

I am standing outside a villa waiting for my partner to come out. As she finally does so she starts complaining that I have only been cutting my beard on the sides but have not cut it in the length. I then see myself in the reflection on our van and realize that my beard touches my waist.

I am watching a documentary of an African football player. He is actually a dwarf but got to date the daughter of the Russian president after he scored at a game. I actually got to see the game and realize he just happened to be in front of the goal and did not really require any talent to score.

I am in a field collecting bees inside my backpack. I am actually stacking them on top of one another but I notice that the ones below have been squeezed by the pressure of the ones above. As I put the backpack on my back I realize that the ones that are still alive can revenge and sting me.

I am running on a mountain and make it down a path but then go back up to film myself. As I run back down a car pulls out from a side and hits me. I then go in a shop saying that I have now the prove of the accident and one of the owners says that they can compensate me with firewood.

I am in a van with my boss driving to my native village. He is getting ready to sleep but I really don't want to sleep on his side. I then look for an hotel room but find that my spiritual friend is now using the one I booked and he is not writing me back where exactly it is but just sends me photos.

I am watching a game of an old Italian football player. He is playing in a team against the Italians and I realize that his team is even wearing the colors of the latter. I am a bit confused especially after he is able to score and all the game now is in the hands of his team by the goal of the Italians.

I am inside my ark and get a phone call from the architect who helped me building it. He says that one of his colleagues think it is getting too ugly and I should dismantle it. I then agree with him but do not tell him that I have a whole class of students now waiting to see it with more visitors.

I am in front of an abandoned villa with the one of my mountain neighbour's sons. I did build a mound to reach the window on the second floor but it has been demolished. I still need to reach it to hide a treasure but it will soon rain and help my neighbour's son to bring the ladders inside.

I am in a classroom attending a presentation of various groups of students. One group is planning the replica of a movie and present a poster with their actors. I then think they are generated by a computer but they explain that they are using the foreign students from living in their dormitory.

I am in an office getting ready to visit a sculptural park but get busy looking at my phone. My mother wrote me that my step sister is finally getting a daughter and I try to answer her but then realize I am late and that the bus that I am supposed to catch to go to the sculptural park has left.

I am installing a new program on my laptop and realize it has installed a lot of other programs. I then try to only use the one I need but enter a video-game I can no longer exit. It makes me go from one room to another and they are all very different but there is never a door to lead me out.

I am waiting at a bus stop with my children but there is a gipsy man sitting on the ground looking at us. He thinks we are also gypsies and stand up to shake my hand. His hand is completely deformed and swollen but I shake it anyway expecting him to also ask me for money but he doesn't.

I am in a military hospital searching for a bed where to spend the night with my partner. A nurse shows me one but I also want to check upstairs where there is a hidden bed coming out from the wall. I actually prefer the one on the ground floor but it gets occupied and I have to go back up.

I am in a bedroom getting raped by my ex. I really don't like it and I am very glad after she gets off of me. As we get up she tells me that it is the last time we can see each other. I am not worried about see her but I am concerned about not seeing our son anymore after her irrational decision.

I am in an attic with a group of architects and get the idea of a staircase connecting it to another attic. Everyone is thrilled by the idea but the most famous of them suddenly realizes there is not sufficient space above and the staircase would be illegal. I then think of a staircase that twists.

I am watching a movie about an American billionaire walking in a city with a militia. As they reach the city gate they are confronted by another militia that start shooting the billionaire and his militia with rifles. The latter wear bulletproof jackets and they get their knives out to kill the former.

I am in a garage where our van is parked and I notice that there is a big area where the color is peeling away. I then worry that the galvanization underneath will not last and that the van will start rusting but then realize that the color is peeling on the roof and that it is made of plastic.

I am walking on a straight road with my best friend. He actually wants to buy some toys for his friends but we have to walk to the other side of the city. He really doesn't want to do it and just stops in a stand where they sell hats. He then shows the lady working inside that he lost a tooth.

I am driving up north next to a big tower. My partner is with me and has no idea where we are going but I find it very logical. I only worry that the road will take us up the tower but it only takes us around it and then I show my partner that there are the signs for the place where we have to go.

I am in a Sardinian village by the coast and watch an indigenous man with two long plaits sticking out of his head. He is performing a ritual in the ancient language of the place and I also notice some carved green stones in front of him. I then realize that each one represents an ancient letter.

