

I am room looking at a tall blonde girl dancing tango with another guy. She is not pretty and I don't find it that good but suddenly she comes to get me. I really don't want to dance with her but she immediately squeezes her solid breast against me and I actually manage to follow her steps.

I am in a small shop trying to select some locks I need for my barn in the mountains. My youngest son is also with me and I realize he is still a small baby. He is trying to creep out of the shop and I just get him in my arms and go out with him without bothering about the shop assistant.

I am in a parking lot with one of my twin cousins and his wife. They have been hiking for many days but grew tired of having to go up and down the hills. They then ask me to drive them on top of a mountain chain where they can keep the same altitude but my cousin's wife is not so sure.

I am looking at a very detailed map of the west of the north American continent. I am impressed on how little lakes there are and only find a few too much to the north and too much to the east. I then focus again on the west and find some small villages that are marked blue like attractions.

I am walking with my youngest son next to a tea shop. It is empty and I see that the Chinese lady working there is in the kitchen crying. I then think it is because she doesn't have any costumers and I go in to buy some tea for my son. I find it disgusting but meantime more costumers arrive.

I am in a house waiting for my partner's brothers to arrive. I then text them to see where the youngest is and he replies that he is almost there. I go out to welcome them and see that the oldest brother is traveling with a very long car. There are all the relatives sitting around a long garden.

I am in the terrace of a hotel with my children. One of them has to pee and I take him next to a bush by the swimming pool but a waitress call me. She is at our table and asks for my card. I then think she wants to see whether I am renting a room in the hotel but she only wants my credit card.

I am in a gym and manage to lift on the bench press as much weight as an old football player. I then also want to use a machine that is meant for the back to keep on training my chest. I first wash my hands and then get back to it but anther guy is now using it the way that it is supposed to.

I am driving my an down a mountain road and have no control of it. I almost crash but then decide to stop and switch to a much faster car. I get in but it is too low and the seat too high. It starts driving but once again I cannot see where I am going. I then try to stop but I do not manage.

I am in my uncle's house checking out his fancy living-room. He only has a few books and I pick one up. It is actually quite good and he explains to me that it is from a company where he used to work. They had a research and development team and I wish I could have been part of them.

I am on a bus going through an African city. It stops in front of a jewelry store and an old lady with a beard comes in saying how much better it is to buy jewels in a French store. She thinks I am French and asks me to become the bus driver for a day since all the other drivers are on holiday.

I am in outside my children's school with other parents and meet one who is supposed to take a walk with me. He has a date with another friend and I accompany him to his place. As I wait for them to play together I notice that the chimney is catching fire. I then fill up a bucket to turn it off.

I am in a restaurant and talk to the owner about the new idea I have of an open theater. We then go to a corner so that I can show it to him and he says that we first need to talk to the elders. I see that there are already so me of them eating in his restaurant and they don't look so happy.

I am in the mountains and see that I have a missed call. I then try to think who could have called me but then realize that it was one of my aunt. I call her back and she apologizes for having been quite hard with me after I gave her small text to correct. She was even hard with the punctuation.

I am in a clinic getting checked on a special bed. As it is time for me to go I am given a very tight wheelchair and I try to get out of the clinic but it is way too narrow. I then look at the doctor also getting outside and see that she is also struggling. I get in a state of panic but finally manage.

I am walking with my daughter along a muddy river. I remember it to be a very good spot where to swim and check on my phone for a map. We then walk further and actually find that the water is much more clear and that there are two Americans swimming on the other side of a small dike.

I am watching a bike race and notice a very young champion who even bikes back to get a trophy from a race car. He then bikes into the crowd and lets go of the stir. People keeps him straight and then he starts biking very fast behind another racing car asking the driver to make him win.

I am in an old car with my Polish friend. We are actually standing in the middle of a road and I tell him it is time to move. He then drives to the opposite side and decides that we should walk instead. I am actually not going where he is going and will have to walk much further without him.

I am in an office with my Norwegian architect friend. There is also my Dutch architect neighbour and they agree that I need to weld metal bars behind the textures of my ark. I then think about it and say that it is absurd and they can very well be self-standing. My neighbour then gets angry.

I am in an apartment waiting to watch an important football game. I also want my children to watch it but they are sleeping in a room even though it is day time. I then decide to wake them up but find that they are sleeping between my mother and her brother. I am too afraid to wake the latter.

