty chair that could come against me a chair with an Arab lady and her children comes my way. I then have very little time to move and just jump over it but it flips around.

I am in my mountain apartment sleeping when my neighbour calls me out. It snowed and he wants to check whether I can get out with my van. I start driving it but the wheels keep on sliding. There are two metal poles in front of me but in the end I don't care and just accelerate through them.

I am on top of a high bridge walking with an older man. He wants to pay me for keeping him company but I really don't want any money. He then tries to give me double the amount and I just accept even though it is really very little and I won't even be able to do any grocery with it.

I am in a station with a Japanese guy and try to find the right metro to go home. As I check on a board he goes down an escalator and asks another. The latter tells us to go in a tunnel and we do so but it is very dark and I can only see the shoes of drug addicts. I keep my bag up as a shield.

I am in a mall with a girl looking for my family. They cannot be far and I try to call them but realize that my phone is connected with a network of another country and it can be very expensive. As I try to change the network the girl just tells me to call over the internet and I do that instead.

I am driving a van with a man and I asks him if he finds it comfortable. He tells me that the seats are too broad and I show him how I use pillows to keep my back straight. On the road there are two friends of mine waiting but the man doesn't stop and goes ahead to find a place where to turn.

I am biking to the mountains where there is a sculptural park. I ti s actually getting dark and I have no idea of the road to take. My wife is driving already there and I try to connect my phone with her phone but I end up in a gas station and go against the big air compressor for pumping wheels.

I am in a hotel looking at an old friend changing the diaper of a little girl. The latter keeps on throwing her pooh around and I have to pick it and throw it. At last my friend manages to put her diaper on and I finally ask him how he feels. He then tells me he has a good friend near my museum.

I am entering a small art gallery where my work is exhibited and realize that my parents are there with my uncle. I haven't talked with them in years and just clap them in the shoulders and go through the exhibition. I actually find a staircase that takes me up an old tower but it is wobbling.

I am in a square attending a protest with my friends. We are actually carrying a big flag with the logo of a fast food and I convince my friends to go around claiming that with also one built in the square. They agree and we start our demonstration chanting for the right to have hamburgers.

I am in the corridor of an institution with a theater director. I actually see a young man posting a flier about the theater of that institution. I then invite the man to talk to him thinking that he could be an organizer but then I see that there is a picture of the organizer on the flier and is different.

I am in a show-room with a guy showing me some racing cars. We checked them previously online and liked the same models. As we review them together I notice that one of them is electric. The guy then tells me what a bad accident the best driver had with it and how they stopped using it.

I am in the basement of a house seating around a table with the Austrian family living there. As we chat the daughter comes to sit on my legs and I feel quite disturbed. I then realized we are married but I want to go to live with her in the mountains and leave the plateau where she is based.

I am applying oil to my museum when I see that the man hunting in the forest above me has built a pathway for the rocks to fall against it. As I try to photograph it I see a black man with his children seating on a bench. I invite him inside but find the interiors have been furnished like a house.

I am in a supermarket pushing a chart with my youngest son inside. I actually want to go to the floor above but there is only a staircase and I ask two guys to help me carrying the chart up. They agree and as they speak to each other I realize their parents are from my father's native village.

I am in a classroom with my Italian researcher friend discussing about her daughter with other women. I only listen to the conversation while making a big drawing of the sea. As I only mention one thing she reproaches me and I get back to my drawings making the waves as if I was angry.

I am walking on the road where I lived when I was little and realize that the old school next to it is gone. There are a lot of houses and even the plane that has crashed during the war has been removed. As I walk to the end of the road I also find that they have built over the square there.

I am in the office of a mayor and she tells me that she is looking for artists to do a project. I then tell her about the cabin of an ecologist I wanted to reproduce and explain her that it is pretty much like the room where we are. She is not so impressed and a Brazilian delegation interrupt us.