I am in the terrace of a cafe in my native highland when a cousin approaches me. He really insists we should meet before my holiday is over and we set an appointment but then I remember he just committed suicide. He still looks very young and realize we are back in time and I can save him.

I am driving with my partner in our van and come to a traffic light. As it stays red for a long time she starts complaining that we have very little money. I then try to explain her that it is only during the summer when I do not work but she really doesn't get it and think we are always broke.

I am in a shop and look for an angle grinder just to clean up the surface of my ark before welding. The owner shows me a second hand machine and I try it on stone. It works well but the price he asks for it is way too high. I then get back to the counter to negotiate but there is a line.

I am on a street with my partner fetching our van with the children sleeping inside. We are actually heading to a campsite to the west but she tells me that she will also need to go to a city to the east. I then suggest that we first go to the latter and let our children sleep before we go west.

I am working in the garden of our Dutch house and pick up all the aluminum foils covering it. They are in the shape of squares and under one there is a hole where I can place them. My partner's father is also there and proposes me to start a vegetable garden moving all our plants there.

I am in my friend's bakery but decide not to help him and go straight to his office to do my work. He then follows me worrying that I am upset with him but I try to explain him that I just feel like writing. As I sit in front o f a computer he shows me a talisman that I can use to get inspired.

I am in a park with my partner and one of his friends. We actually need to build up my ark again but they are not really helping me. I then decide to run away with all the metal bars but as I do so I realize I have left the panels behind and that I have no other place where to build it for free.

I am walking in a mountain with my daughter when suddenly she starts going on a path to the left. It is very dangerous and she just makes in a cave with rocks falling down and closing her inside. I then move a few rocks to make space for her to see the daylight and eat some food and drink.

I am in a field with an old friend playing volleyball with one of his friends. I also have a friend and I think it could be nice to play in pair although my shoulder might dislocate. As I do so my old friends just start kicking the ball under the net instead of throwing it with his hands above it.

I am watching an old movie I already know the story of but it shows that the hunter in the story have to be first selected among other hunters. He then goes into a stadium where they have to show the evil queen how good they are at shooting but the hunter gets bullied by all the others.

I am in a room with an android who demands me to suck her big bubs. I then do that and she opens her legs and wants me to penetrate her. It is a weird hole and I don't trust it but in the end decide to do it anyway even if I see a little light blinking next to it and I don't know what will happen.

I am in a restaurant sitting on a long table with some young people and hear the beginning of the song. I am actually very sure it is a famous song coming up but no one seems to recognize it. In the end it turns out I was actually right and I hear the song but just much slower than normal.

I am in a city with my best friend trying to organize an excursion to another city. We want to go to the capital but there is no way we can go from the station to the city center on time. We then choose a smaller city but then realize it could be quite boring there and just decide to give it all up.

I am walking on a hill and see the signs for an ancient village going down. I am actually sure the village is up and I ask a local. He also tells me to follow path going up but as I keep on walking I am quite sure he must have meant another village. I anyway decide to visit it instead of the other.

I am on a big staircase waiting to get in a stadium where there was just a concert. My partner is there and I just want to spend some time with her even though it is getting very crowded behind me and the bodyguards have to push us back warning that we will have to pay for the full ticket.

I am in a shop and see that there are boots for sale. They are meant for men but the sizes are too small. As I am about to give up I look in the boys department and see that there are actually boots there of a bigger size. They are even nice and looks rather robust but there is only one per pair.

I am working at the bakery of my Dutch friend trying to fix a wrack on top of another. As I finally manage to do so I push the whole pile down the road but the realize that there are a lot of flamingos too close to the other piles. I warn my friend and he runs towards them to scare them away.

I am in my native village and get in a small photo shop but then realize I did not bring anything to print. The lady at the counter already inquires how they can help me and I just ask a general question. She then tells me it is impossible to answer it because there are so many different products.

I am in a restaurant and walk to a long table where I normally have lunch with other friends. They are already there but a girl took my seat. I then ask her where should I seat and she shows me a place next to another girl. It is the only one left and it is very tight but I try to sit there anyway.

I am on a train going with other friends for a hike. The controller comes and he catches a boy who did not check in with his card. I am not sure I have also checked in and just announce to my friends that we have to get off the next station. We then walk to the door away from the controller.

I am in a big church with all my relatives. They have a new born the have to baptize but when the priest calls the father forward everyone does the same. I then try to be ahead of them and reach the priest to get my communion but get a coin instead of a wafer. I leave and decide not to eat it.

