

I am in a villa waiting for my parents when my mother comes in in tears announcing that her husband has died. His relatives also come in and I am surprised to see his brother-in-law who died many years ago. He is carrying a tray with a new baby and he resembles exactly his youngest son.

I am in a conference room with some locals and explain to them my view on how their society should be organized based on consensus. I then realize that also some big shot politicians are present and give them the example of another politician who was a populist but had similar ideas.

I am in a big square peeling a kiwi next to a garbage bin. I then notice two gypsies looking at me and I realize that they are keeping an eye on me because his two friends are stealing my pouch I left behind me. I then get my pouch and run after the two but realize that they don't look as gypsy.

I am in a beautiful library and go to the section selling political texts. There are many old books about communism and I move to another corridor to search for anarchists related books but only find an installation with the skeletons of dead soldiers. As I keep on looking the soldiers run away.

I am in a cafeteria queuing for food with some old people. One of them ask a lady on the other side of the counter for some water and she just gives him and his friend two bottles. I then realize that because of their age they can get everything for free but I don't dare to ask and just keep waiting.

I am in an old house closing all the windows. I then go in a bathroom to also close the one there but have to get out on the roof. The owner is below complaining about the amount of trash and I swear to him that it wasn't me. He was not trying to incriminate me but had another person in mind.

I am in a clinic and ask the doctor to check my heart. He then lets me blows inside a machine and he is quite impressed how long I can breath. He doesn't tell me anything more but to be careful. I then realize he is calling the day off together with his nurse and with leave the patients alone.

I am walking with an Italian guy along a big road and he tells me about his dog. The latter is very old and it is not used to live without him. The guy is now studying abroad and can only go back home for holidays and I ask him whether the dog recognizes him but he says he doesn't anymore.

I am getting in a metro station and scan my travel card but realize that I might have checked out instead of checking in. I then get on the train hoping not to meet any ticket controller but there are actually three and I explain to one what happen. He then thinks I am the runner of a marathon.

I am in the corridor of a hotel with my ex wife. I then realize that she did not allow our son to come and spend time with me and start yelling at her. We actually have to share the same room and just get on the same bed facing the other way. In the end our son do come and sleep between us.

I am sitting in the terrace of a cafe with two other friends. It is very busy with people and I read on the menu that it can take a long time before we get served but then a waiter comes with our cakes. I start eating mine but soon realize it is made with raw eggs and they are not biological.

I am walking with my youngest son on a street and see an Italian girl with her mother. We actually keep on walking to our apartment and realize that they are our neighbours. I then realize she also has two sisters that have black hairs like her and the mother but they are not as beautiful.

I am in the back of a train with my partner. It is very crowded and we have to stand in the middle but then realize that the people surrounding us have very deformed faces. S I look better at them I realize that they are not humans but must be monsters and they are also staring at us.

I am sitting in a pub with a group of friends and one of them is about to tell us a secret. The others then starts humming altogether an old love song and I also join the choir but then a woman working for a nearby hardware store comes and says we should buy something from her store.

I am in our Dutch house installing an update on my phone but come to a page in which it says to put a number. I then put the number of my old Italian phone thinking it is just a formality but realize that my Dutch subscription is now only working with that phone and I cannot restore it.

I am entering a strip club with friends when a lady working there stops me to give me a brochure. It is a like a menu from which I can chose a woman but there is a lose page inside and the lady is not sure that woman is available. She asks another lady at the counter and gives me the okay.

I am in my daughter's room with two anarchists and they both agree that the most important work is from a third anarchist who is not there. I then try to write down his name but then remember that I have stumbled upon his writings and found it really hard. I decide to disagree with them.

I am visiting a foreign city with my family and decide to take a bus to the center. It arrives and I go in first but then realize I don't have a ticket. I find a machine in the middle of the bus and as I am about to buy a day ticket the bus departs without my partner and kids. They also had no tickets.

I am working on the top floor of my ark with my youngest son on my side and notice that there is a smaller ark in front of us. My partner is there with our daughter and I notice that the latter is pulling a texture off. I then tell her to stop but it is too late and my partner to pulls out a large tag.

I am walking passed a gallery that is already full. The curator there actually knows me and introduces me to another curator who is interested about my collages. We then go together in a cafe where I tell her how I got harassed both my professors as well as politicians but I feel very sleepy.

