

I am in a bedroom and realize that an old friend is laying on the bulk bed. I am happy to see him after so many years and told him how I tried to find him on the internet but only found an old profile. As he comes down of the bed I realize that he is still young and skinny but without muscles.

I am biking down a road and come to a small residential neighborhood right next to the highway. I see that two guy are building something on the sidewalk and slow down but then one of the guys starts pulling out a big caravan. He doesn't even look behind him and I have to pull on one side.

I am in a station looking for a train to go down south but it is too late and I can only find a train going to an Italian city in the middle of the country. As I am about to give up I hear a Spanish girl crying out loud. Her friend got injured and I use my belt to block the blood coming out of her arm.

I am walking on a sidewalk and see that two policemen have just confiscated a dangerous package. I then look if it was addressed to me and then keep on walking on a road next to a highway. It is under construction and in the end I have to walk on the highway where two trucks just collided.

I am with my wife walking back to a garage where we left our car. I actually wear a bracelet and put it in a machine to see how much I have to pay for the parking. It doesn't ask for any money and I decide to drive out anyway even though the gate is only half open and there is another car.

I am in the corridor of a big institute and meet an old Colombian friend who just gave a speech. It was way too long and I didn't attend it but as I get in the room where it was I realize that a replica of her is still speaking. The other people in the room are getting completely emotional and cry.

I am watching a movie I just made with a friend about a very ugly man. He was a syndicalist during the Nazi occupation and was almost hanged but the movie also talks about his ancestors and goes all the way back to a primitive man. As we could not film the latter we made a cartoon about it.

I am in a village getting ready to go up to my museum to keep on working on it. A guy also wants to help me painting some beams and I tell him to load them on the tractor. On my way to get it I meet an old friend and after talking to him I realize the guy who was supposed to help me is gone.

I am on a big boat with my former Swedish wife. We actually have our big truck inside and I help her adding gasoline in the tank. She is actually quite messy and I do it alone but as we both seat down I can see fire inside the tank. It gets so hot that other things around it start catching fire.

I am very drunk walking with a friend down to an oval park. We are expecting a friend there but only find my children playing on opposite ends. We have no idea where our friend could be but then hear his voice up high. He is actually seating in a cafe that is suspended with ropes above us.

I am driving my van and see a cheap gas station. I then drive in to get some gasoline but as I am about to do it some Germans tell me that they also did gasoline but the owner did not accept their car. I then go in to check and the latter actually is fine with my card but I press the wrong code.

I am walking down a dirt road of an African village and meet my Dutch neighbour. I then show him the ancient arrow I just found. He is actually an expert and starts to examine it. He concludes that it is not so valuable since the end of it should have a square section and not a circular section.

I am in a sportswear shop and find a shelf with only one pair of shoes available. I want to try them on but I have no socks and go to another section to fetch a pair. A gypsy is there trying a lot of shoes and I carefully take the sock without provoking him but then bump into a black soldier.

I am the sea side with my girlfriend and a lot of other kids we have to take care of. We find it too dangerous to use the regular beach and decide to go to a private one where it is all fenced and can check that no one drowns. As we are entering I realize we are too many and will have to pay a lot.

I am in the cafeteria of a big institute and sit next to a girl. I actually don't know her but she tells me that I am the father of the baby she is carrying in her belly. I then try to look at her but do not recognize her face. She even lives in a Californian town and it will be very hard for me to help her.

I am in a garden with my stepfather sawing a bit cut I have in my leg. As he finishes we start walking back to his car on a very trafficked road. The cars are very old and the drivers are careless about one another. In the end also my stepfather gets hit and I have to take him to the car by myself.

I am in my German friend's house helping him putting stuff back in his fridge. He hands me a box and I manage to fit it on the top. He then tells me to fetch a sticker for it with a number but I can only find stickers with other numbers. He then pick it himself and realize the number is faded.

I am walking on a big road and see an abandoned cottage on the left side. It is actually very simple and could be very easy to renovate it. I then consider moving in there but then think that the road I am walking on is too big and that there is no traffic now but there could be a time it gets busy.

I am getting in a post office but realize it is closed. As I am about to get out again the director calls me back in. She thinks I am there to meet one of her colleagues but I just need a form. She tells me I can find it online but then also gives me the paper version of it and I fill it up immediately.

I am with my old Brazilian friend waiting to board a plane. We finally get in and find a lot of tables where to work. I am about to sit in front of my friend but there is a backpack on the chair and I just go sit in another table where I can concentrate on my work and don't have to talk to him.