I am at a dinner with many Germans and go talk to two of them that are following the building of three hills on a mountain top. I want to put my archive inside one of them before they continue building but they explain that a violinist already tried to do a project there but she was not allowed.

I am in a stadium watching a football game and see the Turkish team losing. I then go to ply for them and manage to score for the other team. The referee is not convinced of the goal and watch it again on a screen. It is clear that the ball made it inside the goal but he declares that it did not.

I am driving a car with a friend on the Japanese hills. We are on our way to meet another friend but I see on my phone that there is a shortcut to the left. I take it but it is a very steep escalator leading us to a platform. There is a train departing and we get on but I lose my phone connection.

I am messaging with my best friend when he sends me three old photos and asks me if I recognize the people on them. The first and the last shows the same guy skiing and I wonder how my friend cannot recognize another old friend. In the middle there is a friend of this last friend that I met.

I am in a new school for my youngest son and find it oppressive. The garden is not too bad with little yellow flower blossoming and I am summed with the other parents there. We get in a circle and get closer together until one parents notice that we will all have to wear the same kind of shoes.

I am on my way out of a condominium where I just bought an apartment but don't know hoe to close the door. A man shows me how I have to remove the handle and hold it over the door so that it creates an air vacuum. I find it too complicated and hard to believe it can work but it does.

I am walking to a parking lot where a famous tennis player is waiting for me in her car. I also feel I am very fit and manage to get the tennis ball two other tennis players have accidentally thrown over a fence. It is very high but I manage to throw it back in impressing them and myself.

I am in a field next to a stand selling hot-dogs. There are some English hooligans there waiting for their team to play the local team. They actually heard about my ark and talk about it as an insignificant small cube. I then tell them is very big and invite their boss to see it the following day.

I am in the apartment of my American Jewish friend and realize that she is not owning but they have to pay a rent. I then ask her how they manage and she tells me that her Polish boyfriend has now a permanent contract. It has been years I haven't seen him and I ask her if he got very old.

I am in a kindergarten with a Dutch musician picking up his little daughter. He can actually sing an Italian song to her but the lyrics are all wrong. I then sing it for him and realize that the lyrics he was singing are the end of the song. I then try to also memorize it to know the entire song.

I am sitting at a small table with a famous guitarist. I am also very famous and we try to talk about a possible collaboration but there is a woman sitting in front of us that first flirts with him and then comes sitting next to me. I want to talk to the guitarist but she keeps on wanting attention.

I am with a Neapolitan friend parking by a beautiful lake. I actually don't trust to swim inside it but he throws himself in. I also do so even though the water is extremely deep. I actually find that the water makes it easy to stay afloat but as I submerge myself to test it I find it hard to reemerge.

I am in a gym with my family when everyone leaves. It is about to get bombed and I also jump in our van with my partner who was supposed to take all our belongings. I then notice that she left a lot of our stuff still inside and as the building starts collapsing I run in and also get some hats.

I am walking in a city and see some scientists mapping plants with their tablets. I then take a picture of the with my tablet and show it to their chief. They are all depicting the butt of a scientist against an always different mountain chain and I propose we should do a joint exhibition about it.

I am in a kitchen with some old friends when three of them come to beat me up. I then run in the bathroom and climb the wall to call my sister. She comes to rescue me and the guys go away but then I realize I could have beaten them myself with the bottles and chairs that are next to me.

I am walking in a forest with a German man who just go an important award. He explains that he is publishing a book and think of including some pages about me work. I will have to write them myself but have no clue what is work is about. As we reach a dead end he tells me it is a secret.

I am in a playground with my partner and kids but realize that we should have paid for it. We try to go out through the entrance but I also have a bag and I cannot make it though. My partner then shows me that I can just lift it up and can easily put my waist around the rotating bar.

I am in a library with my spiritual friend and his new girlfriend. I then realize he became very famous already with the animation he is working on even though he only made a trailer about it. I want to scold him for not having waited but I am impressed to see in how many sites he posted.

I am walking through a neighborhood keeping a straight line. As I make it down a staircase it suddenly comes to an end and I decide to park a yellow bike I found there. There is a dedicated parking only for bike but I realize it is for the residents. I then use the bike stand instead of the rack.