I am walking with my children up a hill and find a hotel. We go inside and a man at the reception tells us that he was waiting for us. He is a friend of my parents and has a room for us. It has no bathroom and only one bed but it is still quite expensive and we will have to stay there many days.

I am on a field with the son of my mountain neighbours. I tell him that I would like to build a small cabin and we look at the place where to do it. I would like it more to the right so that I can have a view to the mountains but he wants me to keep more to the left on top of a road going down.

I am walking on a street drawing dog pooh on the pavement. A man looks at me and I think he wants to comment about it but he only tells me that the bread sold in a vending machine is delicious and cheap. I then also get one and find that it is filled with spinach as if it was filled with pooh.

I am on a dike with the rich mother of one my children's classmates. She shows me that they own a big farm and they could give it to me for little money. The roof is all broken down and inside there are still cows. I look at them and notice they are covered with yellow warts and look sick.

I am in the back of a very small car with another girl. The driver is our boss and he parks on a sidewalk where a lot of other people are waiting to enter a building. As the doors open we follow them up a staircase but the steps are missing and I just look at a guy who climbs up without sliding.

I am on one side of a valley and see a deer with a baby on the opposite side. I have no camera to take a photo of them but bring my youngest son right in front and realize that the deer is very tiny. It looks more like a toy but as my son gets closer it starts to move but doesn't run away from us.

I am walking with my children across out of our Dutch village and hear a couple walking in front of us speaking Italian. I then tell my daughter that they are puppeteers and they decide to improvise a little show for her. They get their puppets out and several tourists come to see and pay them.

I am in a square sitting next to a British woman and feel her foot against mine. I can then connect to her and see where she lives. It is a fancy place with villas but the water is flowing over it and I realize that it is an island that is going to get all under water. She seems unaware about it.

I am driving on a highway when a big red car passes me on the right side and then blocks my way. I feel quite disoriented but need to focus again paying attention to a road work. I also need to drive to the left but there is even a tunnel that is completely black and I can no longer see a thing.

I am in my mountain village and realize that the aggressive dog of my young neighbour is free. I then tell him to put it on a leash but he refuses. As I call his landowner I see that they have an even bigger dog that is harassing my youngest son. I lose my temper and start to offend my neighbour.

I am at a school standing in front of a calssroom with a group of children. I then ask them who is American thinking that no one is but then a kid comes forward and I remember that is father is. Another kid comes forward and claims that is father is also American. The two are almost identical.

I am in a house cooking coffee for my partner's oldest brother and his wife. I suddenly get the idea that I could use the coffee to melt the cheese on top of some leftover pasta. I do it but the pasta absorbs all the coffee and I have to put it into different dishes for them and myself. It is uneatable.

I am on a hill laying on the soft grass looking at the mountains. Some are covered with snow and some are not even though they are the same height. A black man with the stroller comes down and I move to the side. Everyone should do what they please but he starts to scold some boys digging.

I am in a museum next to my mother and her friend. They are looking at another lady inside a radioactive ball. She comes out of it with her eyebrows moved down to her cheeks. I am not so interested and I just walk to another room where there is a classic symphony about a Hungarian city.

I am in a kitchen putting aubergine pieces inside a tray. I then get the idea to put them in layers with cheese on the top but realize I do not have enough slices. As I anyway move some to the side I find that there are more slices underneath. It turns out I have all the slices I need to fill the tray.

I am in a park checking a sheep eating the wool from a fur. A guy is selling more furs and I decide I should buy one to keep on feeding the sheep. He shows me a few but they are way too fancy. I got for the less fancy one but there is way too little fur and it feels it is synthetic and not natural.

I am in an office talking to a man who looks quite sick. He is very proud of his past as a cross-country runner and I actually see a poster with him. He shows him among the winners and I realize he must still be in very good shape despite his very thick glasses showing that he is quite blind.

I am walking with my twin sister to a hospital. Her legs are getting paralyzed and we immediately call for a doctor. We then seat down with one and he explains that it is because of her work. My sister agrees that she will talk about it with our mother the next time they have a meeting.

I am in a train station and hear from a young woman of another station from where I can take a nice hike. I then take the train there but get busy reading and miss the stop. I get off at another stop and get the train back but realize that the place where I have to walk has several stops.

I am in the garage of an inventor with some students. One of them activates a type of machine that starts hitting against the wall. The inventor comes and rotates it towards the exit. It is quite powerful but then he explains that he only uses a small microprocessor that I also used as a teacher.

