

I am in my study working on my computer and try to look for a dirty word on the internet but nothing comes up. I grow very frustrated and think of just masturbating but I hear that there is someone in the house. I then move to a dark corner of the room but I am really not up for it.

I am in a small restaurant with my partner and order a hot-dog even if I just decided to be a vegetarian. I then think of making an exception but the Japanese waiters also suggests a drink with sugar that I also removed from my diet. My partner gets jealous and says she wants to go home.

I am walking in the fields and take a detour on a path where my Italian friend is also walking with her friends. I then scare them pretending not to see them but then suddenly jellying at them. My friend's daughter is also there and I realize she will also go to the same school as my children.

I am in a completely new campus talking to a former Swedish colleague on the phone. I try to describe to her where I am but she has no idea. I assume she is working there but when she tells me she is not I suddenly realize I am talking to my former Russian colleague and she cannot know.

I am outside a cathedral and realize the ceiling is collapsing. I actually hear the bishop inside asking god to stop it and god kills him with a giant stone and then declares it is time to stop. As it get safe to walk inside I group up with other volunteers and get selected to clear up the debris.

I am on a bus with some English artists and reach a campsite on the hills. One of them has bought two eggs for each of us and asks me if I want one. I then play around with the language and tell him that I want him to become an egg. I doesn't get the joke and just boil one for each of us.

I am in a little cafe that is completely empty. I can see that the owner has worked hard to furnish it but it is not attracting an costumers. He is no where to be seen and I just walk out again and realize that I am still quite close to my old apartment. I then try to walk to the other side of town.

I am in our mountain village with a filmmaker and show him how it has everything I need to become self-sufficient. I actually want to also show him my ark but the local politician join us and soon we also meet his wife. The latter is called like my mother and I start singing a song about her.

I am with my old friends walking through a palace. One of them gets the idea that for every room we cross we should play a card game. I agree and each one of us gets three cards but they look more like comics and I have no idea how to use them. My friends are very good and one of them wins.

I am walking next to a football field and see my neighbour training a team. I have no time to greet him because I need to use the bathroom. I then go in but on the way out there is a guy standing in front of two women and I let him in first but then realize that the youngest woman is paraplegic.

I am in our Dutch house and go down to the living room. My musician friend is there and has moved all the kitchen on the opposite wall. I don't mind it and start moving everything back but as I begin with the oven I realize that it is a hard task and the wooden floor is getting all scratched.

I am walking through a market and see that my biological father is there trying some pants on. My mother is actually seling merchandises on a stand opposite to him but she seems not to realize he is there. I then wonder if my father is there to spy on her but then think it is only a coincidence.

I am in our mountain village drawing outside and listening to my old neighbour complaining about her dog. She is not used to pick it up and one of the neighbours suggests her to use a bottle. The latter invite her to their place but she asks me first if she should go after I had a fight with cym.

I am in a crowded church where the funeral of my cousin is about to be celebrated. I then ask the bishop if I am allowed to give a small speech but his assistants warn him that I am an anarchist. I then walk out and into a shop of one of my cousin's friends. We start talking about him and cry.

I am in a museum and hear that a rich man wants to know more about my project. He actually comes with a group of friends and I setup a presentation with one of their computers. I then try to attach my hard-disk to it but it doesn't work. I then realize I also have a small computer and try it.

I am at a crossing waiting for my new Dutch friends to come. As I am about to give up they arrive dressing up like a long dragon running through the streets. They then get to work in a little Chinese restaurant selling noodles and I try some of their noodles but then put the ladle back in the pot.

I am in a forest and come to a big sand dune. There is only one girl exercising and I want to show her how strong I am. I then start climbing and almost reach the top but then grab the root of a tree and it breaks. As I grab the tree itself it also falls down with all the terrain underneath it.

I am in a clinic of a foreign country where I am supposed to change sex to make my new partner happy. As I wait for the operation a lady comes with a bucket full of tomato sauce where my penis and balls will be placed. She announces that the president of the country will also be present.

I am outside a restaurant eating my bread. There are also other people who are touring the mountains and I suggest their guide to stop and check the ark I am building. The guide is not up for it but then I insist and we agree to visit it together. As we are about to leave the waitress come.

I am in an art gallery checking a work with many tiles. The owner tells another artist that he can also leave a tile with his work. He actually stuck one on the wall and as he tries to remove the glue I take my sketchbook out and begin to prepare the drawings for a series of tiles to leave there.