I am in the living room of our Dutch house when I see that my uncle is calling me. I then answer him saying that I am about to go out to work at the bakery but he begins to scold me for not keeping up the relationship with the family. I then just ask him in which Swiss town he is now living.

I am in a small store but find nothing to buy. The owner then tells me to use the back door but it leads to her house. As I search for the exit her husband shows up and shows me to the door. I open it but it is not on the ground floor and the facade of the house moves forward with me.

I am driving on a mountain looking for a place where to park. I want to take a walk but the side of the road has a lot of fallen trees and when there is an opening a car is already parked. I then think of squeezing my park in the back of another but then see that another care ahead of me has left.

I am in a small square with a lot of immigrants when my Italian architect comes to tell me that the far right candidate has won the elections in town. I then wonder what it is going to happen of all the immigrants but also realize that only a very small percentage of the people have voted for him.

I am inside my new apartment but have to walk around with my head down. The ceiling and curved but realize that the middle of the curve has been filled and that previously people could have walked with their head up. Even the top floor is very narrow and a girl is in shocked of such a hole.

I am walking from a small island to a tourist hotspot and realize that there is a bridge and I don't even have to pay for the entrance ticket. I then stand on top of it and film the palace at the very end of a canal but realize that a local is standing with his boat right in front of me. I move higher up.

I am standing in a queue on a street. There is a girl in front of me and she starts holding my hand. I actually feel quite old and think she might be mistaken but she really wants to get together with me. We then get to an empty road where we start kissing and I even press her breast by mistake.

I am in a mall where all the shops are already closed but there is an art gallery at the end of it where I should meet my Swedish curator friend. I just wait in front of the door as the hour we are supposed to meet approaches more artists show up. Finally also the curator arrives and we sit down.

I am in the garden of a compound where I also own a little apartment. It is actually at the sea and I notice that the there are some small maritime pines just in front of my terrace. I then realize that they are kept small so that the sun can reach it during the summer while keeping it cool.

I am in the terrace of a cafe and remember how my American curator friend was once meeting inside with my American director. The latter is still inside and also my American friend shows up and decide to go meet him again. My director doesn't recognize him and my friend gets bulging eyes.

I am walking with my old friends on a road through the forest. It is getting dark and we finally reach a sidewalk just on time before a lot of cars start flashing next to us. I recognize that they are from a city in the south and we begin to talk with that accent and I even get to learn a full sentence.

I am with my parents in an old square trying to film it but my stepfather send me to buy a juice on the other side. He has the menu card of another cafe and shows me which one he wants but as I get on the opposite side I lose it. I remember it to be green and just ask for a cucumber juice.

I am at a swimming competition and see a girl winning. Journalists come to interview her and she gives a very moving speech that makes me cry but her mother is there to correct her. As everyone turns their attention to her I keep with her daughter and decide to call myself like a spray can.

I am in the workshop of the carpentry where I used to work. There is no one there and I take my time to walk next to all the machines and come up with memories associated to them. I can do so for almost all the machines but not for a table that is meant to cut glass on because I never used it.

I am on top of a hill about to go under some barbwire to make it down but then see a beautiful path. I take that one instead and end up on another path covered in snow. It goes under a rock and as I make it out I realize that I have dropped my glove. I then ask two skiers to pick it up for me.

I am in a giant Indian palace walking to the entrance. As I notice that there is no one around I realize that I am wearing a mask for no reason. I keep it anyway expecting to meet the doorman but have to open the big and heavy door myself to find him on the other side not even helping.

I am walking to work with my hair loose and meet my mother and her husband. As I do my hairs the latter tells me to put some beer on my car to prevent it from rusting. I then tell him I rather use linseed oil but then realize he brought me a whole tank filled with beer for me to use on the spot.

I am in a workshop trying to fix an engine but have no tools to close the lead. I then walk to the front where there is a shop selling tools and just take the one I think I need. I test it on the engine but it is too big and as I walk back to the shop I no longer find the place where the tool should go.

I am with my oldest son in an airport walking to our gate. We actually come to a cafe and have to ask the owner to open up a door. She does it and we reach a staircase that takes us to our gate. We get inline with some dwarfs and I tell them about a very cool new song but my son is ashamed.

I am on a bus thinking that there is no one sitting next to me but see a girl under a jacket. As I look around I find that I have left a folder and my laptop in the front pocket and I could easily forget them. I then try to stand up to get my backpack and put them away but the road is too bumpy.

