

I am in a field watching my daughter climbing on a tree. It is really difficult from the front side but she finally manages. I then go in the back to show her how easy it would have been to go under the branches but in the end see how proud she got climbing all alone and decide against it.

I am in our street walking towards our house with my children and see a boy and a girl doing barbecue on the sidewalk. I realize they are the niece and nephew of my neighbours and that the reason they put a bike on the sidewalk was to keep the place free for the barbecue they planned.

I am squeezed on a train with a lot of people and a black woman pushing her leg against mine. At last I get out and the woman with a friend starts strolling around an old city center. I stay on my own and start filming some black kids bathing in a fountain but I accidentally stop the recording.

I am driving through my native mountain after it snowed. As I begin to drive down to my village all the snow disappear. I then go tell my neighbours that it was snowing on the top and one of them shows me that it is also snowing where we are. I look at the sky and see some small snow flakes.

I am writing emails with my father and send him a photo of my mother seating in the square of our Dutch village. He send the same photo back but with his face instead of hers. It is funny and as I check how he made it he sends an even more realistic photo made with artificial intelligence.

I am walking out of our mountain village and notice some very ugly houses built after the war. There are also several spots for people to picnic but the are too ugly and are just abandoned. As I come to the end of the road I find a dangerous dog completely unleashed and I try to pass anyway.

I am on top of a building showering with a colleague and a Russian couple who is paying us to take them around an old Italian city. My towel is actually opposite to them and I try to reach it with my hand behind them but I realize that they might think it is the towel in use for the bidet.

I am in a station with a manager and realize that the police is running a search. I then get him in a terrace just on time before a cop with a big dog arrives. As I look down from the terrace I see that there are more cops with scary dogs looking for us and I tell the manager we have to sleep there.

I am walking on a big avenue of the Belgian capital. There are actually some state funeral and we pass some people single a Communist song in Italian. I then see several coffins being lifted by marines and realize they must be all Italian people killed by terrorist attack. I then also start singing.

I am with my spiritual friend inside a mall and take a rounded tunnel that bring us into a pub. The costumers look at us in a strange way and I actually realize that it is for trans people only. We anyway take a seat outside hoping that the food is not too expensive and is also quite decent.

I am on my cargo-bike going with my youngest son to the city. At a traffic light we go in front of other bikers but then stop on the side of the road to get in our van. As I am about to drive I notice some black spots and realize my son has ink on his hands and I have to get off to wash them.

I am with my spiritual friend checking out some art galleries. One of the owners show me a drawing she made and I also want to show her my drawings. I then try to connect to my website but my phone is too little and I don't manage to write the address. As I finally manage it doesn't work.

I am in the middle floor of our Dutch house trying to fix a lamp with many lights. I then realize that my partner is giving birth to our third child and I should prepare a room for him. I want to make it very festive and manage to wrap the lamp around the beam instead of putting it flat across it.

I am checking out the library of a rich man and find a book that explains everything. The owner actually comes and wants me to peel a tangerine for him. As I am about to put the book away I find the page that shows how tangerines are peeled by machines and starts reading it with the owner.

I am walking out of an German village with my family. On a road below us I see our Swedish friend walking with his family and I tell to keep straight on but then my partner takes a shortcut up on the forest. Either way the road where our friend's family is walking end up on the same path.

I am in a harbour at night and see a small grocery shop still open. I then go inside and realize that it is run by an Italian man. He only has Italian products and as I try to select on to eat he just fills a paper bags with pizza slices that are about to expire. He wants me to have them for free.

I am below my mountain village trying to buy a medicine for my daughter's laryngitis. There is a pharmacy that should be open but I find some opening hours specified in small characters below the official ones. I then run up to mountains to ask my neighbour whether I should ring the bell.

I am in a garden with my supervisor when my second supervisor also arrives. She tells me to stop using auxiliaries when I write and just use more affirmative forms. I agree and follow them inside a mall to a restaurant keeping behind and managing to kick a small stone inside a trash bin.

I am in a shop with a friend who wants to buy a character from a computer game. A tiny shop assistant then goes in front of a big screen and ask a character behind it to check if they have it on stock. They don't and the little man gets very irritated that he will now have to set an order.

I am on a beach with some friends and realize that we all look like brothers even though one of them is black and the other mulatto. I then seat with them and ask another old friend who doesn't look like us to take a picture. She does that by also siting with us and start taking very bad selfies.