I am in a very little shop selling all sort of goods. It is run by a dragon who barely fits inside. His ears are made of dried spinach and I suggest him to boil them so that he can gain some space and don't have to always scratch them against the ceiling. The dragon agrees and I get ready to cook.

I am skating down a straight path and have to avoid a car coming my way. As I approach it I realize that the path is more like a road and can easily come to the end of it where a guy is waiting for me. He works at an ice-cream place where I have also been working but forgot to get paid.

I am in a big workshop divided in several sections. An old friend is responsible for one and I ask his boss if my friend's job also involves some manual work. The boss tells me that it is indeed very manual but when I come close to my friend I see that he is only looking through a lot of papers.

I am in front of a museum with my youngest son and his mother. It is closed but the latter knows the code to get in and do so while we wait for her outside. As my son needs to go to pooh I also manage to get in without a code and find a bathroom inside but it is very smelly with diarrhea.

I am in a room with other people and get assigned a very ugly girl to make love with. I really don't feel like doing anything and just lay down at the end of the room and realize that my old friends are also there. One of them actually got a very pretty girl and he talks about her giant breast.

I am in a cafeteria drawing on a moistened glass the silhouette of a person. As I go to the other side of the room to photograph it I realize that it corresponds exactly to a woman sitting in the middle of the room. She has very short and gray hairs and is very depressed after she got dumped.

I am reading about an archipelago where people used to live during the summers. The autumns came always with a big flood which transported these people back to the inland. Other people living all the time on the inland used to welcome these nomads and I think how it could happen again.

I am siting in a cafe terrace with a woman and her father. The latter asks me what kind of drink I want and I tell him that I can get anything red and black like the anarchist flag. He thinks I am joking but I am very serious and stand up to go inside the cafe and discuss how it can be made.

I am in a car with my Russian friend driving very fast up an Austrian mountain. The weather is gorgeous and we stop for a walk but end up in a dirt road with a lot of dogs. They are all chained but I anyway think it must be a private property. My friend disagrees and continues through it.

I am in the square of a small village and hear a beautiful music being played in one of the houses around it. I then walk to it and look inside but see that there is a guy using an electric piano. I then realize he is only using some inbuilt functionalities and only have to press a few keys.

I am planning a journey with my wife and check a big map. I will have to buy tickets to depart from a city up north and reach the northern sea. From there I nee another ticket to go back but I want to see if I can also make it down a river so that she doesn't have to drive so much to pick me up.

I am siting on a bench of a square and get surrounded by a group of young people. As I look at my bag I notice that my wallet has been taken out and I turn around to confront the guy standing behind me. He is ready to fight me back but I just slap him very hard in the face and he repents.

I am in a workshop planning to make a sign for my mother's company. She is also there with her assistance but they cannot find the right type of wood for the sign. We then go to a hardware store together and I see some good cutting-boards we could use but they find another type of wood.

I am walking on a very high bridge with my oldest son and his mother. As we reach the top she puts him on a flat bike to go fast down. There is actually a big curve and I yell at her to use the brakes. She manages very well and I also follow with a scooter but almost make it out of the curve.

I am in my parents mountain apartment waiting to go out. I have nothing to do and just check a very old email address. I then ind a lot of important messages. One of them is from a scholar who wrote a very long text and I see that he doesn't care to address himself as gender neutral.

I am in an emperor's palace and bring to his personal assistant two mandarins. I am supposed to cut them enough before offering them but I do a very bad job and wish I could have only removed the peel. The assistant does not and thanks me to have subtract the mandarins from my children.

I am in a station and have to catch a train but can only read the final destinations. I then follow a crown crossing a railroad to go to catch a train on a different platform. I do so but realize the train departing from the previous platform was the correct one and I will now have to get off and walk.

I am walking through our Dutch town square and come to a closet filled with books. One of them I have already read and all the others are the follow up. I want to bring them home but they are too many. One of them is much bigger and I assume it is a version with all of them but it is not.

I am with my wife standing next to the stage. There should be a concert starting there and I suggest her to sit behind the speakers. She actually wants to leave but as we start walking we meet a woman we know. The husband is Italian and I try to scare him and his children siting to the back.

I am in a bedroom with my American curator friend. I then notice he a certificate hanging on the wall and he explains that it is about a big show he curated. I was also part of it with a performance I broadcast from another location. It was actually very lousy and I just look out at the mountains.