I am in a friend's apartment and see an Asian girl cleaning a big glass on the other side of his living room. I then ask her with my hands how did she end up there and she explains with her hands that it is actually another apartment and to reach it I would have to walk down and then up again.

I am in bed with some friends that is getting morning already. I then tell them how I have been taking flights all night and finally I met the love of my life. A girl also arrived and brag to have come from the other side of the ocean. She certainly traveled longer but she only had to be on one flight.

I am in a shop with a lot of masks standing on top of the shelves. I then try one but realize that it is made of small bricks and it is not so well executed. I then try another one that is made in one piece and realize it is actually better even though there is no string to connect it to my head.

I am in our Dutch house going to bed that is already dark. As I make it up the attic there is actually a light and find that my partner is watching a series on a tablet. I then also notice that she left a smaller tablet on in the children's room and it is also playing that series simultaneously.

I am in our mountain village and realize that a guy with an old fire truck has just come. I am supposed to get on the arm to finish plastering the top of our barn and get a tool to scratch the old plaster off before applying the new one. As I get out I see a storm approaching but want to proceed.

I am in an apartment laying on a loft bed. My partner is on the phone in the bathroom and I have my belly down and feel like coming. I don't want to but I cannot help it. As my kids enter the room I stand up and want to go to the bathroom to clean myself but their my mother is still there.

I am walking with some artists across a parking lot talking about a Colombian artist we all know. As we reach an atelier we find also my spiritual friend there and he shows a job opening he found on the newspaper. He really wants to apply even though he will have to move in the arctic.

I am in a small park and call my partner to tell her that it is starting to rain. I actually call my mother instead but have to immediately end the call to get my laptop back inside before it gets too wet. I then make it to the hotel where I am staying and joke with a guest that I will write a thriller.

I am at the start of a marathon drinking tea and keep on drinking even after it starts. I am the fastest and just run through the traffic instead of following the others on the sidewalk. As I distance them I realize that there is a fat girl running in front of me but she is not part of the competition.

I am with my spiritual friend in the villa of a man who has helped us before. I actually take a shower hoping that she doesn't come home too early but then find that his wife is there. There are electric lamps in the corridor with as lamps underneath and I ask her how to blow them out safely.

I am watching a movie about a clerk who spent his holiday traveling through the Canadian wilderness by train. He first crossed a main river and then got in a mountain landscape with two cowboys on their horses in the middle of the plateau covered in snow. I then think I also belong there.

I am on a sunny mountain with my children and look at the mountain where we started hiking. It is cloudy there and I don't feel like walking back. I then get the idea that if my mother comes to visit me and I can go with her friend to get our car and come back while she stays with the children.

I am with my children and their friends in a swimming pool I built with bricks but realize that some of the cement is still wet. I then get over it with a brush and do the same in other part. It is actually a castle and I start to think how I could also build another structure to show my project.

I am walking with a friend on a straight path through the forest. On or left side is a hill and I suddenly realize that I once tried to build my project cathedral on top. I try to show to him the place where I started cutting trees but there is nothing left and all the trees have been growing big again.

I am in a van with my mountain neighbours' son. He is actually using his trimmer to cut underneath the shelves but I don't see how there is grass that could grow there. I also get my trimmer ready but the blade is all used. I then remove it and ask what parts he think I should take to the shop.

I am outside my oldest son's farm and realize that there are a lot of people coming there to play cards. I then get inside to see where he is and just find him in front of the computer. I ask him to come down to tell me what is going on and find that there is even a small restaurant making pizza.

I am with my best friend in my native town and see that they have turned the main square into a playground. We actually want to get out of there and think of a hike but they are all too dangerous. I then remember a very simple hike but we will need to drive the car far into the mountains.

I am driving through a German town when a policewoman first and then a policeman tells me to turn. I am actually sitting in the back and hurry in the front to do so and avoid a working site. We then end up in front of a big mall and think to do some grocery but cannot find the parking lot.

I am on a dirt road trying to film the field on my left side. I actually hear a group of young Italian people walking on my right and one of them takes me to the hills on the other side of the field. She then shows me a cave with a ladder to make it to the top but I really don't want to go there.

I am with a friend entering the house of the evil hunter who tried to stop the building of my ark. I give him a living quail and his very happy and gives me cucumbers from his garden. I then think of eating them but realize it is better we leave and I just grab a bag and put them inside.