I am in a church with a baby I just gave birth to. He is very hungry and I look everywhere for food. I even check behind the altar but in the end just seat in the back of the church to breastfeed him. As he suckles really hard a group of gangsters sit all around and one of them harasses me.

I am on a platform over the sea with my daughter in a small basin. I then bring her down a staircase and let the basin float with her on top. Her mother told me to let her but I cry and call her to say I am unable to o so and that the sea is too rough. She is very harsh and says I must do it.

I am walking through a big city looking for the station. I cannot find it and ask three very tall German models on top of a bridge. They just ignore me and I ask a woman but she is a drug addict and wants to take my money. I then start running uphill but I am too slow and she keeps behind me.

I am in an airport waiting at a gate when a steward informs me that I have been selected to get my suitcase wrapped for free. I then get in a group with other passengers and hand in my suitcase. A very professional staff takes on each and put under some sophisticated machine to wrap them.

I am driving with my family below my native mountains and decide to eat pizza in a town before we drive back up. I remember it to be very close by but my partner sees a sign saying it is many kilometers to go. I actually don't trust her and decide to keep on riding below the mountains.

I am siting in the back of a bus with a friend and move to the middle to help some American tourists. They need to get off when I need to get off but as the time I come I realize that my backpack disappeared. I search everywhere and find it in the upper deck but without the pouch I kept inside.

I am with my partner checking out the map of an island that we are currently visiting. We have no ideas of where to go in the coming days and there is are no geographical indications on the map. There are only names of towns and I assume that the ones next to the coast are too touristic.

I am walking on a small road with a man who needs a contact for someone who installs floor isolation. I actually have one on my phone and retrieve the email conversation from the time we also isolated our floor. I then try to scroll down to see if I find the actual address but it is not there.

I am with a boy standing by a stream and see that there are sheep bathing inside. It is hard to know whether they are sheep or goats and we walk to the workshop of the boy's father and draw the head of a goat on a plexiglass. We then go back to the sheep and we find them between two beds.

I am in a repair shop checking out a worker repainting a big metal piece. The colour he is spraying melts on the very top and he has to use another colour with a brush. I then take his spray can and go upstairs thinking I could paint with it but there is a dance performance and I just watch it.

I am outside a bus stop when my old Brazilian friend arrives with his girlfriend. It has been decades since we haven't seen us and we hug. We then get on a bus together and I start looking at his face. He got very old with white hairs and a ponytail like mine which makes he more handsome.

I am in a big bedroom of some friends who are hosting me and my children for the night. On one side there is a very big bed where we can all sleep and on the other side there are several fridges. I open them to see if there is any food but only find packages of fermented milk drinks I don't like.

I am outside a military academy where I got enrolled as a cadet. I have no way to get in and use an emergency exit. A guard spots me and tells me to go to the front desk to get a card to access the building. I do so but the secretary doesn't have one and just pairs me up with a lesbian mother.

I am in a field next to some factories talking to my architect about moving the project museum there. I want to understand what is the advantage and if there are going to be more people coming to visit it. He is not able to reply and as we leave the place I see a big wolf disappearing in a forest.

I am in a living room testing a robot my children have found broken in two. I want to repair it and put my finger in the trachea and actually find three cables I can weld together with the same cables on the other piece. As I look more carefully I find two other cables that are too thin to weld.

I am at my best friend place when my former American neighbours come. They got extremely fat and I realize they actually also moved to my friend's city. They are not happy about it and complain about the heavy traffic but it is almost weekend and my friend tells them that it is normal.

I am in a bedroom where I have just installed a big light. There is a mill inside that turns and shows how much electricity I am consuming. It feels it is quite a lot and I start regretting have bought that light but then the mill starts rotating the other way showing how it is rewinding electricity.

I am laying next to a river waiting for a girl to come. I also started a fire but as another guy starts laying near m he shows me how the cardboard I am burning is being blown away by the wind. I then move it back to the fire but then it gets full of people and it will be impossible to meet the girl.

I am in a university when my old professor tells me to attend a seminar with other professors. I do so and seat at a table with older men eating tortellini. One of them starts to talk in such a sophisticated about phenomenology that I decide to leave at once but cannot find one of my slippers.

I am in a restaurant that is about to close and the waiter invites me to eat the buffet for free. As I am making a sandwich for myself I meet two other Italians and e go out in a playground. I should let my partner know but both my phones don't work and I get a lot of adds I cannot get rid of.