I am in a gallery with a girl who wants to go to the movie theater with my parents. I then take her in my arms and bring her outside. I put her down again another man starts holding her hands to take her with him but she insists to be with me. We then reach the theater but it is way too early.

I am in an airport with my family and come to a gate. It is too dangerous or my children to cross and my wife helps me welding a ladder onto it. As I am almost done a man comes forward and I let him go to the other side where he starts talking about how much money he makes welding.

I am walking with a couple on some small hills next to a high coast. They keep getting higher and find that the tops are covered in snow but the path gets blocked by barbwire. I actually have metal stick and with it I am able to balance over it and make it across but the couple easily jumps over.

I am in the studio of an Italian artist who selected me to produce a song with him. He has done it every year with a different person and he brags how good it was the previous year with the collaboration he made with an old man. I then realize we will never manage to make good music together.

I am with some friends in the apartment of a man who is supposed to host us with his family. He then invites to sit and gives me a soda. I don't drink sodas and just exchange with a glass of water that my friend has. He also tells us he will now bring us a meat dish but I am vegetarian.

I am in a parking lot explaining to a young man the Swedish universities he can attend. As I suggest him to stay out of the capital my family dentist arrived. He actually proposed me wrote me on my old phone that he would visit me and is now offended because I didn't answer. I just let him go.

I am walking in a labyrinth with my youngest son and his mother. As I stopped to photograph it I realize that we are on top of very big holes and tell my wife to get out. We reach hallway and she gets us tickets to lay down and look at the cupola above us. We do so as everyone does the same.

I am in an apartment with one my mother's farmer cousins. She complains that we never visit her family and I ask for her number. She then shows it to me on her phone and I realize it is very easy to memorize. She warns me that she is against chatting applications and I will have to call her.

I am in the back of a theater school looking at the director training a young student. As I am about to seat on the grass I realize that my finger is bleeding and I start searching for a medical leaf. I then walk to the open country and find one. As I put in on my wound the pain goes away.

I am in my mountain village helping my neighbour's wife to cook for everyone. We have very little food to contribute with but then remember there is a huge lasagna in the fridge. She is very happy to warm that up and I watch the people from another village below us also eating all together.

I am seating in the garden of our house with an ugly neighbour just nest to me. Suddenly a ball comes flying at us and she grabs my hand to protect herself. I really don't want this to happen but the ball anyway falls in another part of the garden and she goes inside the house the get tea.

I am watching a documentary showing two young environmentalists in the jungle. A rich man has given them his private jet to go wherever they like and I see them walking back in. It is red and the wings open up like a bird and start flapping out of the jungle but one indigenous man grabs it.

I am in a small park meeting an Italian artist friend who reproaches me for not having answered his messages. I actually thought I did but check my phone again and see that he sent me several video-clips I did not even looked at. I then watch one showing him taking part to an English exhibit.

I am in a public square and see that a woman is trying to walk on top of some benches. She is very hesitant and I just jump myself on top of them and start running. She then rushes to the last bench and throw herself flat on it with her breast coming out and the people all around us watching.

I am watching a movie about an actress in her fancy apartment. Her director arrives and is not satisfied with her last performance. She then has her assistant to hang the actress from the ceiling with a string attached to her clitorides. As she is being pulled up the director adds a disinfectant.

I am in a small art school and tell the director that I am also an artist. He then gives me a pile of art magazines I can read. I then tell him that my former director used to edit them and he invites me to go to his office. I think he wants to give me his email but asks me to fix a cassette player.

I am looking at the pictures my girlfriend selected of her little brother. I first think they are all quite bad but then realize that she has taken them purposely zooming on his face. There are also other faces in the pictures and they are also cut out but they all manage to fit with the eyes inside it.

I am with the son of my mountain neighbours walking up a nice and smooth path He actually wanted to take a more challenging route cutting straight up over the mountain but I show him that we are almost on top and the scenery is very breath taking. I am actually afraid he might fall.

I am driving our van and reach a friend's villa. As I let my children out I realize that the van is no longer black but white. I don't mind that and just tell my daughter to run upstairs to hide while I tell my friend and his family to look for her. They do so on the ground floor and cannot find her.

I am walking on a road next to a beach with my family. It is dark already but the wind is quiet after heavy storm. The sea is also very quiet and we come to a place where it is very blue. A German girl is the first to get inside and also my family follows her but I keep on the sidewalk to look.