I am in a big supermarket doing grocery with my Greek friend when we suddenly get stopped by a shop assistant who checks our cart to see if we stole anything. As we move on another shop assistant stops us to do the same check and I protest saying that they only do it because we are dark.

I am in our Dutch house laying in the same big bed with my family. A Chinese girl actually comes to give a massage to my partner. As she prepares to do it I ask her what is her specialty and she explains how she can draw maps feeling the energy in different directions like I do with a device.

I am sitting on a train listening to the conversation a pretty girl is having with some big guys on the other side of the aisle. She actually declares to them that they are not the type of guys she is looking for. One of them leaves and she looks around in the train she finds that a guy is spying her.

I am walking in a Brazilian city and have to cross a narrow road with people selling glass souvenirs on the ground. I manage to make it though without breaking any of them and reach a square with an old colonial building. As I start to film it three thugs get approach to rob me and I run away.

I am in a small living room and really need to pee. I then see that there is a glass on the table and just pee inside it but then see that there is a camera recording me. It is now too late and also the Austrian owner comes in and she starts reviewing the recording but fast forward the part with me.

I am walking to one of the supermarkets in our Dutch town. I actually have a shopping cart already filled with grocery from another supermarket and start to position it on the sidewalk. It actually blocks the entrance and a guy behind me gets very upset and pushes is finger against my neck.

I am on a dune overlooking the sea but it is very dark. I actually find a spot with only big rocks and not so much vegetation underneath it. As I go down the dune to hold that spot for my friends other guys arrive. They also want the same spot but then my friends arrive and we start talking.

I am reactivating a chat program on my phone and get a lot of messages. One of them is from a girl who asks if I still have a room for rent. Another is from a man who sends me a link from a newspaper. I then think it is an article about my project but it is about some activists he wants to host.

I am biking up a hill behind an old and a young man. Suddenly the later turns up a steep road and we follow him but it is too hard. I get back on the other road and keep pass by a lot of buildings that are uninhabited. They are own by rich families who only used them during holidays.

I am in a pub with our mountain village's carpenter. He is also a hunter and I want to make a point with him that I believe it is necessary to keep up with the ways we used to survive in the past. He doesn't understand me but I explain that if the system collapses we need to hunt and farm.

I am with my spiritual friend looking at photos of his trip in a southern American country. It is all the way on the north west and I have never heard about it. He shows me how they have built an elevate train going across it. He has pictures of the beautiful houses being built in the countryside.

I am in my children's school with other parents and realize that they are deciding together a new curriculum. I am actually testing a transceiver with one of them but as they finish to vote I tell them that I want the children to be more out in nature. One of them replies that I need bus for it.

I am biking with my spiritual friend on some fields in the mountains. He is sitting behind me but the road goes too much up hill and we start walking. As the road starts getting downhill again we get back on the bike even though at the end of the slope there is a sharp curve with a lot of mud.

I am on a beach with my children and get with our feet in the water. There are small waves and I try to explain to them how people surf on them. We then wait for a bit of a bigger wave to show how it is possible but they are all small and also very long. I then realize they are always the same.

I am on a street trying to register on my phone at the Italian consulate but in the end up in the actual building. A secretary tells me that I still miss some papers but I explain that I have already submitted them. He asks me for my title and I tell him that I have many but don't want to use them.

I am walking through a shopping mall. All the shops are closed and I enter an area without any lights. I am afraid to get mugged and a couple actually stops me. I try to be friendly to them and realize that the guy is wearing a t-shirt with the same flowers I have printed on our dishes at home.

I am in a Turkish airport queuing up to go through the security check. My step cousin is also there offering passengers his service to avoid troubles with the authorities. I actually go ahead anyway without his help but realize that the border guards are really tough and don't forgive anything

I am in a seminar room with two professors. They seem very relaxed and I even get to talk to one of them about the pets she has at home. As she tells me how she treats them as human beings we get to move to another room where I finally get to print the paper I wrote for them. It looks perfect.

I am in a parking lot covered in ice. There are other friends and we manage to do some ice-skating across it. I only the realize that it is the house of my dead grandmother and now my mountain neighbour lives there. She also comes out and shows how good she is ice-skating despite her age.

I am on a train sharing a compartment with a pygmy woman. She wants me to put her to bed and I lift her on the rack above her and then wrap her in a blanket. As I am about to sit again she wants me to kiss and I end up sticking my little finger in her small vagina but then she falls asleep.