I am on a train with my cousins and two other families. They are going to the mountains to ski and we are also going to the mountain but only to cross-country ski. I then ask my youngest cousin to show a video of him waxing skies but he only has a video of some forest cabins he is designing.

I am on a beach when I see a boat with protesters going one way. I realize too late they have a lot of anarchist flags. As they come back I start singing a communist songs with an anarchist lyrics and hail them while they disembark. Among them is a hero and I enter a club to listen to him.

I am at home and see that the the mother of my dead friend wrote me on my partners' phone. She actually tried to call us and I call her back with my phone and ask her how she is. I also want to ask how her husband is but I forgot his name and she gets offended and suddenly hangs up.

I am in an art academy and find a desk with some material for everyone to use. I get package with large paper sheets and sit on another desk to start drawing. As I pull one out I realize they are x-rays. I then bring them back and talk to a guy who is redoing his studies as an art performance.

I am at a post office with a letter I need to send to a museum. I actually forgot to put the address and tell her to the lady at the counter. As she writes it I realize I told her the address of a monastery and I want to correct her but then see that she writes it in the abbreviated form that is also fine.

I am in the bathroom of my partner's older brother and find a carafe. I want to use it to serve water on the table for our family and I start washing it in the sink. It is quite hidden and there is no direct light but I can see that there is a blue liquid coming out of the carafe and I can't fully rinse it.

I am in the villa of a famous black singer and sit on the sofa with her to ask if she has a job for me. She is not so famous as she used to be and has no longer any work but check the artificial intelligent software she has subscribed to. I then wait for a response but it is very stupid and generic.

I am with my youngest son in our van applying for a campsite. We are actually using an old photograph showing me and the children next to our van. I want to show what a nice family with are but next to me is also an American friend who looks like he could me partner and I tear him out.

I am in a restaurant cooking when the owner comes with another gas tank. I then realize I am using the wrong one and as I switch it I see that costumers in the restaurants are getting free cakes. They are of many different kinds and I wonder if there is one without sugar I can also eat.

I am at a festival standing next to two girls seating at a table. I actually hear one speaking Italian and I sit next to her to ask where she is from. Her parents are actually from my native highland and I ask her last name. It sounds like that of my grandmother but then she shows me it is different.

I am on a bus with my family and reach a station where my partner gets out with our daughter. I also get ready to go out with our son but he drops his food box with the potatoes I friend for him. I then let the bus go to the next stop while I picked them and then get out at a nice river with a hill.

I am in a church and realize that my maternal grandfather's brother is preaching. There is a sign next to me explaining that it is a test because people from another church criticized that he was too sloppy. There are actually no people in this church to judge him but only some other priests.

I am with a mountain neighbour discussing what things he should supply me with. We are basing ourselves on the alphabet and exclude the letters that cannot be matched to a product. My neighbour has many ideas but for mushrooms he can only provides me with a map where to find them.

I am watching a movie about a guy who is on a bus and see a girl he really likes. She is actually sleeping in the back and put one of his shoes next to her face and then hides in the back waiting for her to wake up. Se wants to make her a big surprise but time pass and she doesn't wake up.

I am walking out a kindergarten with my daughter and notice that the children have stolen forks and knives from a restaurant. The teacher also sees that but she doesn't care and just let them go home with them. We also start going home but have no car and have to walk on a busy road.

I am in a forest with a man who is showing my his house. He has painted it too white and it really doesn't match the landscape. He still has to paint one side of it and I realize that also as it looked before was quite ugly. There is also an otter eating up the foundation and he manages to catch it.

I am walking up a steep mountain but find it way too slippery. The ground is only made of clay and there is no way to go back down. I then put all my energies to reach the top and manage to do so but it is made of a white cement and it is also very slippery. I carefully walk to a dirt road.

I am in a small movie theater with my sister and she tells me about the result of an exam we just did together. She took the top score while I took a very low one. I am then sure I haven't passed but she assures me that I did and that the minimum score to pass the exam was even lower.

I am on a train with a Spanish friend traveling to her city. It is a the coast and since we are still going through the hills I suggest we stop. She tells me that there is nothing to see there but I really like the landscape and want to take a walk. She then shows me we are approaching the sea.

I am in a living room with my family looking for a film to watch. I find one about a tiger but no one wants to watch it and they all go to bed. I then stay up to watch it myself and it shows a small Russian village where girls are brought to the podium wearing their bra but looking malnourished.