I am in a city hall and run up the staircase to start cooking for the mayor who has given instructions to do so. There is only one other person with me and he has already cooked. We then seat around the table together and he offers me a local sausage. I start eating it even if I am vegetarian.

I am walking with an Eastern European girl over the mountains. I am actually following her and have no idea where she is taking but suddenly come to a board with the map of the trail. In the middle there is a suspended bridge and I tell her that I have vertigo and she should have warn me.

I am in a workshop and meet my former Dutch boss who scolds me for not having clean a machine properly. He then shows me how to do it by putting sandpaper on the machine and let it run against the wall. It is very easy and I follow his instructions but see that the machine keeps dirty.

I am biking back home at night when a girl on a racing bike reaches me. We actually have to make it on top of a dike and I am much faster than her even though my bike is not so good. Going down the dike she catches up with me again and I realize that she lives at the end of my street.

I am in a small office waiting to hear if I can start working there. The boss finally decides I can start for a year and suggests me that I take my own table with me from home. There is already a table there and I try to explain him that it is fine as long as I can cross my legs underneath it.

I am watching a movie about a guy who desperately wants to talk to his parents. He is now in a clinic and wants to have their advice before he starts a treatment. The phone is very old and has to try several times to get in contact with the operator but the number he digits is not the right one.

I am in a park helping out my father to sing one of his song. He has a microphone to start with and I have my phone ready to record his voice but the volume is too low. As a technician tries to adjust it I get to see on my phone how my father performed the same song in a stadium full of people.

I am in my dead grandmother's house and find that is a beautiful villa with birds singing outside. She is still alive and gives me laundry she just made with the clothes my sister and I had when we were little. I want to call the latter to come and hang the clothes with me but the villa is for sale.

I am at a police station waiting for a cop to give me a phone number. He is in a meeting and another cop arrive. I then explain that only the other cop knows about the number and I tell him to bring him. As I wait I find the report where the number is written and I call it but it doesn't work.

I am in the apartment of my old Brazilian friend who just came a long way to visit me. He explains how he had to kill his hunting dog because he couldn't bring it over alive. He then shows it to me and I realize it is in a running pose and my friend must have shot it in their last hunt together.

I am in the kitchen with my wife and tell her that my aunt managed to call me. She is not so interested and I almost forget to tell her the great news a friend offered me a job for one day a week. It is paid very little but I think that if I get a permanent contract the salary will keep on increasing.

I am standing on a terrace looking down at the street below but realize that the grate underneath is very rusted and it might break. I then step back in the building but find myself in my project museum which is also completely rusted and unsafe. I decide to begin removing the terraces I built.

I am walking on the hills and meet a group of Spanish girl-scouts coming the opposite way. They don't know how to get down to a highway and show me a map. I tell them to go to the right but then realize the map is upside down and they will have to reach a village on their left and cross it.

I am going down the staircase of a movie theater and see a woman walking up with a bucket full of chips. I then pretend I want to have them for me and she really think I am serious and tries to avoid me. I then hear her getting a nervous outbreak upstairs but I keep on going downstairs.

I am in a park seating on a bench with my children when a guy with a dog pass by. He is really not happy that we are taking up so much space and comments in Dutch. I am actually sure he is Italian and I start singing an old communist song against bourgeois. He then starts laughing.

I am in an hotel room with my spiritual friend. We are actually supposed to check out but it is a big mess with food spread all over. There is also a rope hanging across the room and we try to get it out. We used it to create the set for a movie but now it is full of knots and I cannot undoes it.

I am on top of a building carrying a gun and just shoot my last bullet on the floor. There is actually a woman who is supposed to be my supervisor and gets upset about it. I apologize and she makes me try to shoot a last time with a rifle aiming just above the roof on the other side of the street.

I am biking with my family at night and come to a stadium. Our friends should leave behind it and we find the right house. It is very small and as I try to figure out where the doorbell is my partner gets a phone call from my uncle who wants to make sure we think of him as not a thief.

I am with my spiritual friend in a swimming pool but I am very afraid of diving inside. As I try on another side my friend shows me how one of his former classmates is also there. The latter is now a football champion and my friend hates him but anyway goes to say hi to him while I jump inside.

I am walking in a building with my children and hear some Indian music being performed. I then start dancing but realize that the music is supposed to be for people seating on the ground and carrying on a ritual. We then stop to look at three Indian men siting on the ground and eating rice.