I am in the sea with my family and make it out of a beautiful cave with my son. Our daughter is with her mother swimming ahead and we try to reach them but there are some white moths in the water. I have no idea what they are doing and I try to avoid them but my son pushes underwater.

I am walking downhill with an old friend and my best friend. The latter is telling the former about a song from a new cartoon. I actually heard it but do not find it so appealing but the other friend has not and my best friend starts singing it for him. He makes it sound completely different.

I am in a building going to an apartment with another guy following me. There is no staircase and we have to climb across some big windows. Only then I realize that I am also carrying my pee pot and it is too big and I might fall backward. I then beg the guy to take it for me but he doesn't care.

I am in our mountain village and see a car with black people looking for me. They just bought an apartment there but have run out of money and want to ask me to land them some. I then hide in a stable but find a mouse trap and two colorful mice standing next to it. They are not afraid of me.

I am sitting in the back of a car talking to some friends sitting in the front. As one of them drives I take a look at the palm of my right hand and see there are three glass pieces in it I can remove one with my other hand but the other ones are too difficult to remove. I then ask them for tweezers.

I am driving a van to a university and find that my old Turkish friend is still studying there. I go out to greet him but he doesn't seem so willing and just tells me to follow him to his room. He then starts walking up a staircase but he is too fast and I can no longer find the stairs to go higher.

I am with my best friend in front of an important bank and he tells me that he is going to be the head of a delegation. He expects me to follow him as a representative and I think of also asking two other ladies there but they are too sloppy. We then go already inside to put some suits on.

I am walking through a museum with a lot of interesting work. The visitors in front of me just rush through it but I find an interesting video of an immigrant living in a Swedish town. He is part of an association and I suspect it has to do with gay rights but then realize it is more traditional.

I am on a road talking to my mountain neighbour and he shows me how shaky is my ark. I then explain to him that I still need to weld it properly and he suggests that I drill holes on the rocks below the road and anchor it there. I think it is a good idea but the realize it should be self standing.

I am standing on an old bridge and realize that I was just dining with my spiritual friends' parents but something must have happened to them. I then remember that the father was on the same bridge filming with his camera and he must have fallen down. I am very sure he is dead by now.

I am checking on my phone the videos that a friend sent me. He is traveling through a jungle with a girl and they rented a motorboat. I even get to see them driving fast through a canal but the more I look at it the more I realize it is a road. It is very bad maintained and they keep on jumping.

I am in the home of my daughter's best friend. Her mother is baking but I also brought some dough and I decide to tell her the secret of a good bread. I then also start preparing the dough for baking but the oldest son of her husband arrives. He is from a different marriage and I never met him.

I am in the office of an important lady and point out to her that the paintings of castles she has on the wall shows how authoritarian she is. As she tries to defend herself I realize that she lacks some fingers in one of her hands. I then get closer to her and find that she is using her desk to grill.

I am in a kindergarten with my children when the teacher tells me to look after a mulatto girl. I do so but she is very restless and just manage to sneak out. I then go search for her in all the corridors but she is nowhere to be found. I meet another teacher but she also hasn't seen her.

I am with my baker free in a big building and he shows me a room he is planning to buy. He actually wants to go live there with his family but it is very tiny. The ceiling is really high and goes all the way up to a roof window but he tells me he is not allowed to build anything above the floor.

I am outside a palace and see people with green florescent costumes marching on the green fluorescent staircase. They reach the top and they are instructed to get fully naked and hold a plant over their genitals. They do so but some of them are not so fit and the captain dismisses them.

I am in a park and check some young people doing tai-chi. I then wait for them to finish and pretend that I have just memorized their movements. I also do tai-chi in front of them but end up behind a wall with only a door for them to see how I am performing but I keep on making mistakes.

I am at a car dealer with my partner and decide to sell our expensive van. We want to buy a cheaper car instead so that we can gain some money and finally decide to buy a jeep. As we drive with it back home I realize it was not a good investment and that the jeep might break up anytime.

I am walking with my youngest children up a hill outside and ancient village. There is an abandoned castle on the top and we want to reach it but have to go around the hill along the sea. There are a lot of flies on the path and we start walking on the small beach but two iguanas are blocking it.

I am riding an electric scooter and reach a square where I also see my Polish friend. I want to greet him but he starts riding his scooter and I realize he is carrying his two kids. I then ask him how they are and we sit next to a building but a graffiti artist starts to spray paint it all in red.