I am walking on a square and make a comment about a guy walking with boots. He hears me and starts kicking me with the silver heels but I throw him to the ground and make sure he is unable to hurt me anymore. I then leave but his friends are also after me and I make it through a garden.

I am on a bus looking at a woman driving next to me on a motorcycle. As I try to figure out what model it is the bus stops and I have to get out. My Polish friend is also there and I see him getting the elevator inside a condominium. I then walk up the stairs and hide behind a sink to scare him.

I am checking out an art installation my aunt made. There is a table with a lot of objects hiding a secret and our Albanian pianist friend is deciphering them. She then realize that there are several chess pieces and by lifting all of them the table gets unlocked and one can access underneath it.

I am hiking with my spiritual friend on top of a mountain and meet another guy who seems lost. He is very afraid of heights and the path gets even more dangerous. I then tell him to keep next to the mountain and avoid to look down but he keeps on doing it. We then decide to go in a cave.

I am in a living room trying to watch a new movie but my stepfather takes the remote control and put an old cowboy movie. It still shows the native Americans as the bad people but I realize that the movie is so old that it looks much more as it must have looked at the time of the cowboys.

I am in a park and find my bike that got stolen. I actually have the key to unlock it but as I do that the guy that stolen comes. He wants me to leave the bike to him but I grab his arm and twist it behind his back. I then call my oldest son to come and help me but he doesn't answer me.

I am with my homosexual Greek friend watching the photos he took of a remote island. It is covered by a blue crust but underneath it is a red ocean in which one can swim to get purified. He actually had the courage to go in and shows a photo of the giant stalactites descending from the crust.

I am walking outside an occupied factory watching people moving in and beginning to create their own spaces. As I pass by a black girl rearranging a garage I see a far right militia driving in with jeeps. They want to beat the squatters and I immediately run through a hole in the fence and hide.

I am in a studio with a photographer friend who has taped a sleeping girl on the wall. He also wants to attach a guy who is in love with her and his assistants goes to fetch him. He is also sleeping and they manage to attach him on the girl without waking him but there are too many ants.

I am in a seminar room with a famous German actress and her boyfriend. She is quite old and too skinny but her young boyfriend seems to be desperately in love with her. In front of them is a Cambodian fisherman and she starts to make out with him. The boyfriend does not get jealous.

I am inside a school and see the office of a Swiss artist friend. I then realize I could have been in her place but now have to content myself to sit with her students. They are in the corridor around her office and walk around it to find a spot. I find one but there is a lecture on chemical formulas.

I am with a friend who is showing me on his phone a video of him skiing with a kimono and some salami slice on his chest. I then ask him why the salami and he tells me that it is a way for girls to look at his body. He then tells me he has a lot of girlfriends and I see another friend with one.

I am inside the small apartment I am sharing with another guy. He has packed it with stuff and I can barely make it to the door to look at two agents. I am sure they are about to break in to catch me but they only attach a poster in the corridor. They are looking for my homonym but not me.

I am watching a movie about an Indian woman who is brought to prison on a wagon. The man driving the horses is a soldier but he is also an Indian and when he listens to her speaking their languages he has second thoughts and wants to free her. The woman is too mad to be left alone.

I am walking down a slippery staircase with my best friend. People are watching us from below but we quickly manage to join them. It is a big crowd but they are suddenly announced that there is an alert. I think it is about me and my friend but it turns out that a guy has committed suicide.

I am on a beach but the tide is so low that there is no water. I actually realize that I am getting burnt and go under an umbrella but then notice that the tide is getting high again. I get ready to dive in the ocean but the water is getting so high that all the stuff I left under the umbrella is at risk.

I am entering an house with my partner and find that the door is unlocked. There is a lot of mail behind it and she picks only the more important. We then go p to the living room to check it out but then end up making love and leaving all the mail unread. We actually don't stop caring about it.

I am in a metro station with a Chinese baby in my arms. My spiritual friend is with me and we really only have to catch a train for one stop. We then decide not to buy our ticket and just check through the windows of the train that is coming to see if we spot the controller. The train is too fast.

I am inside a house planning to sleep after I worked all night in a bakery. I am exhausted and just go inside the bedroom but see that an old Swedish friend is there with a woman. He is actually married to another friend and I find it very embarrassing but his head is turned and he sees me.

I am walking on an abandoned Jewish village when I get a call from an Italian authority who has planned a visit to my ark. I then rush there but it got dark and we venture inside. It is my oldest son's villa and it is also abandoned and full with halls. I then lead the authority to the staircase.