I am with my best friend at a mechanic where my van is being checked. It is actually has no issues but a metal component I need to buy new. My friend the starts driving while I check on my phone how to get to a shop selling car parts but as I put my head up again he is almost there.

I am walking up a path with my old mountain neighbour. It is actually a shortcut to her native village but it is quite dangerous and we have to walk under some big rocks. We finally reach a restaurant and from there she continues while I have to walk on the asphalt road to reach my village.

I am in a touristic town and see my stepfather's nephew walking in front of me with his kid. I then jump in front of him but realize it is not him. As I walk around an abandoned building I recognize another old friend about to jump from a tower. I then call him but soon realize it is also not him.

I am in a supermarket buying fruit and see that the police is giving a fine to a guy. The latter has been biking inside the supermarket but then I see another guy in the back of the policemen walking with his motorcycle and his little son on top. He really thought it through to keep it legal.

I am in a bedroom with my best friend and he tells me about how he was once in bed with another friend. The latter was all shaking and this excited my friend very much. I then realize my friend is open for bisexual relationship and I try to stay away from him as I am absolutely not interested.

I am in a parking lot testing an old tractor I just bought. I manage to get the trunk up but can no longer find the way to pull it back down. I search all around the tractor for the right handle but in the mean time the trunk gets even higher up and begins to squeeze the front of the tractor down.

I am on top of a tree holding a dead snake without head. A man is below the tree slicing a living snake in the belly and giving it to some kids around the tree. I want to also give him my snake but he choose to give them a big slice of cheese instead and I just stay on the tree holding my snake.

I am on a train with my parents when my stepfather starts to insult me. My mother is very shocked and for the first time takes my side. As we finally reach our destination I go my way but meet my stepfather again at a fast-food restaurant. Likely there are two cashiers and we don't get to fight.

I am biking in my old neighborhood on my way to school. There is actually a lot of traffic on the road but I remember that there should be also a bike path. It is actually behind the garage where I used to make my art and as I reach it I realize I could have get on the bike path much earlier.

I am walking up a forest looking for an animal to photograph. I then realize that there could be even bears there and I start to scream to scare them away. I am in a state of panic but soon make a curve and begin to recognize the place. I am actually very close to my village and I get calm again.

I am in the garage I built behind our house trying to install a shelf. The ladder is actually too short but I find a way to extend it. I just have to secure the upper part and as I think on how to do it my partner's father shows up with some special nails to block it. I then let him come up to do it.

I am in the house of my spiritual friend's parents. He just became a father and they want him to go to town to register the baby. He really doesn't want to and I offer to take him but first I have to cut my beard. I then use a scissor to do it in front of a mirror as he taught me when we were young.

I am in a kitchen with a mother and her grown up children. They actually remember a place they visited together with her and suggests that she retires there. She finds it very beautiful and also suggests it to her father but he is too old and also tells her that she got to old to move anywhere.

I am in bed sleeping when my partner wakes me up. She wants to make love with my even though she is sick and our children are also awake. I then go inside an old wooden box thinking we should make love there but the front part falls open and I get visible to my children but they don't care.

I am with my old Estonian director checking the castle of a German lady. She rents it out to institutions who wants to make exhibitions there but my director finds the price too high. As he discusses it with the owner I see that on her desk is a map of the area and there should be a mountain.

I am in a parking lot talking to my best friend who realizes that I sold my Venetian apartment. He did not put in my tax declaration and tells me to send him the sail agreement. He then drives away with his family but I realize that I have sent him the agreement long ago and he didn't read it.

I am in a ballroom dancing with other people but notice that a Spanish girl is seated on one side and is very depressed. I then try to cheer her up but she keeps on being silent. As we all decide to walk to the beach she starts walking in front of all of us and I decide to run up to her to talk.

I am outside a mall with my oldest son. He tells me how he was able to withdraw a lot of money even though he had none in his card. A Polish girl is actually with us and he starts walking with her in front of me and even puts his arm around her shoulders as if he is going to pay her for sex.

I am in our street trying to park our van. It is actually very big and I only manage to drive it inside our living room. I then forget I had my trailer attached and go out from the back to see what damage it made. There is only a scratch on the wall but either way it is impossible now to get out.

I am at the bakery of a Dutch friend but he is busy talking to a woman. I actually interrupt them to show him some rocks I found digging under his bakery. I broke them against one another and I discovered a purple mineral. My friend gets very excited and wants to dig up more of these rocks.