I am in a big shoe shop and realize my Dutch neighbour is at the counter. I then ask him permission to go in the back to look for shoes and he just lets me pass. There I find some boots in discount but they are just made of transparent plastic and when I try them they don't feel comfortable.

I am on a field with the members of an association. They are all placed as if they were inside a cathedral and I realize that they want me to build one there. The leader of the association is all covered in beard but I actually recognize him and realize I have his contact blocked on my phone.

I am at a station with some friends and get in a train. It is packed with people and they want to take another one but I get angry with them and just tell them to keep with me and see if there are any seats in the back. They then follow me there and we find entire free rows where we can sit.

I am walking with two small kids and an old couple over a bridge that brings us to the foot of a hill. I then warn them that we will have to climb if for some time until we meet another path that is flat and easy. I show them how the later path will lead us to another hill but it is actually behind it.

I am driving in a highway and realize that I am still in Dutch territory after many hours. I then realize that the reason is that a giant accident happened under a bridge. I get to finally drive underneath it and see a lot of body parts sticking out of a pile. I recognize a female hand that is moving.

I am next to an abandoned prison with an American guy talking. An American girl explains me that the guy is the son of a guard and is essential in testifying about the tortures the guards did to the prisoners. She actually comes to close to me with her big breast and I come in my pants.

I am in front of a mountain and decide to walk up. I quickly reach the top and have to enter a room through a door. Inside there are blue and red arrows leading respectively to an easy or a difficult itinerary. They are fake tunnels inside a wooden structure and I just get out the emergency exit.

I am in a field waiting to go to a lake with my partner. I realize she left without me and I call her but there is only the answering machine telling me to call her father instead. I actually get an email of another person who is now getting a lift from her and I have no idea how to make it home.

I am in our Dutch village going from the station to our home with inline skates. I am actually quite good and pass a group of Ukrainian teenagers holding my hands in the back. One of them stops me and asks if I would want to earn some money every time I stop. I then agree with him to do so.

I am driving an old Italian car but realize that the road is blocked with vans that are setting up a festival. I then park on the sidewalk but then see that it is a paying area. The street next to it is for free and as I try to park there instead I keep on hitting other cars and don't manage to slow down.

I am watching a movie about a girl following three guy to an abandoned factory. She actually killed one of her friends who raped her. One of the guys take her on an iron ladder to also rape her. At first she seems consensus but then she just sits on a step and the guy can't do anything about it.

I am standing with a German soldier in front of a long wall. He has just removed the plaster in the lower part and found that there are graffiti and posters hailing Nazi soldiers. I cannot read them but ask if he can translate them for me as he does so we also find Italian fascist propaganda.

I am in a room of a villa with an artist friend sketching an installation for the rich owners. They want him to build a church for them and he is really good at drawing bird-eye view. As he is making the tiles he realizes that his favourite game on television is about to start and he stops drawing.

I am in a supermarket with the Welsh mother of my younger son's friend. She is showing me how a spray works for in the toilet. I then pick the one she suggests and put it in the shopping cart but it is from a Philippine man and I immediately take it out and go around to search for mine.

I am in a hotel room with my partner and show her that I got an email that I was accepted into a doctorate program. She is not happy because I already have a doctorate and it is a Swedish university I will have to commute to. Reading more carefully she finds that I am only in the first round.

I am in the atelier of a famous artist who is showing how he can lift one of the marble columns he uses to make sculptures with. He actually takes a straw and blows inside the one he has just lifted. The column cracks and he takes the inner part and gives it to the person seating next to me.

I am in a laboratory and checking an old television. It is supposed to have a cathodic tube inside but they managed to make it so flat that the television looks like a modern one. It even has a port to connect it to the computer and I do so but then get a script showing it is out of production.

I am walking in front of an old church and decide to make inside. There is actually a famous stone cube there and an American tourist asks me all about it. I actually know the architect and the other works he has done but cannot remember anything about the cube and what was used for.

I am in the apartment of my spiritual friend's parents. He is getting ready to go to the city to meet some friends and I assume that I can also follow him there. He actually wants me to stay at home and I realize he is embarrassed about me. I then provoke him and say that I will walk there.

I am in an ancient city waiting to take a ferry across a canal. A gay couple is standing next to me looking down a t a family with children making a lot of noise. One of them actually manages to throw a brick on a bucket filled with cement and I see the cement splashing against the gay couple.