I am walking with a friend and my kids in a park and reach a stand with several boxes. There are piles of comic books for my children and I select one for my kids. A friend tells me that they are not so good and as I consider to put them back I notice a lot of porn magazines underneath it.

I am in front of a barber shop waiting for it to open. There is also a girl sitting on the other side of the entrance but I notice that she has been tied up. The owner actually comes out to inform us that he is closed in the morning and wants us to leave but I let him understand that the girl cannot.

I am in a classroom with my new classmates and find that they all need to pay respect to one boy. He has bodyguards that threatens everyone and they also come to me. They want me to follow them to another classroom so that I can also pay respect to their boss I rebel and start fighting.

I am in our van with my family and just let it drive by itself over a hill. I have programmed it to park on the side of the road but it keep on rolling down. There are some big rocks ahead and I manage to pull the handbrake. It does not work and I quickly get in the driver to seat to brake for real.

I am in a big shop selling different kind of tents. They are all very expensive but I find a model that is quite good and cheap. I then realize that it does not have any heating inside and it is no use in the winter. I finally decide to go to a bigger shop to see if the heated tents are cheaper there.

I am in the villa of a Swedish philosopher. He actually goes out with his friends and I am left alone with his wife. She is very skinny and ugly but we anyway hug. The curtains are still open and I see her husband coming back with a gun. He comes up to us but he only has an old book.

I am on a hill ready to get in the jeep of the American president. He drives past me not to waste gasoline for a servant like me and I manage to get in the backseat. There is one of his ministers there and I ask the latter where he lives. He tells me of his ranch but then starts talking about god.

I am in a kitchen drawing a circle with many dots. I then declare that each dot is one of my relatives and they will fight against another clan. As I draw lines to connect the dots to the center the two clans get ready to fight and I get in the mix looking for an opponent. I just choose a little girl.

I am with a group of friends in a park. The sun has already set and it is getting very dark. We then make it on top of a small hill where there is a tree. No one can see us and we just start digging with our hands underneath it. The earth is soft and I realize we have already been digging there.

I am in the backyard of of one of my partner's friends. Her Swedish husband is showing me a work I have to do for them. He gives me a metal piece and tells me to use it as the edge of a roof to cover some wood. The wood is already very old and I don't understand why I should do it.

I am in a city walking down to a bay. I see a ferry departing from it and I realize it is not the one I am supposed to take. As I take it easy I see another one approaching and find that it is the right one. I then run down to get it but there is a long line and the ferry gets immediately full with people.

I am outside my old bakery and get in to look for something. My boss is there but I don't want to talk to him and go straight to the refrigeration room. There is nothing left as it used to be and I just get back out but see that my boss has already found a replacement for me and he seems good.

I am waking up at my uncle but there is no one inside his house. I was expecting to meet my cousins and start looking for them but only meet my uncle in the end. He then explains to me that everyone has left and there is no point for me to stay. I get ready to leave without arguing.

I am walking around a cathedral wearing my hood. There are poor people following me and I am supposed to bring their laundry to wash. I then make it inside to bring it to the priest but meet my stepfather bathing naked in holly water. He tells me to bring the laundry to the priest's house.

I am in the basement of a house filled with toys. Two old friends are sitting at a table and I also join them. One of them is bold and his head is filled with tattoos. As I try to understand whether he made them with a pen he asks me if I agree to have a strong leader. I then prepare an answer.

I am in a big room playing with my youngest son. One of his classmate is also there sitting on his mother lap. The latter is conducting an experiment using a microscope and shows it to me. She has managed to create a living creature and as it starts growing I realize it is a small seal.

I am going up a beautiful valley covered in snow. There is even a water stream on my side and I soon reach a little restaurant where our Dutch cook friend has prepared a big box for my baker friend. He loads into a brand new van and I start driving it back down. The engine is not that good.

I am in the kitchen of our mountain apartment. It is still very late at night but I hear that my partner is talking in the living room. I go in to check and see that she is trying to reason with her big brother. He is in a state of panic because he thinks the land he just bought is too swampy.

I am walking through an ugly neighborhood and come to a part that is quite nice. The houses look pretty and I wonder if they will continue like that but soon the ugly neighborhood start again. I then check whether it is possible to live in the nice houses without having to see the ugly ones.

I am in a park waiting for the wife of a Dutch friend to take me for a trip. I then sit on the edge of a slope and try to think what she has come up with. She finally arrives but has nothing ready and only sit next to me looking out. I am very frustrated and want to find an excuse to leave.