I am in a square with my youngest son. He goes inside a shop and gets a red package. I warn him he did not pay for it but he throws it and the owner immediately demands me to come in to pay it. I do so but my card doesn't work and I have to pay cash and she gives me a strange bill in return.

I am in a gas station watching a guy playing with a robot. He has several accessories but other guys just get them from him. I then tell him he should keep them is he wants the robot to function but the other guys don't want to return them. He then disappears so as to make them very worry.

I am driving with my Greek friend on a highway and see some giant wooden dwarfs built on top of a mountain. They are too high up and he is not able to see them. We anyway need to stop to pick our families up and I hope he is going to drive more but then realize they are with another car.

I am in the apartment of a southern girl who is working as a cosmetician right next door. As she is training to put mascara on a puppet I look out of her window and realize that there is a beautiful path going into the forest. The latter is actually on top of a hill and I am amazed how pretty it is.

I am in a gallery showing my paintings when my former Estonian director comes. I haven't seen in decades and I hug but he is amazed about a small painting I have done. It is hanging high on the wall and I tell him he can have it for free but then realize it is a copy of another artist's painting.

I am waling with my daughter along the river going through our village. We are still very close to our house and realize that there is a waterfall we have never seen before. My daughter even sees something through and as we walk further we realize that there are caves that might be accessible.

I am with a tall Chinese girl who on a platform. As the train comes we get in together and she wants me to lie down with her next to a drunk black man. We then only sit and I propose to watch a movie and she agrees but then ends up studying on a book. I then regret having sit next to her.

I am checking my phone and find that my oldest son has written me a message. It is about the exam he took to enter the military but the grammar is so bad I cannot understand it. As I try to make sense of it he writes me a new message saying that he wishes me to spend the summer together.

I am in a table with a lot of other men and I am asked to sing an old partisan song. I then tell them how it was not a partisan song to begin with and was used by women working in rice fields. I try to sing the latter version but the men start singing along with the first version and I also sing it.

I am walking on a valley with a guy and he shows a small village. He then tells me how the people there are related to the people from m mountain village. We then go further through the valley and I see many beautiful paths where I could take long walks. There are even woods where to sleep.

I am with my Dutch neighbour's son fetching our bikes from a parking lot. As we get ready to bike he invites me for dinner at his place and I admit that I would find it awkward to meet his parents. I then tell him that his father cannot even look at me in the eyes since I got angry with him.

I am watching the ocean above a long beach. Below is a perfect spot where to swim with the setting sun penetrating across some high buildings. It is actually very crowded but by the time I make it down the sun has set and there are is no longer anyone. Also the beach is gone under the tide.

I am inside our new house and realize that outside is raining. I then check where the water of the shed I have built next to the house is going but realize it goes through the walls. They are so wet that the water flows over the jackets we have hanged on one side. I then think of putting a gutter.

I am on a dike with my partner and see below the father of one of our son's classmates. He is dragging himself across a river on an old wooden boat using a rope. In one jump my partner manages to make on the desk where is about disembark but as I also try to jump I almost fall in the water.

I am in a school and join the lesson I was forced to attend because of my poor English. The teacher actually speaks Spanish and I then rise my hand to speak about why anarchism is so important. She lets me speak but I cannot find the Spanish words and just switch to English and get fluent.

I am on top of a hill with other people who are going home after a concert. I then realize that I haven't filmed the landscape in front of me and I do so but my camera cannot film the mountain ahead. I then try again and I get a very good shot but this time record much longer than I normally do.

I am outside our house and realize that the neighbours have just built an extension. It is also a bathroom like our but much smaller. They are talking to other neighbour saying that they were home when they heard them making love. It was exactly the time in which they conceived their son.

I am outside my van getting changed. As I get in the back to sleep I realize that there are giant worms. I actually don't care and just listen to the message of a friend who was picked by an old woman who wanted to have sex with him. He wanted to make sure she was vaccinated but she wasn't.

I am watching a documentary about a lagoon and see an old man rowing to an island. In the island there are a lot of tourists even though the water is very polluted. The grass around the beach is very well kept and the children run around but only the old man is in the water with his boat.

I am walking home from my children's school and realize that the parking lot of the supermarket has been completely reconstructed. Where the sidewalk used to be next to the recycling station there is now a wall and the parking is much higher. I do not see how it can be an improvement.