I am driving my tractor up a path and hear locals saying that they will try to get me arrested for many irregularities. I then decide to get back down on the normal road and get rid of the tractor. As I do so I pass several other people and finally stop to talk with one about my new neighbours.

I am in a shop with my partner waiting for our turn. A girl actually gets in front of us and I realize she has a ticket and we were also supposed to get one. I actually see that they are hidden on the counter and I get angry with the lady working there for not putting them somewhere more visible.

I am inside a small room crowded with students when I see my former Swedish supervisor walking out. I then follow her and try to tell what I have been up to but her husband also comes outside and he doesn't even recognize me. She is also not interested in me and they both walk away.

I am in a bank and get a number from a screen. There is no one there but I have to wait and more people start coming. A Japanese girl also gets to seat next to me and she starts talking to me in Italian. She was actually living in a Sicilian village and tells me how there was not even a toilette.

I am out on a street with a Finnish girl who keeps putting a lollipop in her blue eyes. I then ask her why and she explains that it is a way to keep her ears warm. I then realize she is crazy and follow her in a building with a big elevator. There are already some Arabs inside and we just walk up.

I am in our mountain village with a new guy who has just moved there. All the local girls are helping him and I also want to help him but manage to burn the pancakes they had on the stove. I anyway ring them out on the table but he doesn't want them and as I leave I meet his girlfriend.

I am in a villa of a friend and see that other guests are coming with cakes for his birthday. They also brought big oil paintings and he even had to use the ceiling to hang them. I was also preparing a painting for him but in the end decided to make him a small book with illustration I cannot find.

I am watching a movie about a couple walking around a lake. They are actually followed by a man and they decide to start following him instead. The man then rents a bike and the woman gets on a horse to chase the spy. They keep going fast around the lake but he is no where to be found.

I am n a big warehouse and notice the manager also helping out assembling the Christmas decorations. She is actually using a brush to add glue on a big wooden panel and I realize that her pants are ripped even between her legs. Her hairy vagina sticks out and I find her overall attractive.

I am in the underground tunnel of an old train station and manage to take the right staircase up to the city. There is a lot of traffic and I cross one street even though the traffic light doesn't work. I am then stuck in the middle of a platform with the traffic on the other side never stopping.

I am walking on a boulevard and cross a gay guy. As I can still smell his perfume in the air I reach a group of guys who are listening to a beautiful girl telling everyone her phone number. I actually find a blue diamond on the ground and give it her asking where is the prefix of her number from.

I am inside a Parisian cafe siting with three Serbian students. One of them is celebrating his birthday and we get to eat some nuts. His mother also sent him some big sausages and he shows me how they are made just chopping the butt off the pigs. I almost feel like vomiting and want to leave.

I am on a mountain road with a guy and his children. My old friends are also nearby visiting an abandoned cemetery but I decide to stick with him. As he starts driving I run after him and feel very strong. I actually find a side road and run even faster while he get stuck in the mud and stops.

I am with a woman in a village and get in a fancy toy store. I then search for a present to give to my children and find a robot spider that moves as if it was real. It is actually too expensive and I just search for something else. There are some music instruments but they already have them.

I am on a machine cutting the grass growing in the middle of a mountain road. My neighbours' son is on the other side on his tractor but he is unable to cut the grass. I then manage to reach him and he begs me to go back and cut more grass. I can only do a strip at a time but I listen to him.

I am siting in a conference room with other people waiting for it to get started. I then start working on my computer and realize that it is connected to the large conference screen. People are watching and I want to show then how my website works but I can no longer connect to the archive.

I am walking with my family on a busy road with villas on one side and the African sea on the other. As we keep on walking further the villas stop and we find a beautiful river. At the end of it there is a lake and we wish to swim there but as we get closer we realize that it is filled with algae.

I am in an old square and realize that in the middle of it there was a giant tree but the one there is only a small one growing. It is far enough from the houses but then I see another tree that is bigger growing next to our new house. It is still quite young but one day it will certainly be a problem.

I am in an apartment with my sisters who are doing aerobics. In the kitchen some minced meat is cooking and I realize that it is singing an African song. It is still very red and I get terrified by the idea that it could be the meat of an African singer my sisters have killed to eat him alive.

I am in our Dutch house positioning a ladder to inspect the roof. As I make it up I realize that I am way too close to the wall and it could fall backwards. I then make it back down and think of bringing the ladder back to my Italian neighbour but then see I can make it higher and extend the base.