I am in a country house trying to sleep when my oldest son comes home. He was just out with my German friend's oldest daughter and they apparently made love. I am very surprised my son can be so direct but he doesn't even take any pride on it and thinks that whatever will happen is okay.

I am in a courtyard watching a machine filling it up with concrete. There is the poster of a far right leader on the side and I realize he is now the new prime minister after he managed to kick out the other far right leader. The latter had more votes but he is more active in rebuilding the country.

I am walking through a city and notice a lot of people sitting on my left. They are all eating pizza slices from a small Greek restaurant on my right. As I keep on looking for other restaurant I find a shop selling old coats and I wonder if my partner would like any of them for me but I keep going.

I am on top on the side of a forested mountain with my German friend and his daughters. I propose to keep going up and we all start moving but then one of the daughters see the head of my oldest son far below. He is actually looking for us on an easy road and we call him up to the shortcut.

I am in an airport with a girl who is supposed to work with me at a bakery. She has booked a flight to go home and we try to cancel it. She can only change it and she chooses a random destination. I then take her to her plane but it is full of hooligans. Luckily there is also a deck above it.

I am climbing with my youngest son up a very steep hill. It is muddy but we manage to push ourselves up without falling. On the top it is flat and not too far from us is a little church with a man. He must be the priest and we see him biking towards us even though there is a precipice.

I am on my way to the hospital carrying a box with metal pieces so that the doctor can fix my finger. There is a queue of people waiting to get in the emergency room and we just start partying together. I then ask the gate keeper is he can let me in and he says that everyone is free to enter.

I am in our Dutch house bathroom together with my partner. She is getting ready in front of the mirror and I notice that her breast is smaller. I then fear she is actually a man but she tells me to hug her and rest assure nothing have changed. I hug her but still feel something is not right.

I am on top of a mountain with my children. It is getting dark outside and still have to go down to fetch some equipment. I then manage to run down the path that took me so long to climb up with them and reach a big garage. My old mountain neighbour is closing it and I tell him to let it be.

I am in my oldest son's Swedish villa and make a comment that it should be turned into a restaurant. My former father-in-law gets very angry about and start hitting my son in the forehead. He is actually still very little and I try to defend him from such a maniac but I don't stand a chance.

I am in a bathroom trying to masturbate even though I really don't want to. Also there is a big window behind me and it is still very light outside. I then try to lock the door but it does not even close and I just try to hurry but it is not pleasant and I decide to give up and go out of the bathroom.

I am down a valley with my German artist friend and his daughters. We can actually see cars driving above us on a road built right on the ridge. My friend then shows me how I should also buy a little car like the one a woman is driving. I first agree but then see how dangerous it can be.

I am in a sacristy with a priest organizing a non religious service. I get to sit next to him and while he talks to the community I get to see a photo-album of when everyone was younger. I realize my stepfather is also among them and that he used to take me for walks there when I was small.

I am in the headquarter of a famous newspaper and a man working there comes to ask me what am I doing. I tell him that I know a journalist from his newspaper and he goes to call him but I realize that I am not in good contact with him anymore and want a journalist dealing with culture.

I am outside a restaurant overlooking a big lake and just go inside. I seat with a young guy who wants to drink two sodas at once. As I try to think what to order I hear a family sitting nearby talking about how they bought a house at the lake for the same price we spent far in the mountains.

I am about to walk across a big intersection but check on my phone if I can continue walking on the other side. There is actually a path and I begin too cross the intersection but it is very messy and when I get on the other side I realize I am still far from the path. I then look for an alternative.

I am in a big room with my partner's relatives. Her mother is actually with another boyfriend and she announces that they are going to travel together. While everyone congratulates them I search for her previous boyfriend who is left alone at the end of the room. I then try to comfort him.

I am working in a big warehouse but there is nothing to do. I then offer to bring a plastic bag to the recycling station but on the way find a welding machine I want to try. It comes with a big inverter and I set it up but then an older colleague tells me that the inverters is for the American market.

I am in a dining room sitting next to a Spanish guy who starts complaining about academia. I then explain tell him and another woman how anthropologists did not even want to examine the last hunter gatherers until it was too late. As I talk I serve the lady the last portion of a potato salad.

I am driving on a highway and pass by a big city. There are columns of smoke coming out of it and I realize there could be a war. On the opposite lane there is a lot of traffic with even ambulances that are completely stuck. People are fleeing but no one of them is going in my direction.