I am in a big city with an old friend who just offered us a meal at a Japanese restaurant. He actually takes me back to another restaurant on top of a building and I hope he is going to pay again but he makes clear I will have to pay. He then orders fried fish and drinks I think I can afford.

I am biking on a busy road and reach a parking with other bikes. I then also park my bike next to one that is almost identical but realize that the latter has a good lock while my lock is very thin. It is also too short and I am only able to lock the front wheel which could be easily removed.

I am driving across a capital city where I am supposed to attend a seminar. It is not until later in the afternoon and I still have the morning for sightseeing but I really don't want to keep in the city. I suddenly realize I am close to the sea and just start driving that direction to walk on the beach.

I am in a cafe' and realize the waiter is an old Chilean neighbour. As I greet him I remember that he has moved to a bigger city. I then ask him if his children like it there and he tells me that they really love it. I then start thinking how little less options my children have in our village.

I am in an old Italian street walking with a fake saxophone. As I reach a small square I notice a musician friend sitting on a bench with other musicians. I then start playing the saxophone and at the beginning it is quite good but as I get closer I try to make a trill and screw up the melody.

I am in a valley with another guy looking up at my native highland. There are actually lightings hitting the top horizontally and one of them gets on some dry bushes and starts burning them. Luckily the rain also start and we decide it is a good time to drive up but then the guy pulls back.

I am walking with a friend up the portico of an old Italian city. A small boy is walking down and he goes to greet him but then I realize he is my step cousin. I push my friend to the side and hug the latter but cannot understand how he has not been growing in all these years we spent apart.

I am biking along the northern African coast with other people. We actually come to the middle of it where there is a ferry that should take us back to the European coast but the other bikers think of going all the way to the west and then take the ferry there. I warn them that it is much longer.

I am watching a film about a girl who tries to sneak out her mother's apartment. As she unlocks the door the mother wakes up but the girl goes out anyway to meet a British drunkard in his apartment. I fer she might get raped but they get drunk until it is morning and she has another date.

I am with my girlfriend on an highland and see a bus approaching. I then ask the driver if it goes to the city and he says to hop on. We then use our cards to buy our tickets but we actually need two each and I only have money to buy one. I then only pretend I am also buying the second.

I am with my children crossing a square where there is going to be a celebration. There is a stand with big water bottles and I just grab one but then notice that there is a man working there. I ask him if I can get the bottle but he is okay with it and just tells us to come back for the celebration.

I am in an auditorium with an design school director presenting a new karaoke system. He invites people from the public to sing in a microphone and then let a computer elaborate a new melody based on it. It is not that interesting but then I notice that it also scans all the television channels.

I am in a Spanish station with my partner and walk up to an elevated platform where our train is departing. We then quickly pay for our tickets but I realize that I have forgotten to add a discount and have to pay a lot of money. My partner still has her train card and only has to pay very little.

I am in a park with the parents of my children's classmates sitting on a row of benches. I also want to sit with them but just do it on the ground. There is actually a big gray dog of one of the parents and it sits with its belly on my face. It doesn't seem aggressive and finally leaves me alone.

I am in my costumers' farm and go in one of their rooms to get some forks and knives. I am actually arranging a dinner for them and their daughter and get upstairs to look for some clothes to wear. I still have to go through their private rooms until I find one where I have a fancy red shirt.

I am walking with my daughter in the mountains and come to an elevated platform. As we start walking on it she starts fooling around and just sit on the handrail. It is very dangerous and I tell her to come down but she doesn't listen. I then manage to hold by the hand right as she falls.

I am driving a car with my family on a street with a lot of tunnels. We actually only get to drive near them but suddenly I realize that I am driving right into one and the car is not meant to get in. The terrain is also quite bad and I try to go back but I am afraid I can damage the car bottom.

I am in a second hand shop with my partner checking for some mattresses. The owner wants to give us a very filthy one but we know that he just got a good batch from an hotel. As we help him search for it I find another one that is meant for people with back problems but it is too short.

I am in a field walking with some snacks to a picnic area where I am working with a friend. We are actually not supposed to eat anything there and I notice that an old man is coming to check on us. I then hide the bag with snacks and pretend we are just silently working on our laptops.

I am at the bakery where I work and close the garage door from the inside but realize that I am left in total darkness. I then try to find the light switch and find one with my hands but do not know if it is the correct one. I don't want to risk it and deice to just go out from the garage door again.