I am about to enter a small bus and get the honour to sit next to the reincarnation of a very famous composer. As I get inside I realize he is my youngest son but he is now aware of his status and doesn't want to move. I then think on how to reach my seat climbing over the driver's seat.

I am taking part to a game and reach a changing room. One side is a brothel for pleasure and the other is for pain. I choose the later and I am forced to run on a metal grip. There is then a pipe full of glass pieces I have to go through but one participant find an emergency exit where to escape.

I am driving my van through a parking lot and find a sunny spot at the very end. I then get out to enjoy the weather but there is also another couple there. They are getting very romantic with one another and I try not to care and just remove the rotten leaves of a leek but they get closer.

I am on a hill meeting my old friends when one I haven't seen in a long time also arrives. She became a famous presenter and gets my friend to sing in the background while she makes a commentary. I then realize that she is faking a situation and she is acting like she is live on the scene.

I am on a stony field with an Italian artist friend. We haven't seen each other for a long time and he makes me promise that every time I make it to the mountains I let him know. I agree but then realize he is no longer living with his girlfriend below the mountains and it doesn't make sense.

I am in the parking of a rental company and see that the more expensive cars have been burnt. The owner is trying to at least rescue the engine and I ask him if I can pick up my car. He tells me that I can do it late in the evening and if I want to do it earlier I will have to pay for an extra day.

I am walking through a Greek mall and come out on a high staircase overlooking an ancient city. I then sit down to film it but a young guy starts pushing me with his knees. I then realize I am sitting next to a girl he is probably in love with. They are quite light skin and blue eyes to be Greek.

I am outside a school and realize that I left my things inside. I don't have access through the main entrance and decide to climb up a terrace. There I just look for a pair of shoes and try some on but realize that mine are just on the ground. I then put them on and also find my backpack.

I am in our kitchen talking to a neighbour about another neighbour. She is actually standing in our garden and I realize that it is really a mess. I then tell her to get inside but there are two snakes and she gives them poison to eat but one of them get on our table to eat from our peanut butter.

I am in a room waiting to take an exam with other students. We actually get divided in groups of four and I assist to the first group getting assessed by a professor. My old Japanese friend is part of this group and starts a performance with a beautiful choreography but he is out of sync.

I am driving with my family to a beach and see a restaurant on the side of the road. We then decide to stop there and park the car but as we start walking to the entrance someone starts calling me. They are some old family friends and we decide to eat together but the tables are too small.

I am skating in a city with a friend going by bike next to me. He is actually much faster and I hold him by the arm but there is a sharp turn coming up. We managed very well and see his girlfriend ahead falling down. As he assists her I find next to a sidewalk some small toys for my children.

I am driving with my sister up a beautiful valley. The mountains all around are gorgeous and we find a parking lot where our children are waiting. We are too many for one car and I offer to go pick another car in a parking further down but it gets dark and I can no longer film the landscape.

I am in a pub drawing and hear a group of girls talking. I then realize they are no-fascists and the owner comes to introduce me as an anarchist. They suddenly chilled but I keep on drawing and explain to them the difference between authorities and leaders saying that all we need are guides.

I am visiting a Dutch architect friend in his studio. It is actually very fancy and resembles a cocoon with curved windows all around. There is also a big window on the ceiling and I joke with him that we could have some philosophical gatherings open to everyone but he is really not up for them.

I am in an airport being lifted up by a crane that is supposed to get us inside an airplane but just gets us high up over it. I just close my eyes and at last it gets us in the airplane. There is not sit for me but I have a special ticket and the hostess get a man up and lets me sit with his wife.

I am walking in the middle of the night to a pizzeria. I already made an order and only need to pick up the pizzas but the Arab man making them tells me that I still have an hour to wait. I then think of going for a walk and ask him if I can leave my luggage. He agrees and I hide in the shower.

I am with my daughter watching the sheep of a Welsh farm. I then notice a wolf suckling the breast of a sleeping sheep. As he leaves I notice that it was not a sheep but an aggressive sheepdog. It gets in front of my daughter and I and the shepherd tells us what to do but she speaks Welsh.

I am in a gym getting ready to do tai chi but there are still some guys who have been boxing in another room. They just hang out around me and I either way decide to start. I want to scare them with my movements and let them think I am doing some martial art but cannot remember them.

I am walking in a forest and notice an old tractor plowing a strip of land next to a dike. My partner is with me and she explains me that the railroad association has a special right to cultivate along the tracks. There is only the dike left with no track but the workers are still waiving their right.