I am walking with my uncle to the medieval town where he lives. It is dark and he is pushing a stroller with grandddaughter when suddenly he realizes that there is a police van on his side. He thinks they are after him and just toss the stroller up in the air. I run forward and manage to fetch it.

I am in a garden with my partner. She is actually a nurse and she needs my help to get some newly born babies out of the iron pots where they have been conceived. I then get a few out as if they have been cooked in tomato sauce. All of them are alive but I come to a pot in which they are dead.

I am sitting with my children outside a supermarket and see an artist friend coming out. He then fill up the tires of a special bike and I look at what a great job he did placing a wooden pellet on top of it. As I check more closely I realize that he just took one of our bikes and he did not do much.

I am in the mountains inside the apartment of our new neighbours. The guy starts saying that I am a layer and I get very upset about it. I then walk out saying that I am a very generous person and I should not be treated that way. I even start crying but my neighbour comes to me to apologize.

I am following a guy in the lobby of a hotel and see that he pulls his gun out in front of the receptionist. The latter arranges for us a room with a sofa and two guys take us upstairs. As we walk up the guy that is with also shows them the gun and they immediately show us to our room.

I am in our mountain village and see that there is now a fence in the area we used to share together. It is actually my property but I see some neighbours are using anyway. I actually don't mind and see that my dead neighbour is searching for alcohol in our apartment. I then give her a bottle.

I am at a zoo and look at a black soldier feeding a flamingo. He is giving it a pill and I realize that he is killing. It is the flamingo of a Jewish prisoner who has also been confined in the same cage. They are both being killed and the soldier is now free from his duty and thinks what to do next.

I am in a park with a long restaurant. They are actually renovating it and I realize that there are now a lot of openings going from one side to other. I find it a stupid idea but then realize that the restaurant is now Arabic and the want to have traditional arches where costumers can eat.

I am in our mountain field digging the perimeter of my memory theater. My children are with me and as I try to look at what we did from afar I realized we have been digging a very deep trench. A guy working on another field says that it is fine but I realize that we did not follow the perimeter.

I am in an art academy mixing whip-cream with the purple paint I have got from my old Japanese artist friend. The two do not mix together and I realize that the cream could be vegan. As I try harder I hear some students talking about my friend and I tell him that I can arrange a meeting.

I am in a parking lot talking to an Italian guy who often travels to North America. I then wonder if he ever finds himself in danger with all the many homeless drug addicts but he doesn't understand my question and says that he just rents a big pick up. There is an identical one where we are.

I am sitting at the wooden table in the middle of our mountain village and be attention to a little boy who is walking around it. His teeth are sharpened like those of a dog and I am afraid he is going to bite me. I then realize that my neighbour's aggressive dog is also loose and I am surrounded.

I am approaching a villa and notice that my spiritual friend is building a wall with one another friend. They are putting bricks without plaster in between them and I tell that they must do so. They then reply that they just plan to put the plaster on the outside of the wall when it is finished.

I am walking with my partner's father up the dirt road to our mountain village. He is with his old mother and I realize she has been transferred to a retirement home in the neighborhood so that he can be on holiday with his brother. I wonder if she likes it but she seems very fit also walking.

I am in a playground and meet my Polish friend and his girlfriend. He is not so willing to talk but then he looses up and we start walking outside the playground. As it is time to depart and I ask them to take a walk together another time but he is again very hesitant and tells me he is too busy.

I am on some hills with our Dutch friends. One of them is missing and we start searching for her. My youngest son is with me and I keep with him on the road but all the others go even down the cliffs to look for their friends. There is someone ahead but it is a guy who has fallen on the mad.

I am in a temple I have just built but need to put the bust of the god on the top. I then climb on the side and reach the roof but there is already a metal bar. I then think to slide the bust on it but it is too high. As I start climbing down the roof bends and I can easily get the bust in the bar.

I am in a square with my children and see a man dressing up like a scary monkey. I then provoke him and he comes our way. He starts chasing me around a table and I realize he is actually a monkey and there is no human underneath it. I am concerned about my children but he wants me.

I am on a bus and prepare to get off. A lady then protests saying that she gave me money but now she wants them back. I do remember having given me some money but I thought it was a present. I then ignore her and just wait to get off no matter how hard she is going to try to get them back

I am walking with a young woman to a baptism but realize that I should wear nicer clothes. We then make it back to my uncle's villa where I also wish to shower. One of my twin cousins is also there and he shows a big modern painting he and his brother used as a wall to play badminton.