I am visiting an island with my family but find nothing to see. We then ask a local if he has any suggestions and he points out a little village above us. There are only a few houses and I find it quite boring but then see that right across it is a mountain that is so giant that I cannot see the top.

I am biking on a road and see a house for sale. I then imagine that all the houses next to it are soon also gonna get sold but I can tell that there is still people living inside. As I continue biking the road starts going downhill and I realize the brakes of my bike are not enough to slow down.

I am at a gas station and see a Croatian welder friend leaving. He has exactly our van but drives with the roof open. I then ask him if it is possible and he tells me that it is. I am very happy of the discovery but my partner tells me he is just a crazy guy and we shouldn't be listening to him.

I am walking in a street of our Dutch village on my way home. As I go in an underpass an old Moroccan artist friend reaches me. I haven't seen him for a long time but he apparently has his children also in my children's school. He proposes to meet during the weekend and I have no excuses.

I am in my native highland in front of a round small restaurant. It is closed but the owner is out and tells me that he has had enough. Costumers only come there to drink and stay until very late. Before it was better but now there are even the local far right politicians going there.

I am walking with my parents down a path and reach an asphalt road. We have to turn to another road where our car is parked and I just follow my stepfather walking on the side of the road that is very muddy. My mother avoids it but I step right in because I have the right shoes for it.

I am in a forest with two other friends and decide to cross a hill on our side. I actually came from there but we take the opposite road and end up on a field overlooking the valley. It is very beautiful there even though there are small trees growing in front of us and soon the view will disappear.

I am watching a movie about a man trying to rescue the wife of a billionaire from him. She is at the swimming pool of a hotel and the man goes very close to her to talk about his plan. She agrees and she pretends to be injured after falling from a bike that is now being repaired in the lobby.

I am in a new apartment with my daughter telling me how sick her little brother is. He also comes to me and I bring him back to bed. I realize that his bed is built inside a closet and the mattress is very good for jumping he would crash his head on the shelves. He then just crawls inside.

I am with an Albanian friend looking at a view of a coastline. I then recognize the beach where I have recently been. I see a building but she cannot confirm whether it is the camping where I stayed. There should be a village behind it and I realize that it is where I used to go when I was little.

I am biking through a Sicilian town full of angry people. I then try to get out of it as soon as possible and end up on a cliff with only a metal bar to cross it. I have no idea how to do it but then a kind man comes and shows me how I have to strap myself and my bike on it to slide across.

I am having a picnic with a Dutch woman under a big tree. As she tells me about her Italian boyfriend I serve her some rice but realize that I forgot the sauce. I want to get back home to get it but she insists in just finding some weed to put inside. We then search on the field but it all grazed.

I am watching a movie about a man who should jump from a cliff into the sea. He is supposed to do so with another team of divers but he prefers to jump alone. He does so but the team follows him on a boat and they all die. He then gets on the boat and tries to get some help on the radio.

I am in a shop and get to the cash desk with three t-shirts. As I am about to pay I realize that the one on top is very expensive. I then turn around to bring all the t-shirts back but realize that the last one is actually a sweater I already have and it is much cheaper. I then wonder if it is used.

I am in a hotel walking to my room to get my stuff and leave to the airport. I actually think to get a taxi and meet a Thai hostess with whom I can share a ride. She wants me and another guy to go in her room. We do see and start having sex with the latter while I just go to my room to get ready.

I am walking with my youngest son at the edge of a field. There are some trees on our side but as I look through them I realize that there is a big precipice. We keep on walking and the path we are taking suddenly goes down the precipice but it is not so bad and we are able to get up again.

I am in a field watching some people showing each other how to walk like primitive hunters. They are in a good shape but cannot get it right. From the distance another man comes who is quite shabby but can perfectly walk with his butt almost to the ground and his head bent in the front.

I am in a beer garden with a guy telling me of his two new affairs in town. One of the girls actually shows up and he borrows from me a grapefruit to share with her. I want it back but I can see him peeling her while walking to her. They already start eating it and I am left with nothing to eat.

I am at a political gathering on top of a mountain but decide to bike back down. Another man with his wife is already walking down telling her how he is a federalist and did not enjoy the meeting. I did not enjoy for the same reason but I am certainly not a right wing federalist but a left one.

I am watching a football game but realize that the two teams must be paid to keep the score even. One player in front of the goal is checking a zipper that has come out of his uniform when the ball comes his way. He keeps on checking the zipper while the ball rolls behind but misses the goal.