I am playing a video-game with racing motorcycles. I actually cannot understand who is winning and suddenly every player is told to stop where they are. Most of them are next to the final line but the one that was supposed to win is stuck in the middle of the track next to a tiny pit-stop.

I am looking at an old drawing showing a famous tennis player when she was young. It was made by her first fan when she won her first tournament. At the beginning the fan was making drawings of a Dutch player but then switched to the other player the moment she began to win all games.

I am on a bus with a Mexican musician. She is my girlfriend even though her father is also there and does not agree on our engagement. We finally reach the city where she is going to have a concert and I can already see a giant billboard announcing the event. I then clear my voice singing.

I am watching a video my best friend made trying to film public spaces as I do. He actually started filming right before exploding a firework and I see the crowd getting very scared. It is a great video but then he starts commenting on what happens and manages to spoil the whole atmosphere.

I am outside the house of an Italian girl who invites me inside. I then realize that my mountain neighbour who recently died is now living in the basement with her. I check her while she is asleep and then get back to the kitchen but the girl's father is there complaining that we used his knives.

I am in a market and come to the stand of an American woman. I hear her talking to another woman saying that she can pick most of the vegetables for free and I ask if I can do the same. She confirms and I start picking some nice paprika but also get some bread and realize I have to pay for it.

I am going out of a gym and suddenly remember that I had an agreement with my Dutch boss. As I walk through some high-rises I realize that while I am not working for him anymore he has to still pay me for the time I spend at the gym. I then think of writing an invoice with all the hours.

I am in a residential park waiting for a Chinese family. I actually live one of the apartments and have prepared a lot of food for them but as they arrive I suddenly remember we would go to a restaurant. I then try to convince them to come to my apartment but they want the restaurant.

I am in an atelier with other artists. We are supposed to make paintings but the American president is there and he keeps on deliberating about what we cannot do. He keeps on banning colours and in the end we only have one left to use. I can still think of something but he also ban that one.

I am walking with my best friend in a forest. My children are with me and he tells us of a place with two gray horses. We then follow him on a dirt road that is very boring and actually reach a big asphalt road. I see my children getting very bored and we have no idea where the horses are.

I am watching a movie about a general who has to kill his severely wounded king. He is then thrown in a cave together with him and he climbs up a tunnel where the bounty of the enemy is hidden. He then finds a lot of rare paintings and other antiques but has to go further not to get caught.

I am at a tiny restaurant with my parents. It is run by an old man and he only brings us a little fish to share. We don't even have the courage to eat it and just leave it in the middle of the table and ask for the dessert. I actually made it but the old man just brings the bill and it is a lot of money.

I am in a bathroom sitting on the toilet and checking the tiles around me. They have a beautiful gray glazing and see that under the sink there are some that have been left over. I then try to see where to add them but then realize that I still have friends who have the bathroom without them.

I am just awake in a big apartment and see that all the lights are still on. I then get up to turn them off and find three switches on the wall. They are for one side of a long corridor but the other side has only one switch that looks badly installed. I use a hairbrush to turn it off and it gets burnt.

I am walking through a neighborhood and come to a big crowd. They are all my old friends who just attended a funeral. They give me their condolences but I have no idea who died. I also cannot remember their names and just improvise with the first one but the decide that it is better to leave.

I am in a German campsite and go all the way to the other side to the cafe. My oldest son is inside and is waiting for me to buy him an ice-cream. There are actually a lot of fridges with quite good ice-creams but I have no money and have to walk all the way across the camping to get my wallet.

I am in our Dutch house with my partner's oldest brother talking on the phone. As he is about to hang up he just says that the guy he was talking is under cocaine but the latter hears him and wants an explanation. My partner's brother then says that he was just calling his wife by name.

I am walking with my children up a small mountain. There is a shrine on the top but we walk to the side where there should be a spring. Both of them are thirsty and I heard the water is very pure there but the grass is very high and we have to go inside a tunnel that leads us to a precipice.

I am with a group of students in a forest. I am supposed to help them build some landart installation and I show them a way to a sculptural park. We actually have to make it through a restaurant but when we are out again there are several paths. One of them is along a beautiful stream.

I am walking in my native town and get a phone call from a technician. He is actually standing next to me and invites me to go to a small restaurant. We first stop inside a little church where there is a spectacle with a group of professional clowns. He is part of them and I am very impressed.